Parents of Denise Rosburg make appeal for better parent-child communication

THE PARENTS of 16-year-old Denise Ann Rosburg of Carmel Valley, who died last week of an apparent drug overdose, have issued a plea to parents and children to communicate more openly with each other.

"The mutual love between parent and child is ever-present but often not communicated," said Keith Rosburg, the Carmel High School student's father, at funeral services at the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel. Burial was at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove.

"Parents, tell your children you love them! Children, tell your parents you love them! From that common ground, the problems between you can be resolved."

Denise died June 20 at Community Hospital after being stricken at the family's Carmel Valley home at 4275 Canada Lane. Suspected cause of death is listed by the Monterey County Coroner as overdose of an anti-depressant drug. Denise had been under the care of a physician and her mother said she suspects the death was a suicide.

Final results of a drug screening are expected sometime this week. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Rosburg; sisters Sharon and Charlotte of the Carmel Valley home; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Rosburg of Sioux City, Iowa and May Walsh of Stateline, Nev.

"We have experienced an immeasurable personal tragedy—the death of our daughter who gave us so much love and joy," Denise's father said in a brief elegy at the funeral service. "The disputes between us regarding what seemed like important issues of control and independence seem so trivial now."

"We take comfort from knowing that Denise loved us, and in knowing that she knew how much we loved her. Many of you, Denise's friends and other parents, are in the same stage of parent-child relationships that we were. So often the channels of communication are closed in disputes that seem so important but in the end are so trivial."

"The memorial that we—Denise's family—would like

'If we can, through this experience, help other families come together, Denise's death will have some purpose'

THE LATE DENISE ANN ROSBURG

'parents don't know that drug and alcohol use is almost a 'rite of passage' into adolescence in 1981 and are therefore not alert to the few clues they may have' to leave our precious Denise is to use this experience to help others. We open our hearts and our home to Denise's friends and their parents, together or individually, to do what we can to prevent this tragedy from touching them.

"If we can, through this experience, help other families come together, Denise's death will have some purpose."

The Rosburg family asked that memorials be made to the Parents Who Care organization, in care of Carmel High School. The group is dedicated to combating adolescent drug and alcohol abuse through improved communication between parents and children. The Rosburgs were active members of the group.

'Parents, tell your children you love them! Children, tell your parents you love them! From that common ground, the problems between you can be resolved'

MAUREEN GIRARD, president of Parents-Who Care, described Denise as "a good kid, a gifted student, active in Sunday School and the church choir. She belonged to the Blue Birds and Girl Scouts and was recently a Candy Stripper at Community Hospital."

"Denise had a warm and loving family and parents who involved themselves in her interests and activities. Her abilities, her activities, and her environment were all that any of us could wish for our children," Mrs. Girard said.

"Many good kids in our community are seriously involved with drugs and alcohol. They are introduced to these substances at a time when their bodies are still growing and their judgment is far from mature. Their parents don't know that drug and alcohol use is almost a 'rite of passage' into adolescence in 1981 and are therefore not alert to the few clues they may have."

"When parents do find out that their children are using drugs and alcohol, they become frightened and often do nothing about it because they haven't any idea what to do. Inevitably, if we parents, young people and concerned community members don't search together for ways to change this situation, there will be more Denises."

"There have been three drug and alcohol-related deaths of Carmel teenagers since last fall. That is an epidemic of gigantic proportions in a community as small as ours. Pat and Keith Rosburg are founding members and active participants in Carmel Parents Who Care, an organization formed last spring to help stem the rising use of alcohol and drugs by youngsters in our community."

Mrs. Girard urged those in the community who would like more information on Parents Who Care to phone her at 625-1930.

School board bans drug and alcohol possession in elementary school code

POSSESSION OF DRUGS and alcohol has been added to the list of prohibited behavior in student conduct codes for elementary schools in the Carmel Unified School District.

Trustees of the Board of Education decided to specify that element in student behavior codes for next year, and to consider an in-school suspension policy for student offenders. They reviewed revised codes at their regular meeting Tuesday, June 16.

The codes of conduct were implemented this year at the elementary, middle and high school level in the district, and were reviewed and evaluated by subcommittees of the Student Behavior Committee. The subcommittees surveyed parents, teachers and school site councils and made recommendations to the Student Behavior Committee and board.

Hand-holding at Carmel Middle School, which drew the ire of some parents earlier this year as being too harsh, will remain on the list of unacceptable behavior under the general category of "physical contact."

Board President Doyle Clayton suggested adding possession of drugs and alcohol to the list of proscribed student behavior in the elementary schools, although he said he hopes the rule will never have to be invoked. Student behavior codes for both the middle and high schools stipulate severe punishment, including suspension, for possession of drugs and alcohol.

"Seventy-two percent of the parents at the Middle School who were surveyed felt that there should be no hand-holding on the Middle School campus," Nick Nicholson, Middle School principal, told the board. Nicholson also served as chairman of the Student Behavior Committee.

At the high school, 100 parent surveys were mailed to sample opinion on the student behavior code. Thirty-seven of 38 parent surveys which were returned indicated support for the code, and one parent felt the code should be strengthened in the area of drug use.

Parent survey forms were sent home to parents of elementary school children and 117 forms were returned. They showed a 99 per cent positive response to the student behavior code, said pupil personnel services director Rich Hawkins.

Surveys were mailed to all parents of the Middle School, and 68 responses were received. Parents who replied generally supported the student behavior code, Nicholson told the board.

"All the publicity about the hand-holding brought out the silent majority in favor of the code of conduct," Nicholson said. "Eighty-five per cent supported the code itself."

THE STUDENT BEHAVIOR code for Middle School ranks unacceptable behavior in three categories based on the seriousness of the offense. The first category includes drugs and alcohol use or possession, theft, assault, vandalism and weapons.

Second category includes harassment, defiance of authority, profanity, writing on school property, smoking, truancy and cutting classes. The third category includes littering, physical contact—which covers not only hand-holding but also pushing and shoving—gambling, gum chewing, and bringing radios, tape recorders or "other inappropriate items" to school.

"I don't like the term 'other inappropriate items,'" said Clayton. "I think we should spell out what we mean."

"These are the ones that have caused the problems," Nicholson said. "We used that term because we don't know what the next thing will be that they'll want to bring onto campus."

"If something becomes inappropriate, the kids should be notified of what it is," Clayton said.

The code of conduct for the high school lists "involuntary transfer to Carmel Valley High School" as the punishment for violations in six different categories of offenses. This drew a question from Clayton whether the alternative school was being used as a "dumping ground for truants."

"Only a very small portion of our Carmel Valley High School students are there because of that," Nicholson replied. "The majority are counselled into going there."

"We've seen some great things going on at Carmel Valley High School and I wouldn't want to see it labelled as a dumping ground for discipline problems," Clayton said, suggesting that the term "alternative school" be substituted for Carmel Valley High School.

TRUSTEE BETTY BELL urged consideration of an in-school suspension policy as a disciplinary measure one step short of sending a student home for suspension following a violation of the code of conduct.

"It seems that in-school suspension is an appropriate thing for us to think about," she said. "One of the best things about it is that the work is sent from the student's classroom for him to do while he is removed from class."

Nicholson said the Student Behavior Committee, in reviewing the codes of conduct in effect during the last school year, discussed "a glassed-in enclosure of some sort" to be used for in-school disciplinary measures, adding: "Somebody needs to make sure that happens."

"The concept of in-school suspension is good, but it does diminish the concept of suspension. It does lessen the impact. I think suspension should be suspension," said Trustee Ron Parravano.

"I believe in expulsion when all else has failed," said Mrs. Bell. "But I would like to take a look at in-school suspension. With 60 per cent of our kids in the district coming from single-parent homes, this should make us think twice about sending a kid home for a week or so and have them behind in their work when they come back."

Parravano supported inclusion of the prohibition of hand-holding as part of the physical contact portion of the student code at Middle School, on the basis "we need to let the kids know that it's a school and they come there to learn."

Excavation threatens pine trees in Carmel

By BABS COROVESIS

THE CITY FACES loss of more of its lofty pine trees if additional basement-level excavation is permitted, the chairman of the Carmel Forestry Commission warned last week.

Matt Smith issued that warning following a special session of the commission in which it was decided to grant permission to Clayton Neill Jr. and Gilbert Neill to remove two large Monterey pines on city property.

Neill had requested the removal in January and again at a February meeting of the commission, but the matter was postponed pending completion of the excavation at the building site on the southwest corner of Mission and Fifth. Neill plans to build a complex containing four apartments on the second floor, engineering offices on the street level, and a storage area and mechanical equipment placement in the basement.

Even, though the Forestry Commission asked that the excavation stop several feet back from the trees, the commission still determined the trees were a hazard, and that their likelihood for survival is not very good.

"They were two beautiful trees," Smith said. "But the man has a right to develop his property. We did everything we could to get the architect (Olof Dahlstrand) to revise the plans so the trees might be saved. We requested they give every regard and consideration to the trees' roots, which they did," Smith added.

He said the commission agreed in February it would hold a special session following excavation and make a decision about tree removal at that time.

Smith said he feels "more and more of that kind of thing (basement or parking storage areas) will be put in as part of construction," because it allows fuller utilization of Carmel's valuable real estate.

"The trouble is there is nothing in our code or background that takes care of that kind of situation right now," Smith said.

He added that the trees on the Neill site suffered such severe root damage that "there was no way to save those trees. They would be a public hazard. They could fall—they are huge trees. Don't you think for a minute that we (the commission) didn't hate to see them have to be removed," Smith added.

The Forestry Commission chairman said he once held a position that no tree should ever be removed.

"Now I'm beginning to think that perhaps we may have too many old trees. These young trees come up pretty fast. I guess there will have to be a compromise. We're planting a lot of new ones, so I don't feel so bad about it.

"Remember, it's a rough bag of nails when you're dealing with private property and what you can tell a man he can and can't do with his property," Smith added.

He pointed out that the difficulty with Monterey pines is that their roots grow close to the surface and extend out laterally.

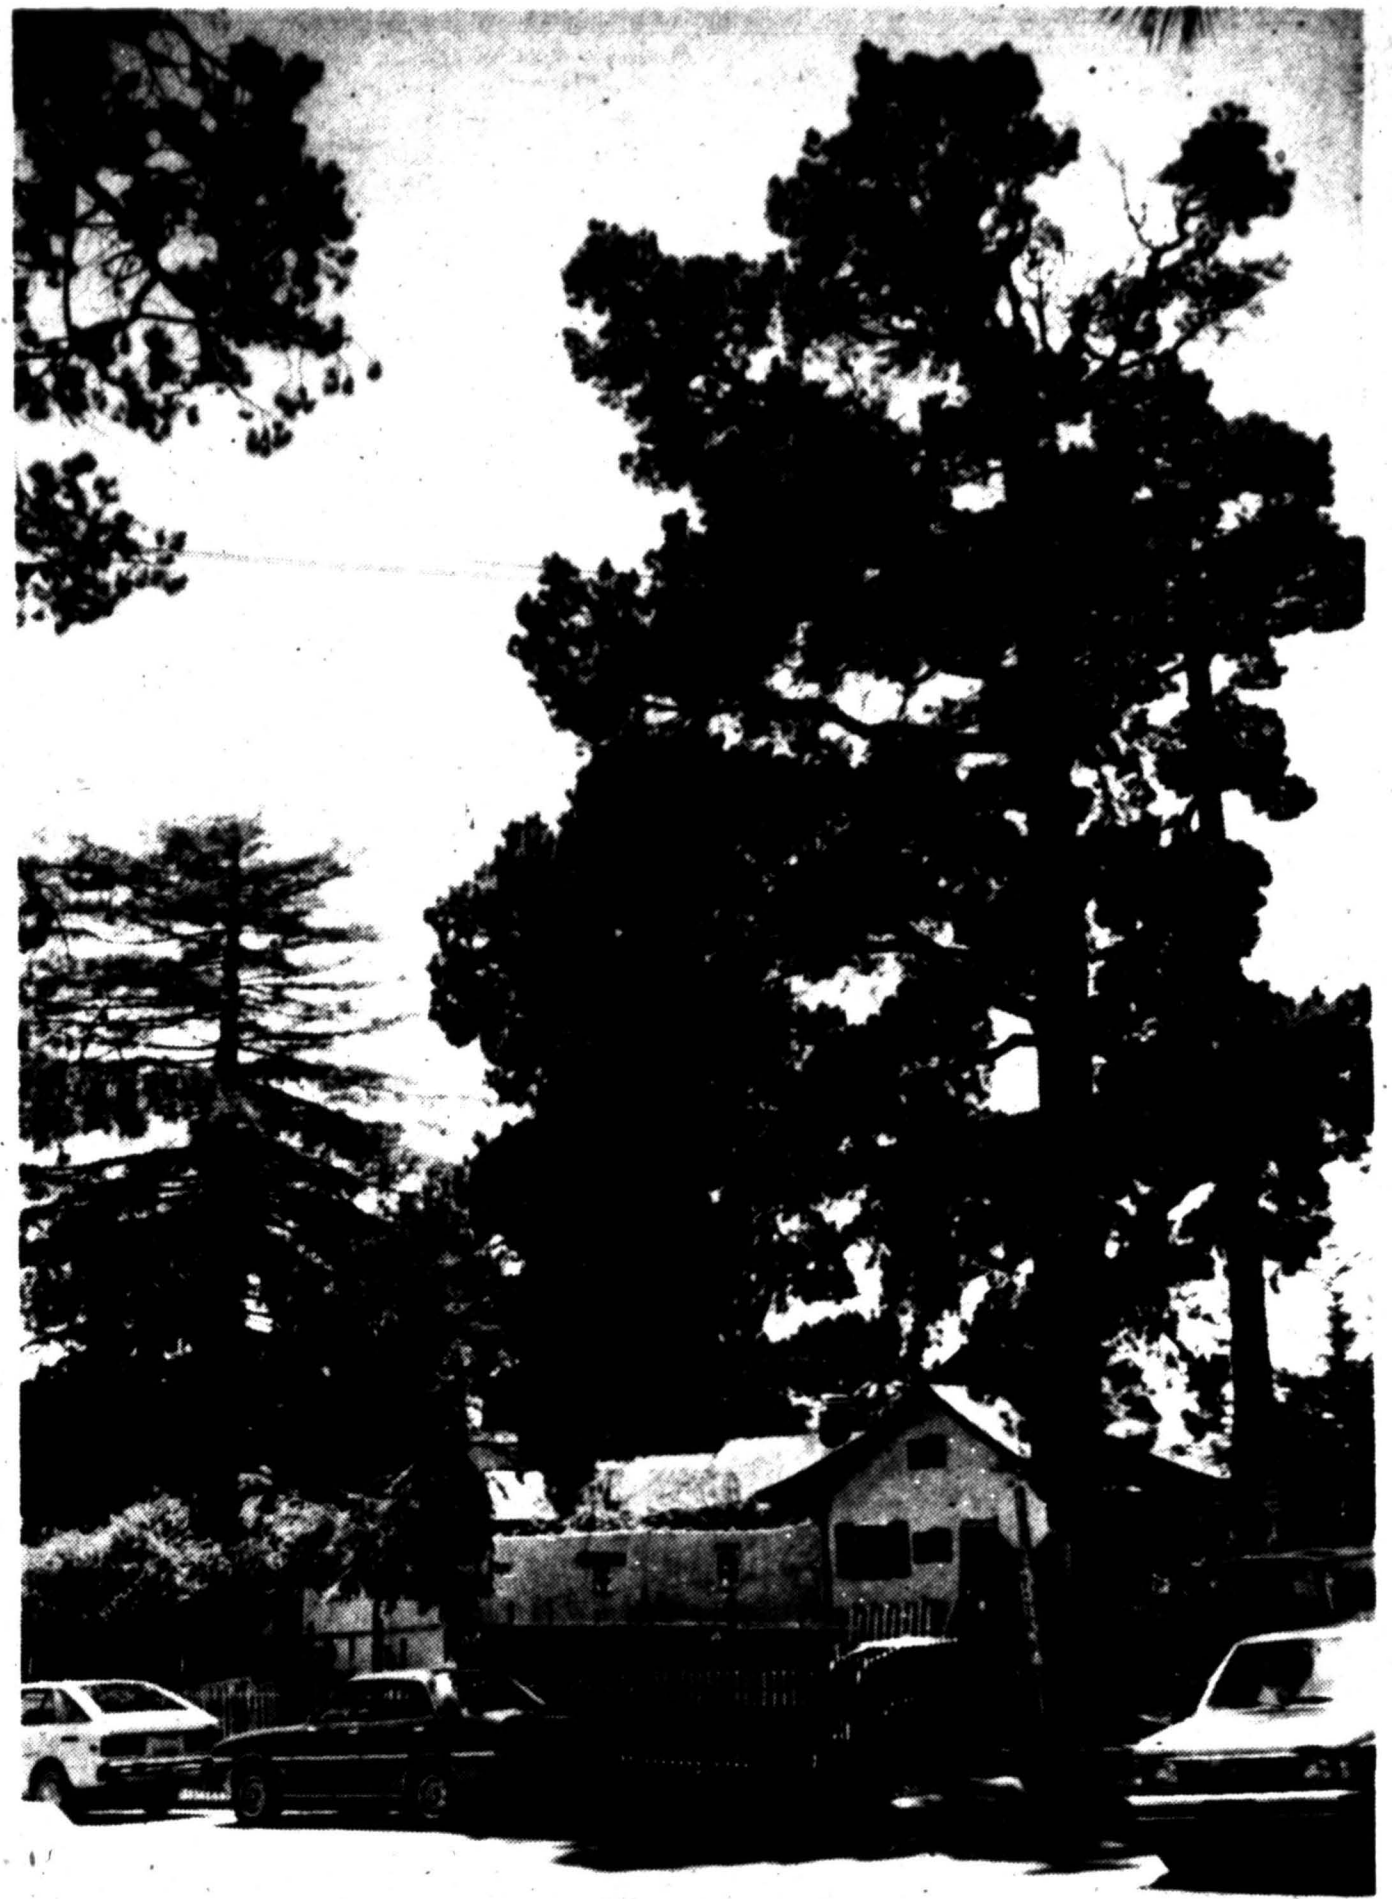

"Trees die, like people. So unless we make provisions to replace them with younger trees like the redwoods, pretty soon we'll have nothing but a bunch of old trees," said Smith.

Asked later if there was any question of favoritism or politics involved because the Neills' father is Carmel city engineer, Smith said "no." "I really never thought about that aspect of it. There was not the slightest questionable thing involved in it," Smith replied.

The trees were inspected by the entire Forestry Commission and City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio.

City Planner Bob Griggs noted that one redwood on the Neill property was saved. Concerning the future removal of trees because of excavation, Griggs pointed out there is not that much undeveloped property left in the downtown area.

He said if the city enacts prohibitive measures regarding excavation for basements and underground parking, it then would have to provide an alternative for parking.

Forester urges prior review of projects affecting trees

By BABS COROVESIS

CITY FORESTER Greg D'Ambrosio this week urged that the Forestry Commission be consulted before the Planning Commission gives design approval for construction projects that could affect nearby trees.

D'Ambrosio said the Forestry Commission presently does not see plans before the Planning Commission receives them.

His remarks came after the removal Monday of two tall Monterey pines on city property. Their root systems extended across private property on Mission and Fifth belonging to Gilbert and Clayton Neill Jr., the site of a new construction project by Neill Engineering.

D'Ambrosio said the tree removal was handled in an orderly process through proper city channels.

"This case simply points out there is a better way to approach the planning process—that is if the city thinks, as I, of course do, that trees are an important part of the character of this community," D'Ambrosio said.

"If that is so, then there should be some form of pre-review process that the city can develop which would put the responsibility of the planning process on the developer to show that there are certain effects that will take place along with the construction."

D'Ambrosio said that, for example, on the Neill Engineering site, the project had already received design approval from the Planning Commission before the Forestry Commission was asked to approve or disallow the removal of the trees.

He added that since the central business district has very little vacant or underdeveloped land, one could expect more and more older buildings to be demolished.

"I am not saying that is wrong. I am saying that it shows the need for a different process at the city level if the city maintains that trees are important," D'Ambrosio added.

D'Ambrosio noted that the issue over trees tends to be a "controversial area" and that at times certain trees have become political issues.

He said he considered the Forestry Commission "about as apolitical as you can get."

Even so, D'Ambrosio said recent events have fostered a problem area the city needs to look at: "underground parking and excavation versus saving trees."

"I personally favor an intermixed forest. At the same time Carmel is one of only three places in the world where pine trees grow COLLECTED steelhead were placed in plastic buckets for sorting after being netted. About 8,000 were collected and then transported to the Los Padres reservoir for release, in an effort to enhance their survival.

Volunteers rescue steelhead from drying river

More than 8,000 young steelhead were collected by the Carmel River Steelhead Association and transported to the Los Padres reservoir upstream during the annual fish rescue Sunday.

Some 30 persons, including members of the association, representatives of the California State Department of Fish and Game, and young volunteers gathered early Sunday at the Mid-Valley Shopping Center and then joined in collecting the small fry from pools along the lower river area.

The fish were trapped in seine-type nets and picked out with dip nets. They were then placed in plastic buckets and sorted out from other species before being placed in a 600-gallon refrigerated tank mounted on a truck.

They were carried to the reservoir by truck for release, in an effort to increase survival of the species.

"A lot of the fish this year were very small," said Rich Hugett, originator of the Steelhead Association and director of the annual project. "They would die in the pools as the river dries up if we didn't do this. They will mature this summer and then go out to sea when the river flows again."

Most of the steelhead were collected near Red Rock in the Mid-Valley area of the Carmel River, and in the Scarlett Road vicinity, Hugett said. Fish and Game personnel were present to test the water in the tank and to offer advice, although the agency isn't convinced of the effectiveness of the operation, Hugett said.

"Fish and Game says a major part of the spawn is above the dam," Hugett explained. "But we know this is beneficial because we got a lot of this year's spawned fish in the lower river. If the runs continue as big as they were this year, we can be more certain that it helps."

The steelhead collection project started in 1975 but was discontinued during the 1976 drought. Some of the collected steelhead will be transported later by the U.S. Forest Service and Fish and Game for release in tributaries feeding the Los Padres reservoir.

Three teams vie for 1st in CV Little League

By MERRY NOLTE

Midway through the second half of the season, Carmel Valley Little League has three teams contending for the top two positions. The Valley's number one and two teams will play Carmel Youth Baseball's top two teams on the Fourth of July.

The Falcons, sponsored by Brown-Spaulding, are undefeated thus far in the second half, with a 4-0 record. In second place with a 4-1 record are the Will's Fargo Tigers. The Lions, sponsored by Carmel Valley Texaco, are in third place, 4-2.

The Kiwanis-sponsored Indians are next with a 1-3 record, followed by the Volunteers, Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Dept., and Wildcats, Round Table Pizza, with 1-4 records.

The first half of the season ended with the Tigers in first place with a 7-0 record. The Lions were in second place, 6-1, and the Falcons third, 4-3. The Volunteers and Wildcats were next, with identical records of two wins, five losses. The Indians were in last place with an 0-7 record.

Leading power hitter for the league is Jimmy Panetta of the Tigers, who has hit three home runs. Other home run hitters are Robber Haler, Wildcats; Paul Lecce, Tigers; and Simon Laguens, Lions.

naturally. And they are the dominant tree of Carmel," he pointed out.

The city forester said he told the Forestry Commission when it met in special session last week to determine the fate of the city trees adjoining the Neill property. "This will be one of the most difficult decisions before you because these trees are some of the best trees in the business district and are very healthy."

He added that while "nobody likes this type of decision, especially the Forestry Commission, trees are a renewable resource. They grow, they live, they die and they are replaced to grow again."

THE PINES were removed Tuesday following the Forestry Commission approval for removal granted June 12 and subsequent posting of the notice for removal.

D'Ambrosio said he was certain the trees could not be saved. He checked them Tuesday morning and said the trees "were turning orange due to the shock of the root system being cut."

He added that "things like this make future things better. You never know what is needed until things first have gone awry," he said.

In the case of the Neill project, D'Ambrosio said, "there was information given to the Planning Commission that any underground structure would jeopardize those trees."

He added that in the last tour of inspection on the construction site a test trench 20 inches deep was dug a long line for a planned basement, and it was found that five major roots were nearby. The matter was held in abeyance by the Forestry Commission pending further excavation. But by then the project had received design approval, D'Ambrosio said. The Neill project was scheduled for final project approval of building and site at the Planning Commission's June 24 meeting (yesterday).

The City Forester said that in the architectural process, surveyors often mark where trees are, rather than architects themselves taking trees into account.

"I think there is a need to educate architects to consider the viewpoint of the Forestry Commission. Otherwise the commission is put in a bind. The Forestry Commission's knowledge could be used early in the pre-planning process where possibly a plan could be designed that meets their client's needs and meets the city's need to preserve trees," D'Ambrosio stressed.

He suggested, for example, that the Forestry Commission be consulted on projects where construction would involve cutting deeper than 14 inches and closer than 20 feet from a tree.

D'Ambrosio said he still feels the Forestry Commission would remain apolitical because "the commission does not look at persons as much as it does trees and their overall value."

Regarding the surrounding area near the Neill Engineering site, D'Ambrosio said the two pines would be replaced with four 48-inch container size coast redwoods. D'Ambrosio said redwoods also replaced some pines across the street five years ago which are now 25 feet tall. In addition, pines are located on the northeast corner of Fifth and on the south side of Fifth. "So in the next 20 years we will have a good deal of pines coming up along with the nearby redwoods," Redwoods grow up to a foot or two a year, the city forester said.

City Engineer Clayton Neill Sr. said the property in Carmel belongs to his sons and that he had no interest in it. He primarily works out of the firm's Monterey office, he said.

Clayton Neill Jr. said the city was adequately apprised about the trees and that the City Forester was informed. He said he did not want the issue to become "a mountain out of a molehill."

Forestry Commission minutes of the commission's Feb. 5 meeting reflect that the trees had three to five-inch roots, in conflict with plans to expand the basement area of the project by four feet. Former Forestry Commissioner Sinclair Kerby-Miller suggested at that time the commission hold off any decision on removal of the trees until further excavation take place.

Kerby-Miller remarked then that "if 50 percent of the roots were cut it could result in death of the trees."

Neill told the commission the pine tree roots cause people to trip on the sidewalk and might create a lawsuit.

Coast Commission to review LCPs

THE PUBLIC will get a chance to comment on the Local Coastal Programs for the Carmel and Big Sur areas in public hearings before the Central Coast Regional Coastal Commission Thursday, June 25 at the Carmel Holiday Inn.

Some citizens are angered because of last-minute changes in the Carmel LCP made by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

Hearings for the Big Sur LCP are scheduled for 1 p.m. and at 7:30 p.m. for the Carmel area LCP.

The public hearings will be held despite an 11th hour move by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors to cancel them and hold them before the State Coastal Commission in San Francisco in July.

The regional commission rejected a request by letter from the Monterey County Board of Supervisors dated June 10 urging the regional agency to transfer the hearings to the state level. The action by regional Coastal Commissioners June 15 was unanimous.

"The board of supervisors of Monterey County requests that the regional Coastal Commission not hold a hearing on the Carmel and Big Sur segments of the LCP for the County of Monterey, but that these hearings be held in their entirety by the state Coastal Commission at the earliest possible

"I don't think the supervisors want as much development as the LCP allows, but they want the Coastal Commission to take the flak for changing it."

date," read a letter over the signature of Monterey County Board of Supervisors Chairman Barbara Shipnuck.

"This board feels the process would be better served by having one cohesive hearing by one body rather than having separate hearings by two different government bodies." Supervisors agreed to send the letter at the suggestion of Fifth District Supervisor

William Peters of Carmel Valley.

THE 12 REGIONAL Coastal Commissions are to dissolve July 1 under provisions of the Coastal Act and all administrative and political functions will then shift to the state Coastal Commission. Six vacancies on the state agency will result.

Those six vacancies will be filled by appointment by the governor, and the speakers of the Senate and Assembly on a rotating basis in the six regions.

Assembly Speaker Willie Brown will appoint a representative from the San Mateo-Santa Cruz-Monterey counties area from nominees provided by local mayors and supervisors.

The state Coastal Commission has scheduled public hearings on the Carmel and Big Sur LCPs for July 7, 8, and 9 in San Francisco, but testimony gathered at the June 25 hearings in Carmel will be forwarded to the state agency, said Ed Brown, executive director of the regional commission.

The state commission may revise the LCPs after hearing further public comment, before the documents are certified back to the counties for inclusion in local general plans, possibly in August, Brown indicated.

Mary Ann Matthews of Carmel Valley, a member of the regional commission, said she was "surprised" that the supervisors would request cancellation of the hearings in Carmel, since "offering an opportunity to the public to comment is what the Coastal Act is all about."

"The supervisors made a great many changes in the Carmel LCP that seriously weakened it in the eyes of many people," Mrs. Matthews said. "It really seems as if they're trying to squash dissent. I don't think the supervisors want as much development as the LCP allows, but they want the Coastal Commission to take the flak for changing it."

"This has happened repeatedly when local governments have granted permits they knew were bad and waited for the Coastal Commission to reverse them. But the Coastal Act is supposed to balance local interests with the public interest along the coast."

SUPERVISOR SHIPNUCK denied that was the motive of the Board of Supervisors in requesting a cancellation of the hearing.

"We know that the hearing will not cover all the issues," she said. "But I can't imagine any supervisor feeling any embarrassment over either the Carmel or the Big Sur LCP. The county plans to make a full presentation at the state level."

Among those objecting to changes in the Carmel area LCP made by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors will be the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association. Jack Sassard, president of the CVPOA, stated some of those objections in a letter to the commission.

"A committee of local citizens prepared detailed recommendations for the Carmel area LCP after carefully consulting with property owners and all interested parties," Sassard wrote. "This committee's recommendations were supported by the Monterey County Planning Commission."

"Subsequently, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors has overturned several elements of that plan and has permitted a substantial increase of tourist-oriented development in the scenic stretch between Point Lobos Reserve and the Carmel River."

The CVPOA expressed its opposition to plans for a 150-room hotel and conference center on the Hudson-Riley Ranch, and to recreational and commercial facilities planned on the Odello Ranch near the Carmel River.

"We urge that the Coastal Commission preserve the viewshed from Point Lobos to the Carmel River in its natural beauty," Sassard said. "We strongly recommend that the additional developments authorized by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors be rejected."

THE NATURAL Resources Subcommittee of the Citizens' Advisory Committee on the Carmel LCP urged changes in seven areas of the LCP, pertaining to the riparian corridor on the Carmel River, water and marine resources, water pollution control, subdivision maps, erosion and sedimentation control, forestry and soil resources, and flood hazards.

In a letter to the Coastal Commission, the group urged that the original language of the Carmel LCP concerning riparian corridors and terrestrial wildlife habitats be restored to what it was prior to changes by the Board of Supervisors.

"The original LCP was amended to allow 'improvements to existing dikes and levees.' Moreover, a sentence was added: 'When land is diked or leveed, the setback shall include only the existing riparian vegetation between the dikes and the river,'" the letter stated.

"We believe this drastic change means that the riparian corridor on one or both sides of the river could be as small as 10 feet, and therefore totally unprotective of flood-resistant flora along the river bank, resting and nesting places for birds along the riparian corridor, and habitat for wildlife. The 150-foot riparian corridor in the original LCP becomes meaningless."

The subcommittee also wants a policy on protection of riparian vegetation and wildlife along the San Jose and Malpaso Creeks to be reinstated: "Adequate quantities of water should be maintained instream or supplies to support natural aquatic and riparian vegetation and wildlife during the driest expected year."

A change in the wording of the LCP should be made to require testing of every proposed lot or parcel in proposed subdivisions for determination of on-site waste disposal system capability, instead of "representative" lots, as is stated in the LCP, the group urged.

The LCP policy on erosion and sedimentation control should state specifically the months of the dry season (May through October) in restricting the grading of slopes steeper than 15 percent to the dry season, according to the subcommittee.

The LCP policy on forestry and soil resources "was drastically changed in a way which we believe would be potentially destructive to natural resources," the group stated. "The non-specific phrase, 'management of timber' was substituted for 'commercial harvesting of trees' and language was adopted to allow timber harvesting in areas specifically defined as 'environmental sensitive habitats,' rather than to ban such harvesting."

Original language of the LCP concerning forestry and soil resources should be restored, the subcommittee recommended. The group also wants specific language pertaining to flood control measures in the lower Carmel Valley floodplain to be inserted:

"Land use development in the lower Carmel Valley floodplain will not be considered until the flood hazard problem is resolved. Where such development proposals will require general plan revisions, such revisions shall be made subsequent to resolution of the overall flood hazard problem."

School board clears first budget hurdle

THE CARMEL Unified School District Board of Education has approved a $6.63 million tentative budget for the 1981-82 fiscal year which includes no cost-of-living increases for either teachers or classified employees.

Negotiations with both groups of employees for requested increases started last week.

Teachers have asked for a 12 percent cost of living increase plus a 3 percent inflation increase for next year, for a total salary hike of 15 percent. Classified employees have asked for a straight 12 percent increase.

Employees got an 8 percent raise last year, and the district may be able to afford some increases this year. Additional revenue has come to the district from interest accounts, state revenue, reimbursement for mandated costs and other sources. And state school finance legislation may further modify the district's financial posture for 1981-82.

Estimated cost to the district of a 12 percent across-the-board pay increase is $600,000, an amount which the district clearly won't be able to afford, said Supt. Bill Rand.

REDUCTIONS in the tentative budget, which reflect decisions made by the board at its June 2 meeting, amount to $118,793. The largest single cut is $39,400 from the custodial budget, which means schools will be cleaned every other day instead of daily.

A reduction of $29,800 in the transportation budget contained in the tentative budget was made possible by shifting some bus routes and by increasing user fees for bus riders. Cost per student for bus transportation to and from school will increase from $25 to $27 per semester, with a maximum fee per family of $135, a $10 increase.

Other reductions in the tentative budget are: $3,602 from substitute teachers' sick leave; $2,149 from budget for substitute teachers' expenses on school business; $3,818 from administrative release funds for substitute teachers; $863 from graduation follow-up; $1,149 from contract with Monterey County Office of Education; $6,400 from the adult school; $31,502 from the liability and property insurance budget through self-insurance.

PASSAGE OF THE state budget last week by the Legislature, with an overall increase of 8 percent in state subsidies to local school districts under AB 777, will not bring any kind of significant financial relief to the Carmel schools, said Supt. Rand.

The district will probably receive less than the 8 percent overall average, because of apportionment formulas reflecting the Serrano-Priest decision limiting state aid to relatively wealthy districts, such as the Carmel Unified School District.

The district had anticipated a 7 percent increase in state funds, Rand said.

Additional income from the state may come to the district for reimbursement of transportation costs, separately from the state aid for operation of instructional programs, under provisions of AB 777. Current transportation costs in the district are approximately $265,000 per year.

'The largest single cut is $39,400 from the custodial budget, which means schools will be cleaned every other day instead of daily.'

The Board of Education is to consider further reductions in the budget at a special meeting scheduled for Tuesday, June 30 at Carmel High School. Other areas under consideration for budget cuts include the food service program, pre-school programs, music, central office clerical staff, and the counseling.

Final shape of the budget may be determined by negotiations with teacher and non-certified employee bargaining units. The board approved a response to both groups' proposals for 1981-82, stating:

"Wages and health and welfare benefits shall be determined through negotiations under the Rodda Act, and within the financial resources available to the district."

The 7% Solution

PROBLEM: Banks and Savings & Loans can legally only pay you 5 1/4 to 5 1/2 % annual interest on passbook savings.

SOLUTION: Monterey Federal Credit Union pays 7% annual dividends on regular share (savings) accounts

Carmel Sanitary District is looking for an Indian

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE CARMEL Sanitary District is looking for an Indian.

The search has nothing to do with meeting affirmative action hiring needs.

The district needs an authentic American Indian to watch over archaeological excavations which are to be made as part of efforts to launch a $13.7 million water reclamation project and sewage interceptor line running from Carmel to Pacific Grove.

That's the latest snag in the district's attempt to implement a project it didn't want to undertake in the first place, but is compelled to do by the State Water Resources Control Board.

The other hitch is the adamant position by the city of Pacific Grove against issuance of a permit to allow the district to make soil borings to test the proposed location of the pipeline along the Southern Pacific right-of-way.

Directors decided at their meeting last Thursday to apply for a permit from Pacific Grove for the test borings, and if they are turned down, to pursue legal action as recommended by district counsel Don Freeman.

But finding an Indian may prove to be just as tough as getting approval from Pacific Grove.

There will have to be some extensive archaeological work," manager Mike Zambory told the board. "We've found an Indian junkyard out there near the pipeline route. We must have an Indian observer there to watch the archaeologist work.

"Our consultant claims he's spent beaucoup dollars and couldn't find an Indian. And after we've paid the money for the in-depth archaeological study, all the artifacts will go elsewhere. There's been a question raised whether the artifacts belong to Pebble Beach, since the site is on their land."

Dick Dowd, consulting engineering for the project with Kennedy-Jenks of San Francisco, said Indian middens containing abalone shells and some type of carved ornament were discovered in the Del Monte Forest adjacent to the area of the proposed pipeline.

"It's a matter of courtesy that the consulting archaeologist have an Indian observer there to tell him what to do, in case a sacred burial ground or some sacred objects are found," Dowd explained. "In the case of this project, we should have someone from the Ohlone Indian tribe, but we haven't been able to find anyone."

Through a woman in San Jose, Dowd contacted two female members of a nomadic Indian tribe, named Wonono and Wansak. He mailed them a contract to serve as Indian observers during the excavation, but the contract was not returned.

DESIGN WORK ON the project is proceeding while the search for an Indian observer continues. If any Indian objects of significance are discovered later, mitigation measures—including moving the route of the pipeline—may be required, Dowd explained.

Directors shook their heads over the Indian dilemma, and over the Pacific Grove obstacle. In a recent letter to the Carmel Sanitary District, Pacific Grove City Atty. Ted Morris threatened the arrest of anyone attempting to make soil borings in that city.

"I think this letter is rather insulting," Zambory said. "For a lawyer to threaten a governmental agency is ridiculous."

Freeman advised the directors to apply for an encroachment permit from the city of Pacific Grove.

"If we're turned down, then we'll proceed with our next action, which would be a complaint for declaratory relief," Freeman said.

The district has undertaken the water reclamation project in response to a directive from the State Water Resources Control Board to cease discharge into the Carmel Bay which has been designated an Area of Special Biological Significance.

Once the project is completed, tertiary-treated effluent would be pumped through the Carmel-to-Pacific Grove pipeline.

Some of the treated effluent from the Carmel plant would be used for golf course irrigation and the remainder would be mixed with raw sewage for disposal through the Monterey Regional County Sanitation District facilities.

IN OTHER ACTION, the district:

- Agreed to provide staff support for a $30,000 study of Carmel Valley wastewater being undertaken jointly by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, but not to help pay for the study at this time.

- Authorized legal counsel to increase the interest rate on $1.4 million in revenue bonds approved by voters in 1970, from 7 percent to as high as 10 percent, to facilitate their sale.

- Declared its intention to buy administrative office facilities, subject to conditions approved by the board.

- Approved a budget of $5.3 million for the 1981-82 fiscal year with no increase in monthly service charges to residences. Fees will remain at $6 per month.

- Learned that a call for bids for modification of outfall ports on the district ocean outfall line will be issued in September.

MISSION RANCH BRUNCH A SMASHING SUCCESS

SUNSHINE AND A festive atmosphere greeted the 100 or so invited guests who were treated like royalty at Mission Ranch's first "Sunday Brunch Dress Rehearsal."

General manager Don Hamilton welcomed guests, as did Bob Canon, whose magnificent "food crew" had been hard at work since 6 that morning.

The patio area was gaily decorated with fresh flowers and red tablecloths, so many of the group were tempted to enjoy their brunch under the sun while others hob-nobbed inside or crowded up to the bar.

Since this event was a trial run to see if the menu was extraordinary, a count was taken and the results were: Eggs Benedict and Oysters Benedict devoured by 51 percent of the crowd. The next big favorite was the Oyster Fritters Fitzpatrick (a creation from good old Joe Fitzpatrick who probably won't brag about it in his column—but if a night person like myself can feast on oysters, even before my morning coffee, anyone can). They were delicious and so were the next two leading dishes—Crab Crepe Quiche and Scotch Eggs!

Both Don and Bob were moving like the wind—cleaning tables, serving cocktails, shaking hands—and smiling all the way.

Also doing track time was Ray Robinson, who scooted about on roller skates while serving drinks. Ray (and his tray) took a couple of spills—but the fault goes to the big crack in the patio and not to Ray's maneuverability.

Don said he was delighted with the smoothness of the affair, and also that he's talking with Kim Novak Malloy about opening an exercise studio at the Ranch. And according to Paul Lippman, another big plan which is in the "talking stage" with Mission Ranch president Rolf Stolesen has to do with bringing polo and a full equestrian complex to the Ranch.

Rolf was there with his lovely wife, Dr. Kay, and the couple shared a table with Dr. Ralph and Marilyn Spiegl of Portola Valley and Big Sur.

Malcolm and Jody (who's expecting) Moran were in great spirits and made the rounds, chatting with Jenny Jones, and Lisa Bryan Day and her brother, Don Bryan, a famous ventriloquist who is visiting from Vancouver BC.

Jenny, a long-time friend of Clint Eastwood, confirmed the rumor that he's now in Norway filming his new movie, For Fire.

Lisa, looking tan and lovely, said that she had just returned from a three-day trip to Solvang and Santa Ynez, where she

The "Gemini Gala" was held at Ann's home, and guests gathered for sipping, supping and much toasting in honor of the birthday gals.

Dr. Harry and Mildred Lancaster were there, as were Earl and Kay Power and Joe and Charlene Ramey.

Ann's son Don Nyman arrived with his fiancée, Julie Heatherington. These two had celebrated in a big way the previous night but they still managed to keep everyone's champagne glasses filled to the brim.

Myrtle Griffin had a delightful time and credited her good spirits to the gold boots she was wearing. She and Belmont Squire had a long conversation on how to solve the problems of the world.

Florence Kane had to make the scene alone, as her husband Mike is spending a few days in the hospital at Fort Ord.

Anne's other son, Jeff, who lives back east, couldn't attend but did send his mom a huge bouquet of red roses. Ann's own garden is a sight to behold with roses almost as large as dinner plates and lemon trees absolutely loaded with the tangy fruit.

Along with hors d'oeuvres and dips and chips, guests were treated to a sumptuous buffet dinner which included shrimp, ham, turkey and a variety of hot dishes.

MONTEREY PENINSULA MUSEUM OF ART ASSOCIATION GETS NEW SKIPPER

THOMAS J. LOGAN, new director of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art Association, is arriving at the end of this month after winding up his duties as Associate Curator in the Egyptian Department of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. He also teaches at Seton Hall and at New York universities.

Museum president George J. Faul said that Mr. Logan comes to us with the glowing recommendations of distinguished colleagues and was chosen by the search committee from among more than 50 applicants.

"His training as a scholar, his administrative experience and his interest in education will stand him in good stead here," said Mr. Faul.

Mr. Logan was born in San Francisco and his grandfather was a notable Monterey Peninsula artist. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Logan, live in Carmel.

Mr. Logan is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and a University of Chicago doctoral candidate. While pursuing his academic work he received many honors. Currently, he has four articles and a book in preparation.

CAMPUS-RUSH INFORMATION PARTY SLATED

IT'S "RUSH" time again!

Members of the Monterey Bay Alumnae Panhellenic, representing seventeen national sororities, will give their annual Campus and Sorority Information Party at the Old Whaling Station at Heritage Harbor on Sunday, June 28 from 2 to 4 p.m. All Monterey county girls who are going on to a four-year college this fall are invited.

Active sorority collegians from the Peninsula area will act as hostesses. Heading the planning committee are Laurie Bajuk, Gail Harrison and Laura Curtiss, all sorority collegians from UCLA.

Special features of the event will include a wealth of information on 20 western colleges and universities, and a campus fashion show with college girls modeling. Commentator for the show will be Mrs. James C. Harrison.

Mrs. Donald Bajuk is chairman of the Panhellenic committee that is arranging the event. She will be assisted by Panhellenic president Mrs. Maurice Castle, Mrs. George Toole, Penny Carpenter, Carol Kolb, Patti Bradshaw, Mrs. Walter Burde, Mrs. John L. Strong, Mrs. Robert Doerr, Mrs. Frank B. Herald, Mrs. Lloyd Clapper, Mrs. W. H. Carr and Mrs. Eric Seastrand.

All Monterey county high school senior girls and those at Monterey Peninsula College who plan to attend a university this fall are urged to contact their respective high school counseling or career center offices for more information on the June 28 event. Information flyers and copies of Thinking Greek, an information booklet, have been distributed to all high schools in Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Salinas, Seaside and Pebble Beach.

Transient rental ordinance court hearing is re-scheduled

The initial court hearing between the city of Carmel and 39 owners of rental property in Carmel who oppose the city's new transient rental ordinance was postponed for a second time last week.

The hearing now is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Friday, June 26 in Salinas before Superior Court Judge Nat A. Agliano. Last week's postponement was granted due to a family emergency by City Attorney George Grehmer.

Plaintiffs, who live elsewhere in California but own residential property in Carmel, charge that the ordinance banning rentals of less than 30 days is unconstitutional and a violation of right of privacy.

The ordinance, enacted in January and in effect May 1, makes violation a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $500 and/or six months in jail.

The property owners request a temporary restraining order and subsequent permanent injunction to keep the city from enforcing its ordinance.

The city maintains that the ordinance was necessary to "preserve and enhance the residential character of the city." The ordinance also states that uncontrolled transient use of residential housing units will "severely damage the character of the city by increasing disproportionately the amount of area devoted to visitors, as opposed to residents."

Supervisors to discuss fire district 'bailout' funds

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors will discuss granting "bailout" funds to county fire districts at 10:15 a.m., Tuesday, June 30 at the courthouse in Salinas.

Affected by the decision will be several county fire districts serving unincorporated areas that face potential cutbacks in services because of the failure June 2 of user fee elections.

The Carmel Highlands Fire District anticipates county "bailout" funds in the amount of $29,000, but even with those funds the district will suffer a revenue shortfall of $35,000 for 1981-82. Without county help, the district could be short as much as $62,700. Donations from district residents are being solicited to offset the losses.

And in County Service Area 43, which provides fire protection to unincorporated areas of Carmel and the mouth of the Valley, "bailout" funds of $38,390 are anticipated, as compared with augmentation funds from the county last year of $51,750.

CSA 43 plans to staff the Rio Road fire station with three men and one fire engine until October, and then to replace one regular staff firefighter with volunteer help because of the failure of the user fee measure.

Supervisors will also hold a public hearing at 1:30 p.m. on the public works department's proposal to install left-turn lanes on Carmel Valley Road at Valley Greens Drive and Schulte Road, and a private driveway serving St. Philip's Lutheran Church.

The project would also include installation of eight-foot wide shoulders on Carmel Valley Road to be used for bicycle paths. Once completed, the project would become part of a total 4.5-mile bike path from Carmel Rancho Boulevard to Los Arboles Road along Carmel Valley Road.

At 2 p.m., supervisors will hold a hearing on environmental effects of a proposal by the Carmel Point Conservancy to reconstruct a public stairway at the Carmel River State Park, with a timber barricade and installation of native plants for erosion control.

The public works department says the project will have no adverse environmental effects and has recommended that the board adopt a negative declaration.

Meetings of the Board of Supervisors are open to the public.

Paul Woudenberg with Dr. Albert Schweitzer in 1959

Revealing the intimate side of Dr. Schweitzer

"Our human atmosphere is much colder than it need be, because we do not venture to give ourselves to others as heartily as our feelings bid us."

Albert Schweitzer

HISTORY VERIFIES that Albert Schweitzer, one of the great thinkers and humanitarians of our time, did give of himself.

"He had four doctor's degrees (music, Bible, medicine, and theology), and he spent his entire life using his knowledge for the benefit of mankind," said Dr. Paul R. Woudenberg. "He could also be a very funny man—very humorous. It was a joy to have known him."

Dr. Woudenberg, pastor of the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel, recently returned home after a nine-month sabbatical which he spent researching and writing a book on Albert Schweitzer.

While studying for the seminary, Dr. Woudenberg became interested in Schweitzer's life and later did his dissertation on him. Then in 1959 he traveled to Africa to visit Schweitzer at the Albert Schweitzer Hospital at Lambarene in the French Gabon.

"It was sheer curiosity that took me to Africa," said Dr. Woudenberg. "Schweitzer was 84 years old then and I very much wanted to meet the man."

Dr. Woudenberg wanted to ask Schweitzer about a book he was writing and, knowing that he would only have a short time with the man he so much admired, he had a list of questions ready.

"I wanted to learn all I could so I was shooting rapid-fire questions at him," said Dr. Woudenberg. "He answered cleanly, sharply, and very kindly and he was very patient with me. When we finished and I thanked him, he said, 'Did I pass my examination?'"

Dr. Woudenberg visited Schweitzer at the hospital again in 1962.

TO RESEARCH HIS book, Dr. Woudenberg and his wife Emily and the couple's two daughters, Mary, 10, and Betsy, 8, traveled to Gumsbach, France, Schweitzer's home.

The children were enrolled in a French public school and Emily, who is a reference librarian at Harrison Memorial Library, began going through the Schweitzer archives.

"I was particularly interested in Schweitzer's marriage, his motives and early decisions and some of the peculiarities of his theological position," said Dr. Woudenberg; he was also interested in the reaction of the church and theologians to Schweitzer's writings.

"I was more interested in his personal relationships than his work as a theologian. I wanted to know how he handled people, managed the hospital, worked in his family and with his immediate personnel and peers."

THE WOUDEBERGS were provided with a home in Gumsbach by nurse Ali Silver, the key executive officer at the Schweitzer hospital during the last nine years of Schweitzer's life.

"Her very close relationship with Schweitzer made her a valuable source of information," explained Dr. Woudenberg. "She was the beginning of my research. I interviewed her extensively before going on to other people who knew Schweitzer well."

"Many of these eye-witnesses were very old, so I knew that sooner or later they would be gone." Many of those Dr. Woudenberg interviewed were over 80 years old, including a 95-year-old woman who had attended Schweitzer's wedding.

"I knew that if those memories weren't recorded now they would be gone forever," he said.

Schweitzer married in 1912; his wife died in 1957. The couple had one daughter, Rhena, and four grandchildren. Three of the grandchildren live in Europe and one in California. Dr. Woudenberg interviewed two of the grandchildren and Rhena, whom he plans to see again soon.

DR. WOUDEBERG considered his wife's project in Gumsbach very valuable. He explained that she is highly trained in the field of preservation and catalogued more than 6000 archives, which are kept in the home Schweitzer built in 1929.

"Many of the photographs were just thrown in huge boxes," said Dr. Woudenberg. "Emily organized them into a system and put them into acid-free envelopes so that their long life is assured. It was an important service because the pictures are now safe."

The never-before published photographs which were loaned to Dr. Woudenberg for his book include one taken with his future wife in 1903. There is also one of Schweitzer's wedding (1912), another showing his arrival in Africa (1913) and a baptismal photograph of Rhena.

LIFE IN FRANCE was totally different from life in the United States. Dr. Woudenberg and his family lived in a small village with few modern conveniences, not even the telephone or television—which, he said, "can be a blessing."

"We gained a certain, simple regimen that is common to the area," he explained. "The daily life of the people is very systematic and that's very relaxing. The people do certain things like going to the market for fresh bread and vegetables each morning and taking a walk in the afternoon."

Dr. Woudenberg discussed his children and their efforts to adjust to the French school. "They were terrified at first," he said. "They couldn't speak French so they had a hard time communicating—but they learned. By the time we left Mary was writing essays in French and doing quite well."

Dr. Woudenberg said that the village people were very friendly and that friendship was most obvious in the day-long party given for Mary and Betsy the day before they left.

WITH THE FIRST draft of his book now finished, Dr. Woudenberg reflected on his accomplishment. "The trouble with writing a book such as this one is that you open one door only to discover there are so many other doors. You have to decide just how far to go and when to stop. There's always something out there you should have done and that's how I'm feeling now. I could go back and spend another nine months and write a longer book—but that would be fruitless unless you have a lifetime to devote to one project."

Dr. Woudenberg said that he is very grateful to his church for allowing him the time away. "They were very gracious," he said, adding that he was most grateful to his associate pastor Charles Anker, and his long-time friend Dr. Winston Trever, who helped at the church during his absence.

Many books have been written about Schweitzer but Dr. Woudenberg feels that his offers something new and fresh. "I want it to be germane to the man and his understanding for the future," he said.

Summing up his feelings about Schweitzer, who died in 1965 at the age of 90, Dr. Woudenberg said, "He was remarkable. I'm hoping that my book will show the intimate side of the man."

And according to Dr. Woudenberg, Intimate Memoir of Albert Schweitzer just may be the title of his book.

County to share costs of water study

Monterey County will share the $30,000 price tag for a study of ground water pollution in Carmel Valley with the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

Supervisors decided by unanimous vote Tuesday, June 16 to split the costs and benefits of a study intended to determine how many septic systems can be installed in the Valley without degrading water quality.

Results of the study could play a major role in determining the extent and type of development that will be allowed in the Valley. County health officials are opposed to further extensive use of septic tank systems, and pollutants from septic tanks have been measured in samples of Valley water.

"The county already has done two studies on this, one of them a joint study with the Carmel Sanitary District," public works director Bruce McClain told supervisors. "We're trying to avoid getting more septic tank effluent than we can handle."

"My concern is nitrate contamination," environmental sanitarian Walter Wong explained. "We need to know how many septic tanks you can put in."

Fifth District Supervisor William Peters said there are concerns about Valley development generated by the Carmel Valley Master Plan environmental impact report that need to be addressed.

"A new set of issues has emerged that need to be studied," Peters said. "This could be done to enhance the EIR. One of the main land use concepts is clustered development."

WHERE THE MONEY COMES FROM ...

(Preliminary budget 1981-82)

... WHERE THE MONEY GOES

City fathers grapple with budget

By BABS COROVESIS

REPRESENTATIVES of the Scenic Property Owners Association don't like the proposed $875,240 budget of the Carmel Police Department for fiscal 1981-82 because it does not provide for additional personnel.

Three representatives of the group appeared at the second budget session of the City Council, Thursday, June 18 at Carpenter Hall in Sunset Center when the council reviewed the proposed $4.3 million.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stimson said that at present the Carmel Police Department "only has two officers on patrol at all times." She said in behalf of the Association and its 50 members, she objected that no increase in personnel is provided for.

"With the addition of narcotics problems and increased crime, we do not want more equipment for the Police Department, we want more protection. We need it," Mrs. Stimson said.

Her remarks came after Police Chief Bill Ellis outlined details of his budget request, which he said called for 28½ fulltime personnel, maintaining the "same level of staff" as in the past year.

City Administrator Doug Peterson pointed out that the police have experienced "some dilution in services because they were hard hit by workman's compensation cases." Peterson said such cases are long, involved legal processes, but that two of the cases "are near conclusion." He added that those police positions will then be filled, probably within two months.

Under state law persons must be retained

'With the addition of narcotics problems and increased crime, we do not want more equipment for the Police Department, we want more protection. We need it.'

at full salary while workmen's compensation cases are being settled, Peterson indicated.

CHIEF ELLIS noted that the $26,500 allocated in the budget for overtime provided some utilization for extra staff, but was primarily for unusual periods such as July 4 or Easter vacation when greater influx of crowds require more on-duty personnel.

Ellis outlined to the City Council his request for several capital improvements, totaling $49,100. They include a copy machine for $3,500; a shredder for $600, and new police vehicles for $45,000.

Another budget item that brought attention was $18,050 for a computer data bank for law enforcement to be tied into the criminal justice network. Peterson stressed that a complete communication system "is the life blood of a police department."

Ellis added that the computer was important because "police work is communication/information."

Another line item in the capital improvements budget was $28,260 for exterior and interior painting of the police and public works departments, and $4,000 for expansion of the communications room at the police station.

Mayor Barney Laiolo had some reservations about painting the station and expand city hall when initially "city hall was to be all in one place when we started to do it."

Laiolo said he could not see investing $45,000 "and not have anything but more cubby holes."

However, Ellis said the expansion of the communications room would provide the needed space "for a good many years."

ROBERTA WATSON, treasurer of the Scenic Property Owners Association, told the Council: "We are requesting an additional policeman on duty. Remember, we are right at the scene of some very unhappy events."

Mrs. Stimson said she had been burglarized several weeks ago and that the police department badly needed a detective in addition to its regular police force. "We need a detective to cope with narcotics on Scenic or one officer to do just narcotics work," she added.

She added that large gatherings on Scenic start as early as 4 p.m. "At noon today you couldn't find a place to park."

Gordon Stimson said the problem included speeding and garbage problems. "I picked up 36 bottles in the front of my own house this morning," he added.

All three Scenic residents said they had no criticism of police staff, but simply want more hired.

Councilman Howard Brunn noted that the city has budgeted $25,000 for construction of the beach walkway which is favored by Scenic residents because it will eliminate parking in some areas and provide a safe path for walkers and joggers. "That will help," he added.

However, Brunn added: "we are never going to solve all the problems on Scenic. Even 45 years ago we had mini-problems there. So the people on Scenic have to adjust to a little of it. Perhaps there is more the city can do."

Councilman Mike Brown suggested the police have one officer walking the beat on Scenic. "Over a year's time we'll get some fine results." Brown then asked Chief Ellis, "Are we stretched so thin that we can't have one man do that?"

Mayor Lajolo interjected that "maybe we should not put $45,000 into cars but have some patrolmen out and park those (police) cars on Scenic."

Brunn added that Carmel has 5,000 residents and the city cannot maintain police coverage on Scenic for 50 people.

Mrs. Watson replied: "We want to protect it not for the 50 but for the 5,000 and the 200,000 visitors who pass by."

Due to time constraints, the discussion on the issue ended.

The third, and apparently final, budget session will be Monday, June 29 at 4 p.m. in City Hall.

BEFORE PRESENTATION of the Police Department budget, the City Council went into detail on the Sunset Center budget of $178,665.

Peterson reminded the council to consider that Sunset operates as an "18-hour-a-day facility."

Capital outlay projects for the community and cultural department include a $5,500 computer which will make subscriptions, mailing lists and theater seating more efficient, according to Richard Tyler, director of Sunset Center.

Eventually, other organizations, such as the Bach Festival or Monterey County Symphony, could rent time on the computer for similar uses.

The budget also lists approximately $100,000 in various improvements at Sunset. However, Peterson noted that some probably will be eliminated and postponed for a year. The list includes $9,000 for lighting and a theater scrim. A vault storage for valuable art works will cost $15,000, as will a winch system.

Peterson recommended $4,800 worth of drapes, $650 for directory boards, $600 for drinking fountains, $7,500 for insulation.

A planned $47,100 allocated for exterior painting of Sunset Center will apparently be eliminated from the budget.

However, a proposed youth recreation program that coordinates city funds with facilities of Carmel Unified School District, is expected to be presented at the end of June and may utilize those same funds.

Definitely on the construction project list is resurfacing of the parking lot located at the north end of Sunset Center. The resurfacing "will be done sometime this summer out of maintenance funds," Peterson said.

Reviewing the Fire Department budget, Peterson noted he heard "glowing reports on the administration of Chief Robert Updike and staff and statistics on the department's response time to calls."

The chief presented a capital outlay of $69,000 he said would be needed to re-power and revamp a 1963 fire engine. The work will put the truck out of commission for six months, during which time the department would call for mutual aid in the case of a major fire.

Total budget for the Fire Department is $366,755; Updike said.

Remaining items to be considered at the final budget session are the library, grants, building maintenance, forestry, streets and shops, planning, finance, administration, treasurer, engineering, legal and city council.

'He added that he saw the high level of overtime parking fines as our failure to provide realistic parking or a transportation system for the city.'

During its first budget session Tuesday, June 16, the Council set a $24,750 limit on funds to community service organizations.

QUESTIONS BY council members were at a minimum while the city administrator outlined the proposed $4.3 million budget expenditures and estimated revenues for the upcoming fiscal year.

In an evening session, the Council heard comments, limited to three minutes each, from 17 community organizations requesting funds. Last year the Council granted the organizations $16,000.

The Council took no action on the grant requests, but took the matter under advisement.

Actual dollar amount of the total preliminary budget proposed was $4,315,845, which represents a 4.2 percent increase over last year's $4,142,740 budget. That is an increase of $173,105.

At the budget sessions, the Council will go over the expenditure side of the budget, trimming or adding to various categories and departments.

Peterson noted that there was ample latitude in the budget because of a sizeable capital improvements section totalling $864,225. That could be altered easily, he said. For example, a proposal for a $40,000 exterior paint job on Sunset Center could be deferred and the city do "a touch-up job" this next year.

Without capital improvements, Peterson pointed out that the total operating costs of city government is $3.2 million.

CAPITAL improvements still make up the major budgetary item with a proposed $864,225 total, a decrease of 8.7 percent from last year's capital improvements budget.

Proposals for the 1981-82 fiscal year include remodeling of city hall, $65,000; alteration of the sound system and new chairs for city council, $7,500; ten categories of additions and alterations (interior and exterior) to Sunset Center (detailed elsewhere).

That portion of the budget also includes painting of civic center (city facilities on Junipero, inside and outside, $28,260; and expansion of the police communications room, $4,000.

In public works, major expenditures will include street improvements, $250,000; landscaping the north side of Ocean Avenue, $50,000; construction of the beach walkway on Scenic, $25,000; expansion of the public works offices, $7,500; foot bridges at Forest Hill Park, $800; lawn renovation at Devendorf Park, $3,500; Ocean Avenue irrigation, $2,000; tennis court resurfacing, $4,700; toilet replacement, $3,500.

Final capital improvements proposals are library restrooms, $40,000; parking facility in the library annex (from in-lieu parking funds) $197,000; and Piccadilly Park development, $75,000.

The city receives an estimated $1,182,000 from the eight percent hotel/motel tax, or 28 percent of the city's revenues. The other major item is the one percent the city receives from California's six percent sales tax. This nets Carmel $1,120,000 annually.

The city property tax will raise $340,000. From in-lieu parking the city expects to receive $174,000, but Peterson noted those funds are earmarked for providing parking alternatives.

Parking fines will bring in an estimated $220,000 in the coming year. Peterson said that was a sizeable increase over the estimated $130,000 to $150,000 for this year. He said it was due to the fact that the fines had been raised from $3 to $5 and the city had hired an additional parking officer.

"Our interest is not in revenues for the city as much as having an aggressive traffic circulation and deterrent to overtime parking by having a realistic fine," Peterson said.

He added that he saw the high level of overtime parking fines as "our failure to provide realistic parking or a transportation system for the city."

Peterson said the new budget proposes the hiring of only one new city worker—a maintenance person handling carpentry, painting and a variety of tasks.

The budget left out two items, which Peterson would present by Thursday, June 25. One was a recreation program, which he said was still being negotiated through talks with the school district, and another item in capital outlay of $20,000 for improvements at Forest Theater.

Councilman Howard Brunn noted that he was impressed that "the hostelry tax has doubled in five years. That is an astounding figure."

Although Brunn said it was not due to inflation, Peterson noted it was a kind of inflation—an inflation in hotel/motel room rates rising from $30 a night to $50 a night or more.

Brunn also commented on the "readability and workmanship of the printed budget." He commended City Finance Director Jim Bajari and Peterson and "who all helped with it."

More new art galleries coming to Carmel

By FLORENCE MASON

And still they come...new art galleries in our city. One of Carmel's newest, the Pasquale Iannetti Gallery in McFarland Center (Sixth and Mission), is an offshoot from a long-established San Francisco gallery. The director, Anne Martin, is herself a fugitive from life in the big city.

This is the first separately-established gallery for Italian-born Iannetti. Listed in Who's Who in American Art, Iannetti studied in Florence and at the University of Minnesota. Before founding his gallery in San Francisco, he was the West Coast director of London Arts, and then co-founder of a New York firm that specialized in publishing contemporary artists. He has made a number of television and radio broadcasts on collecting fine prints and on art forgeries and thefts.

In his San Francisco gallery, and now in the new Carmel location, the emphasis is on original prints, painting and sculpture, from the 16th century to the present. Artists represented in the local gallery include Lautrec, Chagall, Rouault, Picasso, Zuniga, Whistler, Rembrandt, Daumier, Kollwitz and Cheret. At present, the most interesting pieces of sculpture are some ceramics by Picasso; there is more sculpture to come.

Gallery director Anne Martin has a degree in art from the University of Puget Sound and worked for a gallery in Seattle. However, her most recent experience was as assistant manager for fine apparel at I. Magnin's in San Francisco. She is keeping her hand in that field by teaching a fashion class, "Dressing for Success," at Monterey Peninsula College. Living in Carmel Woods, she delights in the choice she made in coming to Carmel and renewing her interest in art.

Two well-known localities are combining their talents and opening an office for phototypesetting, graphics, design and publishing. They are Sioux Scott and Roberta Little.

The Carmel Typesetters is on the east side of Lincoln between Seventh and Eighth. It's "a little white house" that may be surprised to find itself housing the special equipment that will help the young entrepreneurs turn out their product. That is computerized phototypesetting, and if they aren't open for business by the time this article appears, it will only be because the equipment didn't get here on time. Sioux Scott, with an extensive background in advertising sales (following an exciting career as an entertainer), and Roberta Little, equally experienced in production, have been ready to go for several weeks.

Hospitable, gregarious Sioux Scott said, "We'd love to have you come and see us." The remark was directed to Building Inspector Ron Warren, at the Business License and Code Review Board meeting, when the subject of proper electrical outlets for the new equipment came up. But it sounded as though she meant all of Carmel—or at least those with needs typographical.

While we are on the subject of new businesses: how about a store that has a heart on its sleeve, and almost everywhere else? That would be Heart of Carmel, which opened last weekend in the Paradise mall, Ocean and Dolores.

There are canvas accessories here, including bags for women and children, and visors; also gifts such as mobiles and wind chimes. A novel item is shoe laces—but not what you would expect in that usually prosaic article. These shoe laces have pictures and patterns on them, including teddy bears, rainbows and hearts. It's all done by a special process developed in the east.

There are a few items at Heart of Carmel that don't include a heart in some size or form, but not many. The owners who delight so much in hearts are sisters, Jacqueline Kennedy and Marilyn Schwartz. The latter lives in Sunnyvale; it is Jackie Kennedy who is on the scene now. She, however, is a school teacher in Pacific Grove, so when school starts again in the fall she plans to hire a local person to manage the store.

Mrs. Kennedy, whose husband Bill is a detective in the Pacific Grove police department, has lived in Carmel for ten years. It's the first time she has owned a shop. Her excitement about that was evident, as it was also when she talked about another interest—the Cypress Community Church. This group, which now meets in the Monterey Elks Lodge, will soon begin constructing a building of its own out on Highway 68. Mrs. Kennedy is director of women's ministries for the church and also sings in the choir. Her two favorite projects are making 1981 very special.

During the hearing about Mrs. Kennedy's new business license, Building Inspector Ron Warren took himself out of the Business License and Code Review Board meeting. No, it wasn't a conflict of interest that led to his withdrawal. What he said by way of explanation was that he was "gun-shy" on the issue of the Paradise mall and its subdivision into a number of small shops. In this particular case there wasn't any problem, because Heart of Carmel is on the east side of the building; there isn't any dispute about the divisions on that side because the necessary permits were issued before the city came up with an "urgent" ordinance against such subdivisions of larger stores. What is permissible on the west side is still under debate in the courts.

Although a formal vote was not taken at the June 11 board meeting, the members seemed to be in agreement with City Attorney George Brehmer's suggestion that individual licenses for Paradise should "pin down" the exact location of the shop; before the issue became heated, this had not been required. Brehmer's point was that it might be possible for the board to issue too many licenses for the approved spaces on Kids' Stuff, which opened earlier this year in Carmel Valley Village, has already expanded! And it has moved, for the greater convenience of its clientele, primarily pregnant women and mothers accompanied by small children.

The store, which recycles children's clothing, toys, furniture and equipment, was first located upstairs at 9 Del Fino in the Plaza Linda Building. Now it is in larger quarters downstairs, where customers can come in right off the street: no more stairs, and parking right out front.

Cathy Hendricks is now the sole owner, as her original partner, Reda Rackley, decided to devote herself to caring for some newly acquired Valley acreage.

Is business good? "Well," said Mrs. Hendricks, "Everyone says there's a need for this. What we need most is good used baby furniture to sell, and now we have room for it!" Her goal is to establish a reputation for having quality furniture as well as the clothes and toys that people expect to find there. Mrs. Hendricks isn't sure everyone realizes that in order to offer used items for sale, she has to buy them first: "I buy everything!"

If you had the impression that there are a large number of jewelers and jewelry stores in Carmel, you are right. Thirty-five jewelers showed up for the very first meeting of a new organization, the Jewelers Association of Carmel.

They met on June 11 at the Carmel Art Association and, according to instigator Rebecca Goodrich, they see their own group becoming something like the art association, perhaps even to having their own retail outlet some day.

For the present they are coming together "for an awareness of each other, to work together, to help keep costs down by buying gold as a group," according to Ms. Goodrich. "It's a jewelers' community," she added.

Ms. Goodrich has been in the jewelry business for 12 years—in Palo Alto, San Jose and for the last five years in Carmel. Her workshop is upstairs in the Doud Arcade and she sells her jewelry through Studio 7 at the same location. Before that, she specialized in selling sterling silver and gold hair combs throughout the country. She settled down here because there was too much travel involved in that work, and for an even more important reason: "I'm primarily a designer and I had lost the freedom to create."

Artist-cartoonist Bill Bates is turned on by "the uniqueness of Carmel." That's what he told interviewer Kathryn Pratt recently on TV Channel 46's "Nine A.M."

Bates talked about his recent travels and the sketches he made in China. Not cartoons this time, but revealing details about places and people. He commented that since China's gates haven't been open very long, the people are just beginning to get used to westerners. When he stopped to sketch a scene, hundreds of people paused to see what he was doing. "They are very courteous," he said. "They always left a comfortable amount of space around me so as not to interfere." He added, "Humor changes in different countries. There isn't much cartooning yet in China." He speculated that more would come with increasing freedom of the press.

"I've always had two sides of this work in me," Bates said: a gift for realistic, interpretive art compliments his well-known ability to draw cartoons. He spoke about his contribution to the local scene, saying that he hopes his cartoons show both resident interests and tourists'. "I cartoon it so we can all see it; then perhaps both sides will ease back a little." Of the people who move here from all over the world he said, "A week later they are natives."

Bates gave credit to his former wife, Carole Minou, for designing the light-hearted map that after some controversy is nearing completion on the wall north of Nielsen's Market at San Carlos and Eighth. He added that she was responsible also for teaching him some of the techniques he uses in his own work.

The next trip Bates will make is to Germany. In the meantime he continues to work on the map and to sketch his favorite subject, Carmel. Once asked if he had ever been syndicated, Bates' reply was: "No, but I'm big on Ocean Avenue!"

Cameras rolling at Devendorf Park and at the beach? Some localities were surprised, in view of the number of complaints that followed the last such occurrence in our city. But on that occasion, the filming did conflict with business interests; this time the nature of the shots and their locations made for a relatively quiet situation. That was how the Business License and Code Review Board saw it when considering the application for a permit to do the filming, and that's how it turned out on Wednesday, June 10.

Applying for the license were Nathan Golden and Mark Hufnail of Company III Productions, Ltd. The purpose of the activity was to film two segments of a television special in the America at Play series. This is a one-hour variety special called "California Coast" which we will all be able to see sometime this fall.

Co-hosts for the two locations here are Paul Williams and Greg Evigan. Other stars are Maureen McGovern, Louise Mandrell and Randi Oaks.

It was all done so quietly that only a few curious people gathered to watch the shooting. Mark Hufnail, associate producer, had told the BLCRB that he had been supervising location shooting for five years, so was well aware of the possible problems of traffic control, interference with business, etc., and would go out of his way to avoid such difficulties.

Even so, as City Administrator Doug Peterson said when the board reviewed the city's experience with this filming a week later, "When film companies are here, they often change their minds; they are artistic and see other possibilities once they are actually on the scene. It's the nature of the business and it's hard to regulate them."

One "other possibility" in this case was the addition of shots down Ocean Avenue, not originally planned. What the experience apparently taught members of the board this time was the value of careful preparation and supervision and the need to be somewhat flexible.

There were no complaints about this particular filming. Certainly not about the fact that the producers had chosen two locations in Carmel among those considered to be "pleasant locations in choice vacation spots all over the country." Even the weather cooperated.

A related note: the city of Santa Cruz has a rather different approach to the business of filming: the city recently sent a publicist to Hollywood to encourage movie makers to come to their city. Object: "the money it brings into the community."

The May 28 Pine Cone/ Outlook article about outgoing Planning Commissioner Dr. Donald Davidson led to a number of calls about the Carmel Citizens' Committee. The word from Mrs. Eugene Hammond, secretary of the organization, is that anyone interested in membership can write to P.O. Box 1101, Carmel, for an application.

The committee holds one or two general meetings each year, Mrs. Hammond said, and the board of directors meets each month. There are no dues; contributions are welcome, however.

It's nice to know that people are reading this column and nice — but not surprising — to find out that Carmelites tend to be helpful types!

A message on my desk tells me that Jenny Newcomb is quite willing to lend me her copy of the Beverly Hills Diet. That's in response to a note in this column two weeks ago relating the difficulties anyone would have in trying to buy a copy of that extremely popular book. Inasmuch as all local book stores are still out of copies I just might take her up on it. Jenny Newcomb is owner, with husband John, of L'Animal, the unusual gift shop at the Plaza that is celebrating its first anniversary this month.

When I asked Mrs. Newcomb how the store was doing, she said, "Real well!" What are the most popular items? Pigs! Especially the ceramic ones made by "Roxanne," a local artist.

BEWARE THE TERPENTINE BARK BEETLE!

By GREG D'AMBROSIO
Carmel City Forester

TERPENTINE BARK BEETLES are appearing in ever-increasing numbers as the summer months approach. This boring insect is a major cause of Monterey Pine deaths, particularly in mature trees, trees growing on or near construction projects and especially those trees that have recently been pruned.

The insect is drawn by the scent of fresh pine sap and will bore into and feed on the tree's conductive tissues. Attacks are restricted to the exposed roots growing on the surface and the tree trunk from ground surface to a height of approximately 8-10 feet. Infestations have been known to kill even healthy trees within a few months following the initial attack.

I recommend that you visually inspect your trees regularly during the summer and early fall. Also refrain from pruning pines until the late fall and winter months when this insect is at a low level of activity.

MOST TREES infested with bark beetles can be saved with some diligence and knowledge of proper preventive techniques.

Recognizing the signs of the presence of bark beetles in a pine tree is the most important step toward saving the tree. Look between the bark plates on the trunk at the base of the tree and up to a height of approximately 8-10 feet. If beetles are present, you will see a small cone-shaped entrance hole incised in a brownish-orange mass of pitch.

The entire cone is about one-half inch in diameter. Directly below the entrance will be a collection of sawdust-like material, pink or white in color. This material is the frass or tailings chewed by the insect. It is actually wood residue extracted by the beetles' tunneling operations.

To prevent this insect from doing further damage, you must trace the path or canal until you find the beetle. The tools necessary for the tracing operation are a hammer and chisel.

To begin, chip away the bark and carefully follow the canal which is just below the bark layer. Take care not to cut any deeper than the white cambium just behind the bark. Follow the canal; it may meander, but do not lose track of where the insect is tunneling. As you trace, check to see that you have not accidentally cut more of the bark than necessary. Your objective is to find the insect. If you don't find the beetle, you may not have corrected the problem.

THERE MAY BE more than one beetle per tunnel. Carefully check the area traced to assure yourself there is no more infestation. After completing the tracing, clean the wound by shaping it into an oval with pointed ends. This shape is best for the healing process and stimulates proper callus development. This oval shape also prevents moisture from settling in the wound and allows for rapid runoff and faster drying of the area.

After shaping, paint the entire wound area with a thick tree seal compound. This will slow down or prevent the process of wood decay. Immediately following these steps, spray the trunk with a mixture of Lindane, water and a small amount of oil. The insecticide label will tell you what mixture is to be used.

Check the tree several times in the weeks and months to follow to be sure there is not a recurrence of the same problem. Doing the job yourself will save you considerable money. Remember, hold off having your trees trimmed until the winter months so that this pest does not infest your tree.

Honig wants to challenge Wilson Riles; he is 'educational fundamentalist'

By ROBERT MISKIMON

ONCE REGARDED a model of progressive education, the California School system in recent years has suffered a discernible erosion of public confidence.

Indications of this erosion can be found in passage of the tax-slashing Prop. 13; a steady decline in student performance on achievement tests; and a drift toward private schools.

But it may not be too late to stem the tide toward mediocrity in the public schools, and with some firm leadership from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the schools can regain their former excellence, says Louis ("Bill") Honig.

Honig is gearing up for a campaign to challenge Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles when he seeks a fourth term in 1982. Honig's campaign theme is that Riles has failed to uphold high standards for public schools during his 12 years in office.

Honig made his remarks to the Pine Cone / Outlook during a campaign visit to Carmel last week. He also attended a reception in Carmel Valley given by Mr. and Mrs. Milton ("Skip") Marquard of Carmel Valley. Honig's wife, Nancy, is Skip Marquard's sister.

The reception was attended by about 100 friends, relatives and educators from the Carmel area.

"Wilson Riles has been more defensive and apologetic than he should be," Honig asserted. "He gives everything to special interest groups that they ask for. Wilson Riles is not a content, instruction-oriented person."

Honig, a Stanford University graduate and a native of San Francisco, holds a law degree from U.C. Berkeley and a master's degree in education from San Francisco State University. He has been a clerk to the California Supreme Court, a corporate attorney, educational consultant, a teacher, and is now superintendent of the Reed Union Elementary School District in Marin County.

A registered Democrat, he was appointed to the California State Board of Education in 1975.

THE DECLINE in California's public educational system can be measured, according to Honig, in several performance areas:

- California 12th graders score in the 28th percentile in writing, the 34th percentile in reading, and the 44th percentile in math.

- Since 1970, California Scholastic Aptitude Test scores have fallen 38 percent faster in reading and 72 percent faster in math than scores of students in other states.

- California students score below federal standards in 11 of 16 SAT achievement areas.

"Our schools are too soft and permissive, they don't demand enough discipline and respect, and they are not teaching a rigorous enough basic instructional program," Honig said. "California graduation requirements have been seriously weakened over the past 12 years. Schools no longer demand as many of the basic academic courses as they used to."

"Many students now graduate with only one year of math and one year of science, and too many are receiving credit for such electives as astrology, mass media, child care and for holding down a job. At the elementary level, a recent study found that 70 percent of the schools were teaching little or no history. Literature has all but disappeared from the primary school curriculum and science is only taught an average of nine minutes per day."

Honig believes the conservative tenor of political consciousness in California and the nation will benefit his back-to-basics campaign, but wants it understood that he is not a member of the radical right.

"I call myself an educational fundamentalist," Honig said. "I really wasn't a political person at all until I decided to run for state superintendent. I've gotten support from parents, business people, corporate leaders in the Bay Area, plus support from black leaders in San Francisco, and Hispanic support in Los Angeles."

"The argument that we've got to toughen up our schools appeals across the board, to people who aren't even political. We have short-changed minority kids by allowing the curriculum to become weak. The beauty of the public schools is to give every kid an

- Reinstate "more traditional" values in the schools, including emphasis on individual effort and responsibility, excellence, accomplishment, success, self-discipline, and "a moral sense of right and wrong."

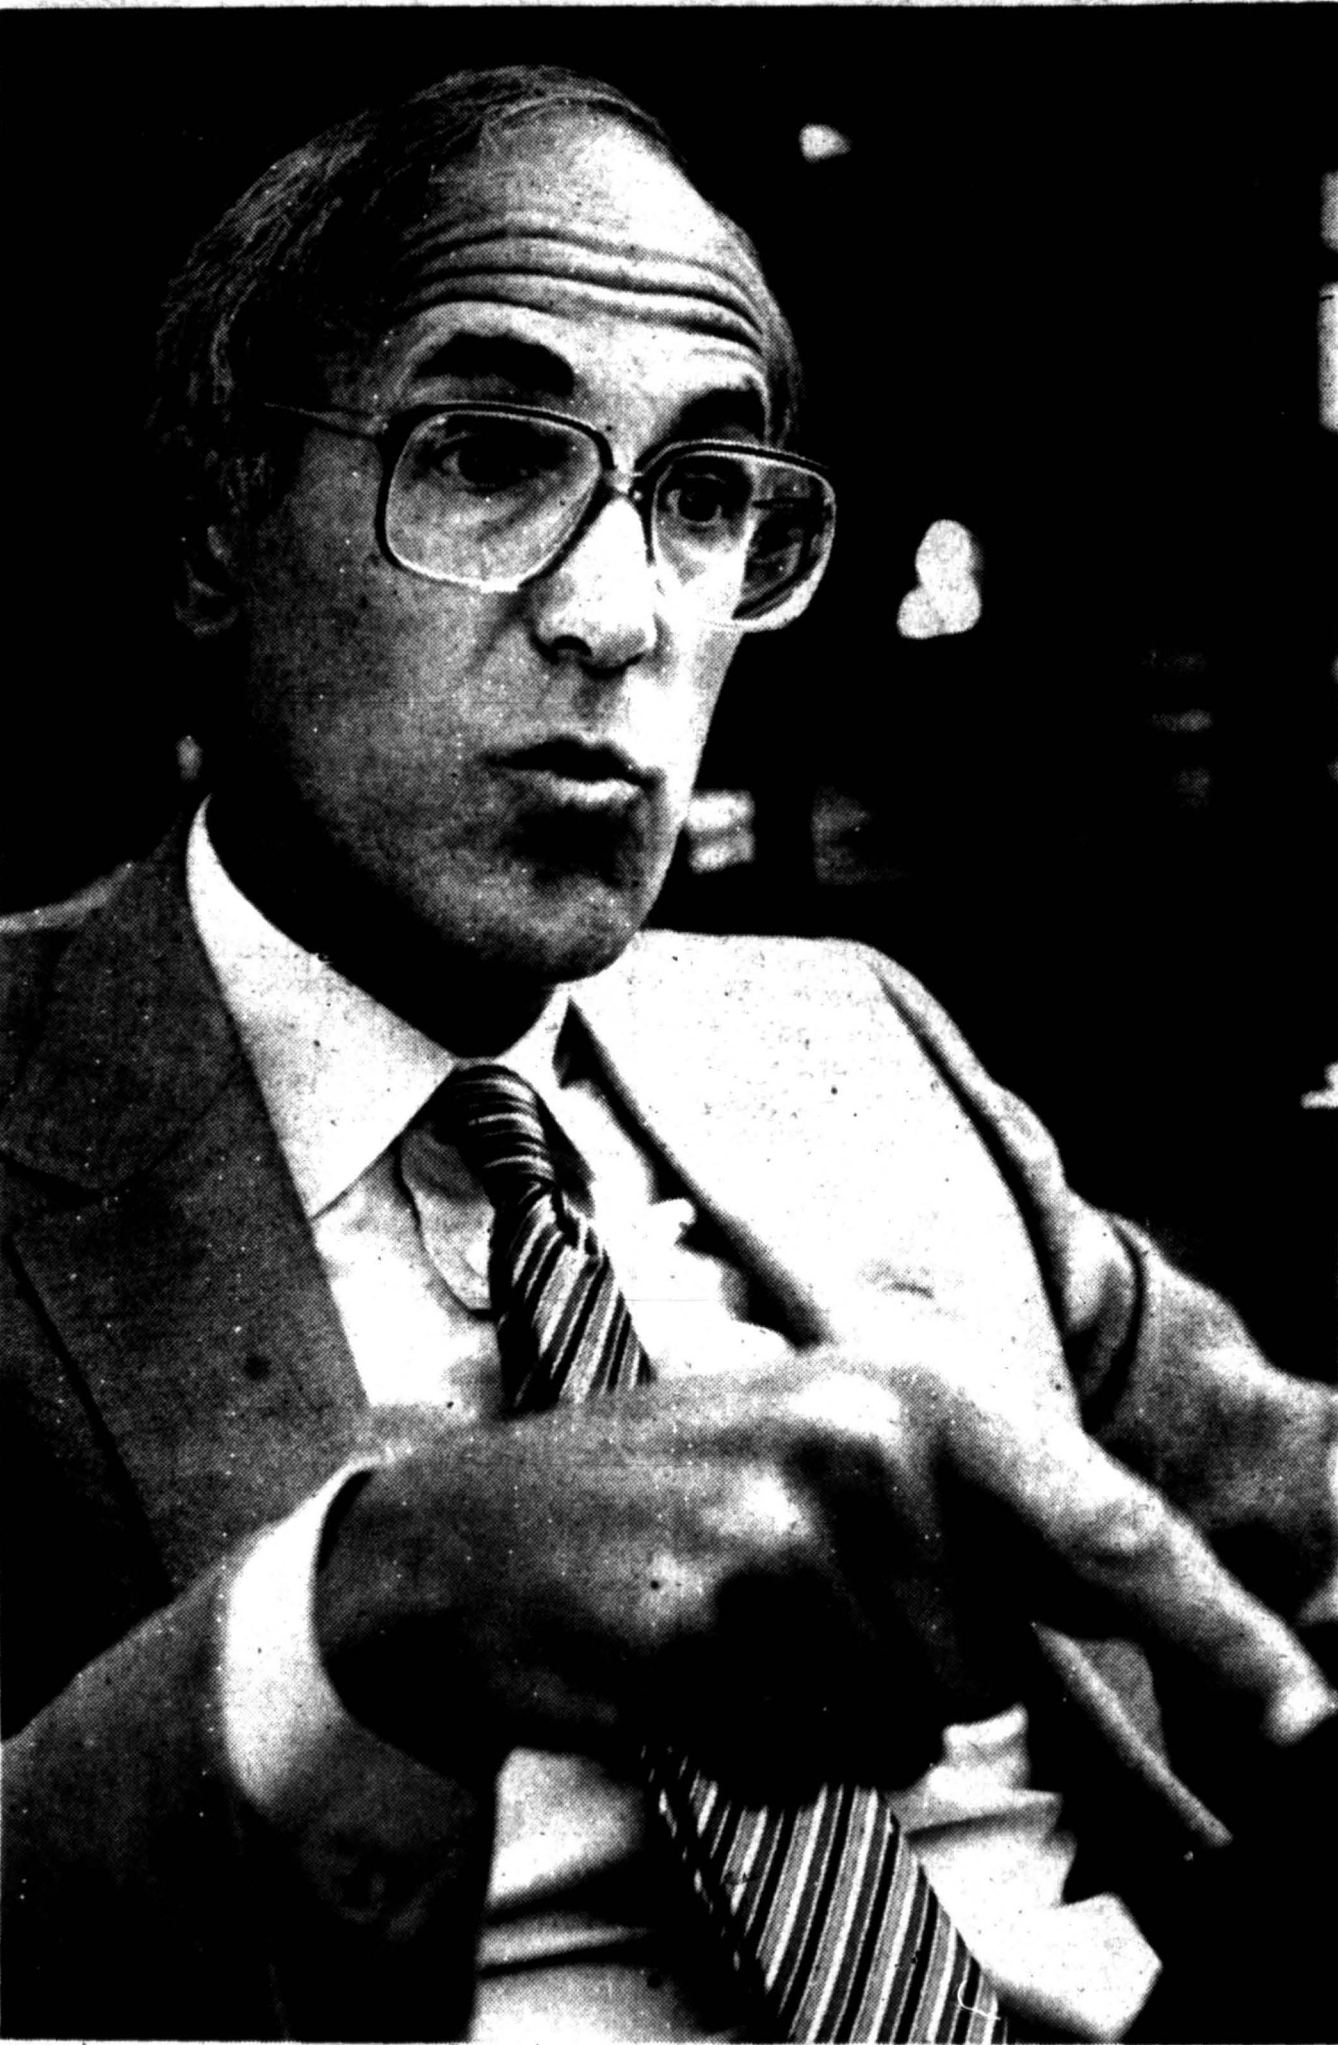

- Decrease the role of the courts and legislature in the schools by giving more authority to school principals in the areas of discipline and instruction.

- Support by the State Department of Education for a basic instructional program in the school districts of California.

- Reduce legislative mandates and state regulatory control of local districts to permit more self-determination in the design and delivery of educational programs.

- Develop a system of training, selection and support to upgrade the quality of school principals.

- Prune the Education Code of unnecessary equal opportunity. I think the best affirmative action program is a strong educational system."

BILL HONIG thinks State School Supt. Wilson Riles is a failure.

Honig traces the decline in performance of public school children in California to the fact that all state curriculum standards were dropped in 1968 in favor of a philosophy of catering to students with special needs.

"California went too far in that direction," Honig said. "The schools buckled under pressure and went overboard. Research has found that the best thing you can do for an under-achieving school is to get a good principal, set high standards and expectations, give homework that's graded, have a business-like atmosphere, and tell students how they're doing."

BASIC PLANKS in Honig's platform include:

- Active leadership by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction in setting and raising higher standards in the public and out-dated regulations and requirements.

"As a member of the State Board of Education, I have tried to help turn the system around statewide," Honig said. "And now, after six years of futile effort, it has become obvious to me that Wilson Riles must be replaced."

Honig called Riles "a nice man who hasn't been able to stand up to special interest groups," and observed that his lack of visibility among the electorate becomes more evident as he stumps the state for support.

"While no one person is totally responsible for poor school performance, the Superintendent of Public Instruction must be held responsible for his lack of leadership over the last 10 years. Wilson Riles has been the chief apologist and defender of the current educational system."

"Children who will graduate from high school in June, 1982 began the first grade when Wilson Riles was first elected state superintendent. Twelve years of educational decline is behind us. We cannot wait four more years before bringing new leadership to education in California."

HONIG SEES a direct link between the quality of education in the public schools and the economic health of the state, as measured by the standard of living. Quite simply, better schools equip young people better to secure jobs in an increasingly-technological economy; greater productivity means a higher standard of living for everyone, he reasons.

"Forty percent of all employment in California will soon be in the technological, managerial or professional fields," Honig said. "In the past 20 years, 30 million jobs were created in this country and 16 million were in these areas. California is not educating its youth for these jobs."

"It's not just economic risks that we're taking by lowering our academic expectations in California. We are also taking severe political and social risks by failing to develop within our children a commitment to our democratic ideals and fundamental beliefs."

Honig is against a proposed voucher system which would enable private schools to receive public funds based on enrollment because it "muddies the waters" concerning Constitutional separation of church and state and because "that's treating the symptom and not the problem" with public education.

"One of the historical arguments for public education is that you need an institution to provide a sense of unity and cohesion in society, and that's why we need to strengthen the public schools."

"Eighty-nine percent of our children still attend public schools. We have billions upon billions invested in these schools. Public schools are an integral part of our democratic society and our economic well-being."

Honig is opposed to bi-lingual education in the way it has been implemented in recent years in California, with the primary emphasis on the minority culture and language and without enough effort directed toward moving minority children into the mainstream culture.

"I'm not against bi-lingual education with some provision for keeping students in their primary classroom for long periods of time and as long as the orientation of the program is learning English. There has been a tremendous amount of pressure for bi-lingual education, special education, disadvantaged programs, and special programs for the handicapped and for dropouts. I'm not against all these programs, but it's gotten to the point that there's nothing in the schools for the regular student."

"Wilson Riles hasn't fought hard enough for the regular curriculum programs. He's staked his career on diverting large sums of money to special interests. We're not going to turn the whole school system around without the superintendent of public instruction providing active leadership. People are looking for that kind of leadership."

In the area of school discipline, Honig would support legislation to give more power to school principals in instruction and discipline. He feels that deterioration in discipline has been a primary factor in deterioration in learning in the schools.

"There has been a whole spate of bills which have made it more difficult to discipline students," Honig said. "A lot of this is a result of the student rights movement of recent years. This has really hurt educational quality, because if one or two kids are causing problems, the other 28 kids in the class have to suffer for it."

"It's become too much of a legal issue when a child is disciplined or suspended. I think the courts should stay out of it. Too many times we've run the schools for the kids who cause the problems. We've assumed that kids are more mature than they are, but I think students respond to standards. They allow the best part of students to come out."

Council to finish budget Monday

Selection of a consultant to guide the revision of Carmel's General Plan is expected at a special meeting of the Carmel city council at 4 p.m. Monday, June 29 at City Hall.

Award of a bid to the consultant who will submit preliminary General Plan proposals follows a meeting held June 23 by city officials. The General Plan is to be a comprehensive document for Carmel's future development in land use and other areas.

Also on the council agenda is final adoption of the 1981-82 budget. The preliminary budget total was $4.3 million.

The council also will award a bid for the construction of the proposed terrace for Sunset Center in August.

The final item is the second reading of the garbage franchise agreement.

Peninsula Business

What Does the Transamerica Pyramid Have in Common With the Monterey Peninsula?

THE TRANSAMERICA PYRAMID represents one of the best office buildings in the San Francisco Bay Area . . . a prestige location in high demand. On the Peninsula one of the most prestigious professional and business addresses is in Carmel.

This new office complex offers the fine amenities of the urban high-rises, but also many additional features undreamed of by the Big City Boys . . . such as your own balcony overlooking a large enclosed patio with roses, trees and a manicured lawn . . . private lavatories with executive showers . . . and daily UPS motor and air express package service.

There is also a copy center, a helpful staff and plenty of free parking with no congestion (unlike the Big City or even many places on the Peninsula). And all this is surrounded by world famous golf and tennis within walking distance.

Office sizes range up to 1600 feet and rents start at an affordable $235 a month including utilities! Now there's an inflation fighter.

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED in an attractive new office, completely decorated including carpet and drapes, ready to move into with no remodeling time or expense, call us at the Mid-Valley Office Park. We even have some furnished offices for lease if you contact us early. We're conveniently located at Dorris Drive and Center Street just west of the Mid-Valley Shopping Center.

These fine offices are shown by appointment only, so call 625-0417 to see them now.

Postal workers to picket at Carmel P.O. today

Members of the Carmel local of the American Postal Workers Union planned to picket today (Thursday) in front of the main Carmel post office as part of a nationwide day of picketing by postal workers.

Margaret Purchase, associate vice president of the local union, said 10 to 12 informational pickets will be on the street starting at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in protest of delayed contract negotiations between the U.S. Postal Service and the four unions representing postal workers.

The four unions are the American Postal Workers Union, the National Association of Letter Carriers, the Mail Handlers Union, and the Rural Letter Carriers Union Postal workers at the Carmel post office are represented by the APWU and the NALC.

Pickets in Carmel plan to carry placards saying: "Solidarity," "We Deliver," and "Bolger Destroys," a reference to Postmaster General William Bolger.

Contract negotiations for a new three-year agreement between the unions and the Postal Service had been scheduled to open April 22, but were delayed until this week, after the National Labor Relations Board ordered Bolger to begin talks. The present contract expires July 20.

"By using these delaying tactics, they're trying to split up the unions," Purchase said. "They're trying to avoid giving us a contract and we're going to stand up for our rights."

"Postmaster General Bolger used delaying tactics to delay the bargaining and only agreed to come to the table after he was harshly criticized by key members of Congress and his appeal to the National Labor Relations Board was denied."

Purchase said key issues in contract negotiations are wages and safety for postal workers.

Barracudas outswim Salinas 762-321

The Carmel Barracudas defeated the Salinas Piranhas 762 to 321, and several swimmers achieved new records at a dual meet on Saturday in Salinas.

Two swimmers in the 15-18 division earned AA times. Brian Baldwin, who also set a new team record by breaking his own record, swam the 100-yard free style in 30:42; and Sarah Hicks made her double A time in the 50-yard free style, coming in at 26:74.

Eight swimmers gained ten new A times. In the 15-18 year old division, Brian Baldwin, 100-yard backstroke, 1:04:15; Rick Kalinyak, 100-yard breaststroke, 1:10:73; Tony Mitchell, 100-yard butterfly, 1:01:64, and 100-yard backstroke, 1:06:31; Mark Reardon, 50-yard freestyle, 24:51.

In the 13-14 group, Mike Falge, 100-yard free style, 59:59; Kent Nybaken, 50-yard free style, 27:58.1 and 100-yard breast stroke, 1:18:12. In the 11-12 category, Brian Mullen, 50-yard free style, 29:01. In 8 and under, Peter Rigney, 25-yard backstroke, 20:45.

The Barracudas are scheduled to meet the strong Morgan Hill team in a dual meet on Saturday at the Carmel High School pool.

Buying a condo? Here's a checklist

By SEAN E. MCCARTHY
Executive Vice President
California Land Title Association

COOPERATIVE OWNERSHIP of real property has been growing in many different directions. You can now buy condominiums involving everything from homes and offices to industrial buildings. Even campsites and marinas are going condo.

If you are considering buying any type of condominium unit you should first ask the developer or seller a lot of questions. That's the best way to avoid many of the problems not associated with buying a single-family home, for example.

The California Land Title Assn. has compiled a checklist for prospective condominium buyers. This guideline is designed to help identify potential problem areas in advance, thereby eliminating many of the "surprises" that can turn up after the new owner has moved in. These items usually mean additional costs over and above the established purchase price of the basic unit itself.

Since land title insurance is based upon the elimination of risk potentials, as opposed to the risk-assumption features of other insurance programs, CLTA suggests the same approach be used before buying a condo—identify as many potential problems as possible in advance and then eliminate them.

Most additional expenses involved in the purchase of a condominium result from the actions of the condominium association and can continue month after month. The buyer automatically becomes a member of that association when the purchase agreement is signed.

This obligates the owner to share proportionately in the association's liabilities, including the "common" areas of the development and any recreational facilities.

That's why the prospective buyer should carefully study all documents. These include the Public Report, the Declaration of Restrictions, and the by-laws or Articles of Incorporation of the condominium association.

These documents cover the management of the condominium building, the association's power to tax through special assessment, and provide for adequate insurance against damage or destruction of one or more units, or the entire project.

A PROSPECTIVE buyer should also find out just what is included in the purchase price of the unit. For example, are the recreational facilities and parking spaces owned by the purchasers or did the developer retain title? If these amenities are "rented" to the owners association, can the rent be increased?

Another important area to check is management costs. Are they realistic? Start-up and operational management costs are hard to predict for a new development. If the projections are too low, the monthly assessments may have to be increased considerably. This is even more of a factor in a conversion project.

The question of building and fire code compliance is also important in rental conversions. If the building does not "meet code" because of recent changes, who will be responsible for upgrading the units?

Also check to see who has the title insurance coverage on the common area. Are there any recorded restrictions that could affect your ownership of a condominium unit?

The purchaser should also check to see if the developer may unilaterally amend the association by-laws or change unit prices. Even check to see if the offering can be cancelled by the developer if a certain number of condominium units are not pre-sold.

Finally, there's your own title insurance. It is not so much changes into itself as the actions of the people involved. All of the reasons for having the protection of title insurance is just as important in a condominium as it is for a single family residence. This includes having a new title search each time a unit is sold.

Mitterrand at Elysee:

Poet and Practitioner

By JAMES RESTON

FRANCOIS MITTERRAND is the first Socialist president of the French Fifth Republic, and he seems perfectly cast for that particular role. In American eyes, he looks like a solid, muscular French peasant called Frank, who has just taken over Elysee Palace. After the imperialist de Gaulle and the elegant Giscard d'Estaing who preceded him, the new president seems vaguely out of place in his plain blue Sunday suit, sitting somewhat uncomfortably on a green cut-velvet couch in the palace Gold Room.

But when he talks about his country, simply and eloquently, he reflects the history of the room. He has the reputation of being a patient, obstinate and impenetrable man, who waited almost a quarter of a century for this chance, but even now his colleagues are wary about predicting the course he will take.

Part of the reason for this is that he speaks like a poet but is as practical as a plumber. He uses all the old symbols and slogans of 19th-century Socialism but has put together a Cabinet almost half the size of the United States Senate, including men and women of diverse political philosophies.

He survived the political struggles in this city by mobilizing a riot of contradictory tendencies — within himself and his coalition — and seems confident that he can work with Socialists of all stripes, handle the French Communists, win the parliamentary elections and somehow even survive his policy differences with Washington.

THIS IS A FORMIDABLE challenge. For example, the United States, Britain and others in the NATO alliance are moving to the right, while he is committed to move France to the left.

He is for more nationalization of industry, while President Reagan is for less government control of private enterprise. Mitterrand is for increasing pressure on South Africa, while Reagan is for easing pressure on that country. Reagan tends to concentrate on East-West relations — seeing most foreign problems in anti-Communist terms — while Mitterrand, through staunchly anti-Communist, places greater emphasis on the conflicts between the rich industrial countries and the poorer agricultural countries.

The chances are, however, that these conflicts seem more difficult in print than they will in practice. Mitterrand is going to Ottawa for the economic summit meeting in July, and to the North-South government leaders' conference in Mexico in October. He will see Reagan both places, and is eager to go to Washington whenever it is convenient for both sides.

Mitterrand and Reagan, despite their obvious policy differences, have some things in common. Both have come to power after many years of political disappointment. Both are presiding over governments of conflicting tendencies. Both are

And They Painted the Room

By RUSSELL BAKER

LATER, WORLD WAR II seemed to have been about John Wayne. It wasn't. Here, 37 years after D-Day, are a few voices from a land of long ago speaking in their letters of life in America during the war years:

From a 20-year-old draftee to a friend on "the home front" in 1943: "Well, Doc, I'm on my way. Look out Hitler and Tojo, here I come. With my guns and knives I'm gonna cut off somebody's nose and send it home for posterity. I had some spaghetti, but it was not like your mother's by a long shot. Boy, she sure can cook it, and make chocolate cake..."

From a 47-year-old woman to her nephew on D-Day: "Will try and write you a line or two before I turn in. Just got through reading the paper, and believe me there is plenty to read in it now. This place seems to be in quite an uproar over the invasion—nearly all business places were closed. I think every saloon in the city was closed for the day. The churches were all open for prayer services all day long. It has been real cool here for the last couple of days. I had to get out more comforts last night..."

From a 18-year-old soldier about to leave for Europe to a high school classmate, July 1944: "I've lost your address. Please send it immediately. Time now means a lot to me. I will forward my change of address to you as soon as I am able. My regret is I wasn't able to see you the times I've been fortunate enough to get home. Oh well, we will have a reunion apres la guerre—providing."

FROM A MOTHER to her 18-year-old son at training camp, three days after the invasion: "I got up before anyone else so in the quiet of the morning while all are in bed I'll write to you before I get breakfast. I didn't write last night or Wednesday night but I know you'll forgive me because, you see, I was painting your room and had the ceiling almost done last night...To change the subject, what do you think of the invasion? It seems to be moving ahead but it's too early to say much more than that. I for one think the Germans have some tricks up their sleeves. It sounds too easy, but I'll bet it's not been as rosy as it was painted for home consumption.

"I just turned on the radio to try and get some news, but all I'm getting at present is what kind of gift to give a graduate..."

From a middle-aged woman to her young cousin in the Navy: "Well we had a wedding here Saturday night. Sukie was married. They only brought fifteen with them, and did I have some mess to clean on Sunday! She said there would only be the family and she brought all she could with her. She's nuts anyway, always was."

"Uncle George has not been so well. Also Uncle Garrett—he had a very bad toe. Had a hole in the toe of his sock and it rubbed a blister—he had a very bad foot. Alfred Ball was in to see us Sunday, and did he preach religion to us! But with all of his religion, he is still as big a liar as ever. Ha, ha!"

FROM A 20-YEAR-OLD GI in the Philippines to a high school friend, in April 1945: "To tell you the truth, I've lost all ambition as far as working is concerned. All I ever want to do after the war is travel over the country, seeing the sights, raising hell and having a good time until I find a gal I liked well enough to start thinking of a home and family. Simple, isn't it? The only thing worrying me is where the hell would I get the conscious of the common interests of the U.S. and France. Both have a sense of home and the land. And both are naturally optimistic.

MITTERRAND TALKS in nationalistic terms but concedes that France cannot be defended unless the civilization of the West is defended — and this includes his support for modernizing the West's defenses with new missiles.

He is immensely proud of France's historic position and still resentful that France was excluded from the Yalta Conference that presumed to arrange the affairs of Europe at the end of the last World War.

He clearly has an intention to speak out in the coming reappraisals of the problems of the world. He has a sense of history and occasionally even a sense of humor.

He is worried about what he calls a "general weariness" among the free peoples, "who need to strengthen their faith in their civilization." He is consoled by the fact that nobody seemed to be for his election except the French people, and he is obviously going to speak for them present and past.

"Today, as I assume responsibility for the nation's highest office," he said in his inaugural statement, "I think of those millions and millions of men and women, the vital force of our people, who for two centuries, in peace and in war, with their labor and their blood, have fashioned France's history without having access to it except in times of brief and glorious upheaval in our society."

This eloquent but mystifying statement illustrates a central point: There are two unknowns here. Mitterrand himself is still unknown to most of the world — and his political power in the Parliament will not be known until after this month's elections. But he will be a new voice in the alliance — and the guess here is that he will be listened to very seriously.

New York Times News Service

money without working?"

From a wounded 19-year-old soldier in Germany to his aunt, March 1945: "You can't imagine how beautiful this country is over here. Really, it's much more beautiful than you ever dreamed a picture could be. Wish you could see it, but in peace time. It's really a shame the Nazis have to tear up such a beautiful country."

From a 17-year-old high school girl to a military "boyfriend," July of 1945: "Went to a USO formal Thursday nite; it rained poodles but stopped after a while. The big event of summer is finally here—the carnival. Oh joy! If they don't have the ferris wheel, I'm not going."

FROM A 19-YEAR-OLD after two years in the service: "You're always meeting so many new people. Some day when I'm an old man sitting for hours gazing into the fire and trying to recover the glory that was youth, I'll stroke my beard with a sly smile, remove my false teeth and reflect that I once knew the majority of the flower of all American youth, while the youngsters of that distant day will be bound to the social circle of the corner drugstore. I'll have had the experience of making the world safe for this inane generation so that they may spend all their life in the limits of their own backyards. Is that fair to them?"

Thus we droned on, blind to the future, humdrum and commonplace, so unlike John Wayne.

From the Right

Gluts to the Gluttons

By WILLIAM SAFIRE

THE TIME IS RIPE to crack the OPEC cartel.

For nearly a decade, oil producers have combined to force the rest of the world to pay all that the traffic would bear. An international monopoly has helped inflict a raging inflation on the world, stunted the growth of the poorest nations and brushed off all criticism of its price fixing with a cool "business is business."

Now all that is changing. High prices reduced demand for oil more sharply than anyone predicted, and enabled competing sources of energy to grow. Three years ago a "glut" appeared but was quickly absorbed by the economic collapse of Iran; last year another oil glut threatened but was postponed again by the Iran-Iraq war, which took another giant out of production. Today the world is awash in oil. ("Awash in oil" is a mandatory phrase in all writing on this subject.) Refineries are refusing shipments; twice as much oil as normal is floating in tankers and storage; this week Mexico, not an OPEC member but tied to its pricing, lowered the price of crude oil by $4 a barrel; Britain and Norway are likely to follow. Nigeria, an oil-rich but cash-poor member of OPEC, is under pressure to lower its price.

WHY THE TURNABOUT from shortage to oversupply? Not, as State Department Arabists fondly believe, because Saudi Arabia is producing 10 million barrels a day instead of its usual 8 million; that "favor" picks up less than one quarter of the production lost by the disappearance from the market of Iran and Iraq. Within a year, some Iraqi production may be back and the Saudis would cut production without sopping up the glut.

The reason for glutmanship is plain: The high price is being artificially maintained by the monopolists; in a normal market, the unfixed price would drop. Thus the moment is propitious to smash the cartel. Not to weaken it, or induce it to be more reasonable, but to break it once and for all. Nothing personal, not for revenge; simply in our own economic self-interest.

'the moment is propitious to smash the cartel. Not to weaken it, or induce it to be more reasonable, but to break it once and for all'

THE UNITED STATES is the world's largest oil importer. Here is how we, acting alone, could bring the cartel to its knees:

1. Impose a $5-per-barrel import fee. What? Raise prices about a dime a gallon of gas? Are you crazy? Like a fox: the present high price of oil has reduced demand, encouraged conservation and brought in new sources of energy. A higher price would make oil even less attractive, ultimately forcing the producer's price downward. Meanwhile, the top $5 will stop flowing out to the sheikhs and start flowing into the U.S. Treasury to the tune of $10 billion a year.

This idea was hooted at when proposed, in an extreme form, by John Anderson last year. But if repackaged as part of the plan to flex American economic muscle—with the proceeds to be refunded via tax credits used to lower income taxes—it ceases to be laughable.

'the present high price of oil has reduced demand, encouraged conservation and brought in new sources of energy'

2. Set import quotas for oil. This is a device to get monopolists fighting among themselves. Require oil companies to buy tickets, at auction, from the U.S. government for the right to import oil. (Such allocations were given away in the 1950s; in the future, they should be sold.)

The companies would then go to foreign suppliers and pass on the cost of the tickets. Because oil is in oversupply and we are the biggest buyer, some oil producers would secretly go along—effectively discounting their prices without losing face. Whatever the posted monopoly price, the fluctuating deduction of the ticket price would enforce a true market price.

3. Play favorites among producers. Exempt Mexico from all oil import fees in return for a long-term, below-market contract for oil to fill our strategic reserve. Exempt Venezuela if it will resign from OPEC and join an all-American production alliance. Switch half our Libyan purchases to Nigeria, and the remainder if this does not affect Colonel Khadafy's support of terrorism.

4. Put on the commercial squeeze. Tell the companies to slow down acceptance of foreign oil; run 15-knot tankers at 8 knots; stall on payments and go to court on contracts. Let the vulnerable suppliers feel a cash pinch, miss a few payrolls, endure a few strikes. Replace the arrogance of the seller with the arrogance of the buyer.

THIS IS NOT ordinary business practice. But in kowtowing to a monopoly, or in seeking to break it, long-term business relationships mean nothing. To a cartel, only economic power counts.

Only if we force the monopolists to undercut each other will we discover if the Saudis are really the moderates they claim to be. Only when we take the lead will the other major importers, Japan and West Germany, see their self-interest in following.

The glut is a black-golden opportunity; with daring and imagination, we can seize this moment to turn back the assault on the American economy.

SF reader writes

Dear Editor:

It was reassuring to read in your June 11 edition that Carmel Valley residents are trying to keep a lid on development. It would be especially distressing to see the beauty of that area fall to a bunch of bland condominiums.

I was witness to the suburban spread in L.A. during the '50s, '60s & '70s. Every few years you had to move another ten miles away from town to be near orchards of orange trees. Today asphalt covers the land where those orchards were.

Here in San Francisco we are quite aware of the development/non-development issues. It is very tempting to throw up new housing and office buildings to give the local government new and increasing sources of tax revenue. There is a constant battle here between commercial interests and the residents who want to preserve the beauty that has made San Francisco a legend.

If development does eventually come to the open spaces of Carmel Valley (as, alas, it probably will), please force the planners to make the new buildings as architecturally interesting as possible. And please keep a protective eye on your green space; once it's covered over it will probably never grow back.

Patrick Andersen

P.S. We love the Carmel Police Log up here. Makes the town sound like Heaven!

Not rolling in dough

Dear Editor:

I am writing to clarify part of the article that was written about our farm in the Monterey Peninsula Herald Weekend Magazine, May 24, 1981. We wish to emphasize the fact that the $300,000 income mentioned in this article was a gross sales figure; not net earnings.

We have had only two good years in seven; the rest have been loss or break-even years. The last 2½ years of depressed prices have caused many farmers to quit or go so deeply in debt it will be difficult to recuperate.

We would not have lasted this long without the premium from the organic market and our land rent at less than half of the normal Salinas Valley farm land.

We wish to lay to rest rumors and speculation that we are "rolling in dough"; we definitely are not. As a matter of fact, with land value being so high in Carmel Valley, we feel it is not possible for a person to farm his own land in this area and expect a reasonable return on his investment.

Moore did not vote

Dear Editor:

In my recent letter concerning the Carmel Area Local Coastal Plan, I mistakenly accused Supervisor Michal Moore of having voted for the Coastal Program adopted by the Board of Supervisors. The supervisors who voted to adopt it were Barbara Shipnuck, William Peters and Dusan Petrovic.

I apologize to your readers and to Supervisor Moore for the error.

Unfair to Odellos

Dear Editor:

I get tired of reading constantly about the Odellos in the newspapers. I feel sorry for them. I think they have been unnecessarily discriminated against. I for one would like to see this stop. There are many who feel this way but don't always express themselves publicly.

So, for all of us who like the Odellos and want to see this hassle end, I make myself heard.

Warns about copters

Dear Editor:

In case you missed the disaster reported on the umpteenth page of the Herald, the news is that Fort Ord has immediate plans under way to move their helicopter fleet to within a few miles of the Peninsula.

These training and practice helicopters will cause untold increasing noise pollution when, already, we are being deafened by many machines: trucks, cycles, airplanes, etc...

The helicopter location is being sought out for lease now by the military. But why near the Monterey Peninsula? Already Fort Ord complains of lack of housing here.

This impact on our community will harm it (we know what just one 'copter sounds like; imagine many of them!), and surely will irritate visitors who come for restful holidays in this worldwide famous scene - the Monterey Peninsula.

Marian Weygers
Carmel Valley 93924

Hypocritical action

Dear Editor:

It is being hypocritical to condemn old-timers like the Odellos when other property owners have fully developed their lands and actually caused the Odellos' land to be in a higher tax bracket.

They pay more than three times the taxes per acre than the best fertile lands of the Salinas Valley.

More for Odellos

Dear Editor:

The last stand of eucalyptus has gone down beneath that yellow tractor. I am appalled that so much building is being allowed in the mouth of the valley and elsewhere in Carmel and Carmel Valley.

At the same time the Odellos are being denied. This is a long-standing injustice as old-timers well know.

How unfair this is, particularly when the Odellos want to save the majority of their property for farming.

Carmel planners okay condo project

By BABS COROVESIS

THE CARMEL PLANNING Commission gave concept approval last week to plans for eight condominiums to be built on Mission between Seventh and Eighth.

The project, designed by Alan Turpen Associates, envisions two buildings connected by a walkway. Each 1,300 square foot condominium will contain two bedrooms and two baths. The plans also provide for 17 underground parking spaces. The building will have an elevator and sauna.

Turpen would not estimate the value of the project. He estimated that construction would start by the end of the year. Primary owners are N. Pecora and T. Moore.

City Planning Director Bob Griggs told the commission the project is one that "the staff is excited about."

However, when Griggs mentioned the plans called for a basement area, Commissioner Sandy Swain commented, "You said basement. And I'm tree-shy."

Griggs explained that the slope of the land was such that the excavation is already there. The project will involve removal of one tree, he said.

THE MEETING also marked the swearing-in of two new commissioners—Eugene Cava and Pauline Taylor. Planning Commission Chairman Robert Stephenson said after the meeting that he had appointed Cava to replace former Commissioner Don Davidson on the Land Use Committee. He said Miss Taylor will serve temporarily on the Design Review Committee to fill in for Commissioner Arthur Mertens who will be absent for several weeks.

During its meeting the commission agreed

The Mayor's Report

It's budget time!

By BARNEY LAIOLA

THE PAST WEEK has been a very busy one. We have had budget sessions and public meetings to discuss various issues.

For those who aren't aware of where the monies to run our city come from, I'll try to give you a simplified explanation.

Estimated receipts from property taxes, sales tax, garbage, T.V. and PGE franchise taxes, business licenses and property transfer taxes total $1,729,000.00.

Licenses and permits including dog, building, plan checks, lodging and other permits total $36,350.00.

Various fines total $7,300.00.

Interest earned, rents, pay phones, etc., total $219,600.00.

Miscellaneous charges for police services, etc., total $21,900.00.

Other miscellaneous revenue totals $2500.00.

Various grants for open space, traffic safety, Transportation Development Act funds, etc., are estimated at $65,000.00.

IN THE PAST we received funds for liquor sales, cigarette sales, motor vehicle in lieu fees, business inventory taxes and highway carrier taxes. This totaled about $5000.00 but we will not receive these funds due to tax changes in Sacramento.

We also receive income from Sunset Center, room rentals and performing arts, the Forest Theater, etc. This will come to approximately $95,000.00.

Transfers from other funds such as hostelry tax, gas fund, library fund, revenue sharing retirement, parking and traffic safety net approximately $1,977,405.00.

The total is better than $4,000,000.00!

ON THE EXPENSE side of the ledger our City Council expenses, including salaries for four councilpersons, the premiums on medical, dental, prescription and vision care insurance policies, and miscellaneous costs total $17,790.00.

Our legal fees, including the basic retainer for the City Attorney and outside costs for contractual attorney fees, come to $59,010.00.

Engineering costs are estimated at $5000.00.

The City Treasurer's proposed services amount to $1080.00.

The estimated total cost of the Administrative Department is $104,000.00.

Our Finance Department expenses are set to be $89,020.00.

The Planning Department shows a figure of $64,940.00.

THE ANTICIPATED cost of operating the Cultural and Community activities is $178,665.00.

The Building Inspector's Department estimates $84,315.00.

The total estimate for Police protection is $875,240.00.

The paid firemen and the volunteer plan costs of operation and capital outlay totals $366,755.00.

The Street Department costs, including salaries and operational equipment, are estimated at $494,148.00.

Our Forestry Division shows a total of $264,508.00.

Utilities and building maintenance are pegged at $96,800.00.

A sum of $24,750.00 was voted as the top figure by the council for grants to outside organizations of the Monterey Peninsula.

THIS GIVES YOU a general ideal of where the money comes from and where the money goes.

The exact amount will not be known until all items have been considered and a vote of approval has been reached by the council.

It is my hope that while some of the capital improvements requested by various department heads may seem worthy, the council will look closely at the requests and allow only the truly necessary items at this time.

On the lighter side...credit goes to the persons responsible for the nice plantings in front of the post office and the effective added color inside. Their work shows their interest in keeping Carmel beautiful.

I congratulate Doug Peterson and Jim Bajari for a well-documented and intelligent presentation in preparing the proposed budget.

Budgetarily Smiling,

to a change in its rules of procedure to allow the commission to sit as the Board of Adjustments at its second monthly meeting rather than the first meeting of each month.

The Board of Adjustments handles public hearings on use permits and variances in the city.

IN OTHER ACTION, the Commission:

•Approved design review for building and site for Allen Funch, on Dolores Street near Seventh; Dennis C. Navaez, on San Carlos near Seventh; Scott Hennessy and Ronald Garrew, on Ocean near Monte Verde, and the Pecora and Moore condominiums on Mission.

•Denied a request by Atelier Galleries, Inc. on Dolores near Sixth on window plans. The Commission asked the owners to resubmit drawings on its entry doors.

Continued a request for column and fence by Roy D. Kaufman on San Antonio near Ninth. Although Griggs noted that the maximum fence level allowed under design review is six feet seven inches, the Commission balked at that height.

Commissioner John Logan said he would "like to see a limit."

A representative for the owner told the commission "the fence is already in existence, of course." The fence apparently was built last month and a stop work order was issued by the city when the fence was sighted.

Logan said he wanted to see the fence before acting on the matter.

•A similar postponement was determined by the commission on a request by Frank Logoluso's request for a fence, column and gate so that the exact height could be measured.

•Design study requests were approved for five persons: Darwin and Babette Jaster, San Carlos at Alta; Rollin E. Meyer Jr., Carmelo near 11th; Patti Curnow, Lincoln and 10th; Hoyt Tarola, Dolores near Eighth; C. Linton, Monte Verde near 13th.

•Projects by Walter Neel, Valley Way and Lobos, and T. Pashos, Torres near Eighth, were asked to be re-submitted with more details. The commission also continued a request for a two-story restoration and remodeling by G. Newman, at Camino Real and Seventh.

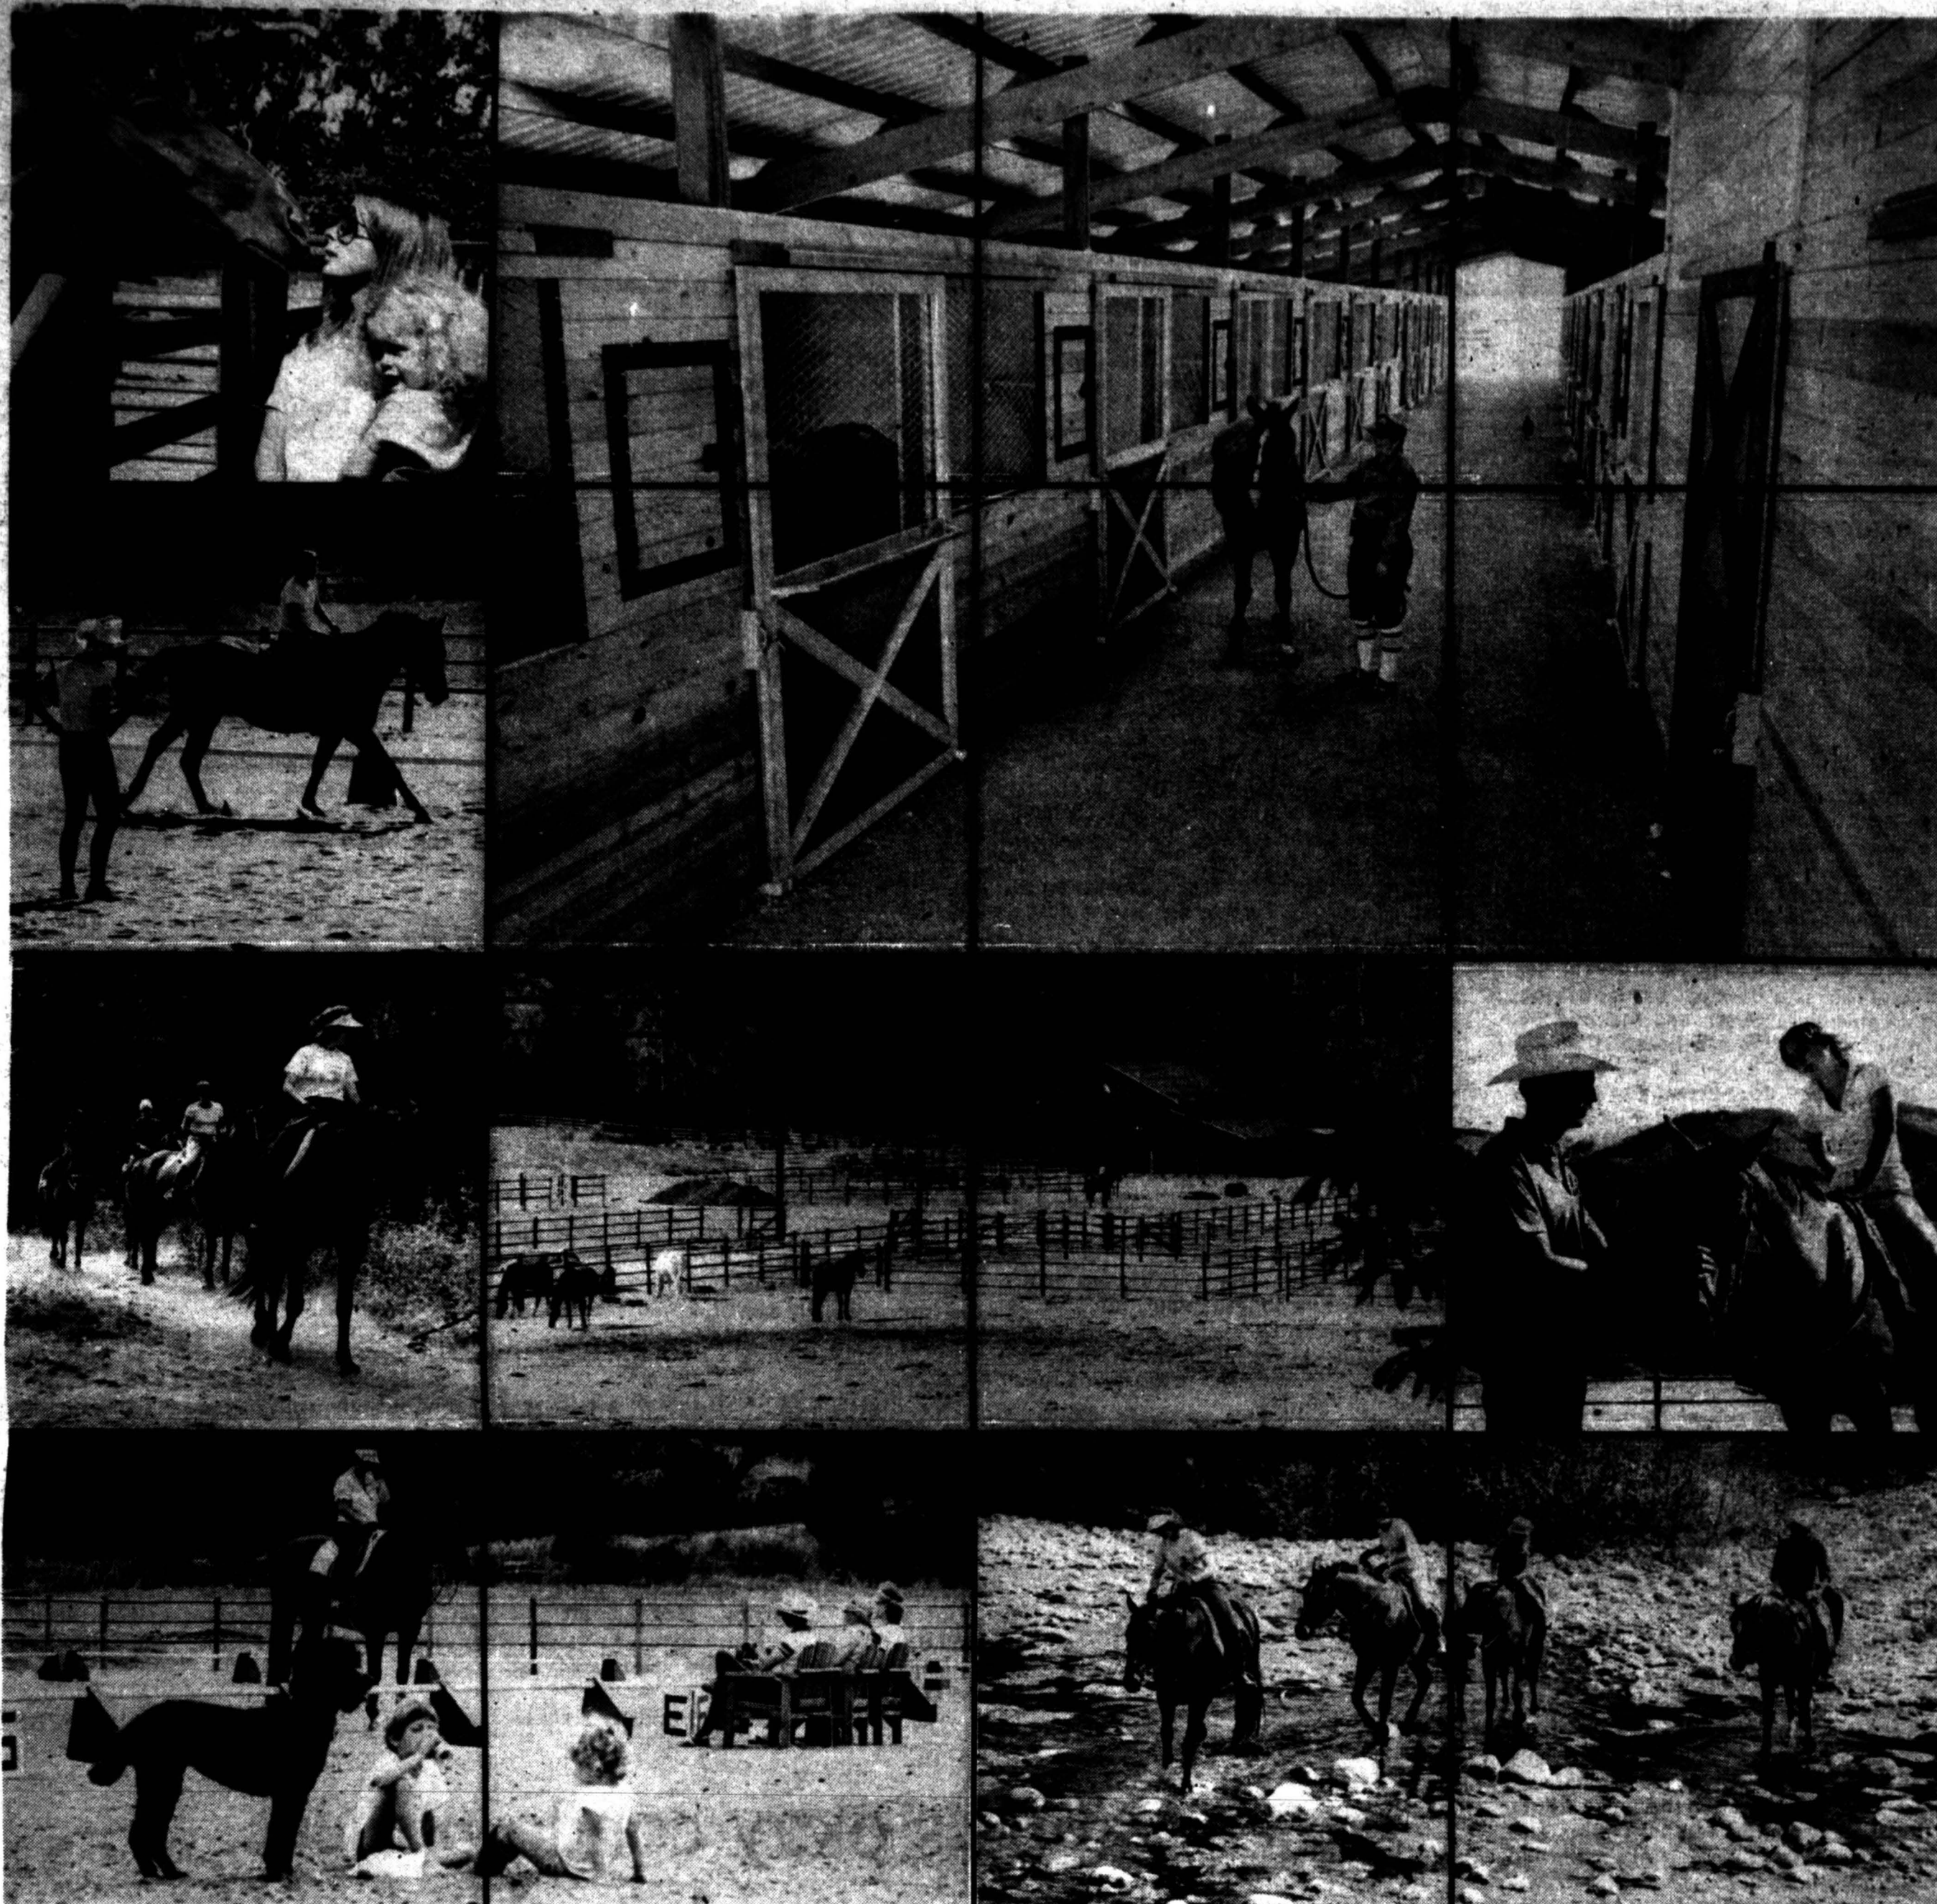

•A total of nine sign requests also were approved, including the Forest Theater Guild, Inc., two temporary signs; The Mail Box and Western Union, San Carlos and Eighth; R. L. Dieckmann Antiques, Ocean near Lincoln; The Coin Center, Dolores and Fifth; Monterey Baking Company, Ocean near Lincoln; Atelier Gallerie, Dolores near Sixth; Toc of the Town, Mission near Fifth; Blare Mackie Hair Design, Lincoln near Fifth.

•The Commission delayed action for a week on a request by the Village Coffee Shop at Carmel Plaza for sign approval until it can hear from owner Steve Jacobs. A sign request by Jack Wall, artist, on San Carlos near Fourth was denied. A sign request by Julie Gregory Gallery No. 2 on Mission near Fifth will have to be resubmitted.

•Sitting as the Board of Adjustments, the Commission authorized variances for Nancy Welch, Junipero near Eighth; Patti Curnow, Lincoln and 10th; and Ernest Arbuckle, Carmel near 12th.

Use permits also were approved for Peter and Nancy Schlicht, Fifth near San Carlos; Donald Rocco, Junipero near Fourth, and Patti Curnow, Lincoln and 10th.

You owe your horse--and yourself-- the good life at Rancho Laureles

SOUND, PROFESSIONAL horse care begins with safe, comfortable accommodations and a high-quality feeding program at Rancho Laureles.

Our deluxe new barn offers the ultimate in luxury, safety and comfort. Each 12 x 12 box stall opens onto a securely fenced 24-foot paddock. Inside, all stalls have foot-cushioning rubber mats, automatic waterers and feeders. Stall fronts and sliding doors have heavy-gauge mesh so the horse benefits from good air circulation and seeing what's going on, while he is prevented from hanging his head over the door and possibly fussing with passing horses or people.

Walls between stalls are solid, so there's no rivalry with the horse next door. And all edges are reinforced with metal anti-chew strips. There's even a convenient blanket rack on each stall door.

Two spacious tack rooms are convenient to all stalls and offer individual tack lockers for each patron.

Of course, our old barn has a charm all its own, with oversized, exceptionally airy stalls and the same large adjoining paddocks. A large new wash rack with hot water to pamper your horse is right outside.

WHERE WE RIDE

Our two securely-fenced riding arenas offer excellent, well-drained sand footing. One measures 135 x 325 and is used for basic schooling as well as jumping. Our new 150 x 275 foot arena includes a regulation dressage court with plenty of room to spare!

And our 75-foot round lungeing arena is proving useful not only for lungeing, but for working green horses or beginning riders who profit from the secure surroundings.

The half-mile sand track that encircles our easterly fields is a perfect place to warm up a horse (or cool him out after a workout), leg up for an event or simply trot a few miles as good exercise.

Then there's Garland Park with its 541 acres of trails, plus the adjoining trails through to Robinson Canyon and the soon-to-be-opened new parkland to the east — a trailrider's paradise, uniquely beautiful every day of the year.

THE FINEST CARE

Now, more than ever, we believe that our feeding program pays off. Our 17% protein alfalfa hay cubes put weight on even rundown, skinny horses and keep it there.

We are also pleased to work with two of Monterey County's finest veterinarians and an excellent farrier, who all contribute to your horse's overall health and well-being.

LESSONS, ANYONE?

Whether you're just learning to post or have a specific problem over fences or in dressage, Doug Downing, our knowledgeable and very personable instructor, will come up with an answer.

He is available for private, semi-private or small group lessons on the flat or over fences.

GOOD COMPANY

One of the nicest things about Rancho Laureles is its relaxed, informal atmosphere. People tend to linger, and that makes us feel good, because it means they like it here. After a ride, they'll sit around, enjoy a cup of coffee or a soft drink and chat — mostly about horses, of course, but not always. Real friendships have grown among our riders.

But best of all, newcomers are made to feel genuinely welcome, whether they're nervous beginners or old pros. There's always a helping hand and a generous sprinkling of advice, and you feel you "belong" right from the start.

Seeing is believing. Why not drive out into the Carmel Valley sunshine to pay us a visit?

Forest Theater is readied for summer

Amid the chirping and chatter of blue jays and squirrels, members of Carmel's Forest Theater Guild are busy getting ready for two plays to be presented this summer. "Winterset" by Maxwell Anderson will open the season at the historic outdoor theater on July 2, followed by Fay and Michael Kanin's "Rashomon" on August 6.

Director Cole Weston is busy polishing "Winterset" for its opening night next week. The cast is being weaned from the script books and the sets are nearing completion.

The rustic outdoor theater is only three blocks from Devendorf Park, yet the natural amphitheater makes a perfect woodsy setting. Tall pines frame the stage and there is even a view of waves breaking at Point Lobos from the back of the theater.

The bustle of preparations at the theater seems to be felt even by the wildlife there, but it is expected that the chirping of squirrels, blue jays and woodpeckers will quiet down by opening night. The raccoons which live under the stage will soon be making their appearance too.

TERRY FRY, assistant director, toasts a marshmallow as she keeps an eye on Winterset script during rehearsal.

Exemplary performance at Hidden Valley

By LYN BRONSON

WE ARE ONCE again fortunate to have had the legendary Elizabeth Schwarzkopf in our midst, conducting a vocal master class on the campus of Hidden Valley Seminars in Carmel Valley all last week.

The master class concept has enjoyed a considerable vogue in recent years, although it is, of course, an old and respected institution. We might even say that the first recorded master class was conducted in ancient Greece by Socrates. Unfortunately for him, a strong reaction from what could be called an "un-Athenian activities committee" branded him a subversive, resulting in his untimely end.

Happily, we can report that persons conducting musical master classes are in no way likely to suffer such an ignominious fate.

What Hidden Valley presented last week was a dignified, informal class. Madame Schwarzkopf's charm and authority constantly interacted with the performers so that we were able to observe problems being identified and solved right in front of our eyes. The deep knowledge and love she has for the vocal repertoire surfaced again and again. What a great inspiration it was!

If there is any complaint to be made, it might be that participants were interrupted and instructed from the very first note. Most master classes permit an uninterrupted performance before teacher and participant work out the details. One also wishes that more time were devoted to musical and dramatic problems than to the pronunciation of German and Italian. Except for these minor reservations, there is nothing but admiration for Madame Schwarzkopf's skill in her craft and love for her art which she communicates so well.

ON THURSDAY, June 18, class members were heard in recital, ably assisted by pianist Nohema Fernandez. Madame Schwarzkopf, looking radiantly beautiful, addressed the audience and said that getting to know each one of the performers in the class had been an exciting experience for her. She wished them all success in their future careers.

For some of them, their careers had already started. Tenor Jonathan Mack of Los Angeles has a two-year contract with an opera company in Kiel, Germany, starting August 10. Baritone Thomas Hampson, also of Los Angeles, departs soon for a similar position in Dusseldorf, Germany, and soprano Ruth Golden has a contract for a ten-week summer opera program in San Francisco. Some of the other participants undoubtedly are well launched on their careers about which we are unaware - there were no press packets giving us background information, and the meager information I gleaned was from brief conversations during short breaks. In any event, it must be made clear that these were not students, but young professionals, and the performance level was on an extraordinarily high level.

THE PARTICIPANTS' recital was begun by bass-baritone Reg Huston of Carmel Valley, an outstanding star of many previous Hidden Valley opera productions. He sang a spirited "Aprite un po' quegli occhi" from Mozart's Marriage of Figaro and impressed us once again with his exciting natural voice, impressive musicianship and attention to dramatic details.

Soprano Gail Moser, from Menlo Park, sang "O zittre nicht" from the Magic Flute. Miss Moser's voice excelled in her highest register and achieved beautiful intensity on some of the highest and most dangerous coloratura passages heard during the evening.

Soprano Janet Payne, from Buena Park, displayed dramatic intensity and a light, airy quality in "Dove Sono" from the Marriage of Figaro. Her beautiful pianissimos were especially impressive.

Soprano Barbara Swedlow, a resident of Santa Clara, was heard in "Dich theure Halle, from Wagner's Tannhauser, displaying a mature voice, full of warmth and feeling.

Tenor Jonath Welch, from San Diego, who bore more than a slight resemblance to Luciano Pavarotti, treated us to an incredibly intense and passionate performance of "Ah, fuyez, douce image" from Manon by Massenet. His climax achieved such a fortissimo I thought my eyeglasses were going to shatter. (Not to worry, I remembered later than I was wearing plastic lenses.)

Baritone Thomas Hampson, from Los Angeles, was heard in "Freundlich E Vision" by Strauss and "Deh vieni alla finestra" from Mozart's Don Giovanni. Hampson's was a intimate, elegant performance. Although one wished for more intensity, there was no mistaking that this is a voice with a beautiful natural quality reminiscent of a young Fischer-Dieskau.

THE YOUNG TENOR from Los Angeles, Jonathan Mack, sang "Notre Amour" by Faure and an aria by Richard Strauss. Mack's beautiful sense of style pursued and captured the different characters of the French and German songs, and he was utterly convincing in each.

Soprano Velvali de Ayxa, from Carmel Valley, was heard in "Deh vieni non tardar" from the Marriage of Figaro. Miss de Ayxa's voice, while not displaying enough power for some roles, had a sweet quality and consistency which was always appealing.

Soprano Ruth Golden is well known to Monterey Peninsula audiences as the grand prize winner of the Carmel Music Society's Third Annual Young California Artist Competition in 1979. As the first prize winner, she appeared in recital on the society's regular subscription series in May 1980; one of the highlights of her program was Schubert's "Der Hirt auf dem Felsen." It was this song Miss Golden chose for this recital, once again with the beautiful partnership of clarinetist Craig Olzenak. Under Madame Schwarzkopf's influence Miss Golden had made a few changes - she was more relaxed in some places, more intense in others, and the climax was even more exciting than at her performance a year ago.

To close the program, mezzo-soprano Gail Dubinbaum, whose voice has a somber, dark quality, sang two songs by Richard Strauss, "Ruhe meine Seele" and "Zueignung." Addressing the audience, Miss Dubinbaum explained that the German Zueignung means "dedication" and that she wanted to dedicate this performance of the song to Madame Schwarzkopf in grateful recognition of the inspiration she had been to all the participants.

ON SUNDAY EVENING, Hidden Valley presented violinist Glenn Dicterow in a program of violin and piano sonatas with pianist Nohema Fernandez. Mr. Dicterow's recital was a prelude to his appearance as a master class teacher at Hidden Valley during the week of June 22.

The Carmel Music Society presented Dicterow in a joint recital with pianist James Fields at Sunset Center in Carmel six years ago and thus it is a pleasure to welcome him back.

Dicterow and Fernandez opened with the Bach Sonata No. 3 in E Major which amply displayed Mr. Dicterow's easy, natural approach to the violin. The Brahms Sonata No. 3 in D Minor which followed was a bit of a disappointment. There was a feeling of waiting for something to happen, and then suddenly it was intermission time. Mostly the problem was in the piano part, which tended to accompany rather than aggressively participate as an equal partner.

After intermission, in the Prokofiev Sonata No. 2 in D Major, we heard the best ensemble playing of the evening. The first two movements displayed solidity and exciting rhythmic propulsion. The serpentine flowing melody in the "Andante" was very moving, and the last movement sounded as though it were going to burst into the familiar strains of Peter and the Wolf at any moment. This was very exciting music-making indeed!

After lengthy applause, Mr. Dicterow treated us to an impressive account of the "Scherzo" from the 4th Violin Concerto of Vieuxtemps as an encore.

Auditions are scheduled for Children's Chorus

Auditions for the Carmel Bach Festival Children's Chorus will be held Saturday, June 27, at the Church of the Wayfarer, Lincoln and 7th Street, Carmel, in the Fellowship Hall.

Children with treble voices from grades 4 through 8 are welcome to audition. The children will sing in the first part of the performance of Bach's The Passion According to St. Matthew at the Sunset Theater, Sunday, July 19 and July 26.

Children will be expected to attend rehearsals Monday through Friday afternoons during July at the Girl Scout House at the Sunset Center. To make appointments for auditions phone the Bach Festival office at 624-1521. Children should bring some music to the audition or come prepared to sing a song from memory.

Big balloon race is July 4th

The American Tin Cannery Shopping Mall will stage its second Balloon Race and contest Saturday, July 4. An added attraction will be "The Chevy Show" with new model cars being shown in the mall by Singleton Chevrolet.

Ten huge hot air balloons, seven stories high, will take off from the rear parking lot of The American Tin Cannery about 8 a.m., depending on wind conditions. They will race to an undisclosed destination about ten miles from the lot.

The public is invited to see the preparation and takeoff and to enter a contest to choose the winning balloon and estimate the time it will take the winner to reach the destination.

Contest entry blanks are available at all American Tin Cannery stores on Ocean View Boulevard. Entries must be deposited in the stores not later than Wednesday July 1, at 12 p.m.

The balloons will return to the mall after the race, and the top three winners will receive awards (dinner for two at The Sardine Factory,

The Rogue and The Carmel Butcher Shop), and their traditional case of champagne.

The Ardan store will be giving $2500 worth of prizes to people attending the morning takeoff, and the other merchants in the mall will be giving $1500 worth of prizes to winners of the balloon race contest, at about 1 p.m. Included in the Ardan prizes will be a diamond ring worth $995. Children will receive free American flags.

Tammi Janine Caudill — Miss Salinas Valley — and her attendants will assist in the festivities and prize distribution.

The enormous balloons will display a rainbow of colors, so that their parade across the Monterey Peninsula sky is certain to be a spectacular display for this 4th of July celebration.

The ten balloon race sponsors are: American Tin Cannery Shopping Mall, Bank of America NT&SA, Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees International Union - H.E.R.E., The Hyatt Del Monte, The Monterey Peninsula Herald, The Monterey Travel Agency, Nob Hill Foods, Kidwell's and Singleton Chevrolet.

The fast cars to be displayed in "The Chevy Show" will contrast sharply with the giant balloons which are the slowest though most graceful way to travel.

For more information phone 375-6063.

Cetacean Society meets

The natural history of a Caribbean coral reef will be the subject of a slide presentation at a meeting of the American Cetacean Society tonight at 7:30.

Dr. Steven K. Webster, Director of Education at the Monterey Bay Aquarium, Cannery Row, will speak. The public is invited and admission is free.

The meeting will be at the Monterey Boat Works at the Hopkins Marine Station, Pacific Grove. For more information phone 375-5931.

TEN MULTI-COLORED hot air balloons, seven stories high, will compete in a race near the American Tin Cannery Shopping Mall Saturday, July 4. The public is invited to guess which balloon will finish the ten mile race. To win you must guess the hour, minute and second the first balloon lands. Entries must be in at the mall on Ocean View Boulevard in Monterey by 12 p.m. Wednesday, July 1.

Renowned flutist to give recital

World renowned flutist, Julius Baker, will present his 11th annual public recital on the Monterey Peninsula on Sunday, June 28, at 8 p.m. in the Hidden Valley Theater, Carmel Valley and Ford roads, in Carmel Valley. His recital marks the beginning of his week-long flute master class that attracts outstanding flutists from throughout the United States.

Baker is currently the solo flutist of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and Professor of Flute at the Juilliard School of Music, the Curtis Institute of Music, and the New England Conservatory.

Born in Cleveland, Ohio, Baker graduated from the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and returned to Cleveland to play in the Cleveland Orchestra under Arthur Rodzinski. Subsequently, Mr. Baker held the principal flute position with the CBS Symphony in New York and the Chicago Symphony. Mr. Baker has appeared as soloist throughout the United States, Canada, Europe and the Orient. He has recorded for RCA Victor, Decca, Vanguard, Westminster and Des Mar. He has conducted his flute master class on the West Coast since 1970 and at Hidden Valley since 1974. Residents of the Monterey Peninsula may audit this master class through the Monterey Peninsula College. Interested people may register at the door for a small fee. Tickets to the Julius Baker flute recital, and the Lorne Munroe Cello Recital on July 26, may be purchased at Hidden Valley box offices throughout the Monterey Peninsula for $8.00. For further information on the recitals, or auditing the master classes, phone 659-3115.

60-MINUTE GOURMET

By PIERRE FRANEY

'Oeufs a la tripe'

The nomenclature of various dishes is fascinating, for things are, to borrow a phrase, seldom what they seem. There is a crisp puff-pastry dessert called pig's ears; a Mont Blanc is a "mountain" of pureed chestnuts; and eggs in the snow, or les oeufs a la neige, are poached meringues floating in a vanilla custard.

One of my favorite foods with an allusion in its name is oeufs a la tripe, or eggs tripe style. It does not, of course, contain one millimeter of tripe; the name refers to hard-cooked eggs with sliced onions, the combination of which in a light cream sauce gives the illusion (or perhaps gave the illusion to the chef who created it) of strings of tripe such as you find in tripe a la mode de Caen or tripe Lyonnaise. I find this to be one of the most gratifying of luncheon dishes and one that also serves well (with a nice chilled white Burgundy) as a Sunday brunch dish.

It is easy to do and can be made ready for the table in far less than 60 minutes. To prepare it, cook onions and mushrooms (the mushrooms are my own addition; they are not basic to the recipe) until wilted, add a sprinkling of flour and then milk and cream plus seasoning. The sauce is allowed to cook for about 15 minutes to meld flavors, during which time the eggs are cooked, then sliced and gently folded in.

When I prepared this dish recently I found excellent zucchini and tomatoes in the market and assembled a salad with chopped red onion and chopped anchovy fillets. It was something on the order of a modified salade Nicoise, quickly made and an excellent accompaniment to the egg dish. It is recommended that you cook the zucchini briefly for this salad before you begin the eggs in cream sauce. The zucchini slices should be lukewarm before being added to the salad.

SLICED EGGS IN CREAM SAUCE

8 eggs; 2 cups thinly sliced onions; 1 bay leaf; 1/4 pound mushrooms, thinly sliced, about 1 1/2 cups; 1 tablespoon butter; 1 tablespoon flour; 1/2 cup milk; 1/2 cup heavy cream; 1/8 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg; salt, if desired; freshly ground pepper to taste; Cayenne pepper to taste.

1. Place the eggs in a saucepan and add cold water to cover. Bring to a boil and let simmer about 12 minutes. Drain.
2. Coarsely chop the onion slices.
3. Heat the butter in a saucepan and add the onions and bay leaf. Cook briefly, stirring, until wilted, about two minutes. Add the mushrooms and cook, stirring, about three minutes.
4. Sprinkle with the flour and stir to blend. Add the milk and cream, stirring rapidly. Add nutmeg, salt and pepper, and cayenne. Bring to a boil and let simmer about 15 minutes.
5. Peel and slice the eggs. Add them to the cream sauce and fold them in.

Yield: 4 servings.

ZUCCHINI AND TOMATO SALAD

2 eggs; 2 zucchini, about 3/4 pound; salt to taste; 2 red, ripe tomatoes, cut into quarter-inch-thick slices; freshly ground pepper to taste; 1/4 cup finely chopped red onion; 8 flat anchovy fillets; 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar; 1/4 cup finely chopped parsley; 6 tablespoons olive oil.

1. Put the eggs in a saucepan and add cold water to cover. Bring to a boil and let simmer about five minutes. Drain.
2. Trim the ends of the zucchini and cut them slightly on the bias into quarter-inch-thick slices. Drop the slices into boiling salted water and let simmer one and a half to two minutes. The zucchini must retain a certain resilience.
3. Arrange the zucchini and tomato slices in alternate patterns in a round serving dish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with the chopped onion.
4. Peel the eggs and cut them into quarters. Garnish the serving dish with the wedges. Arrange the anchovy fillets between the eggs. Sprinkle with vinegar, parsley and oil and serve.

Yield: 4 servings.

More praise for The Whaling Station Inn

From "Where to Eat in America" by William Rice, Food Editor, Washington Post and Burton Wolf. Their current diners' guide:

WORTH IT

Whaling Station Inn, 763 Wave Street, one block above Cannery Row, Monterey (373-4248). In an area where dining establishments are a big deal both in price and size, here is a really well-run restaurant that lives up to its PR. The decor is of a whaling station at the end of the 19th century. Features steaks and fish broiled on a grill over oak wood and grape cuttings. The result is magnificent. Try salmon if it is in season. Reservations suggested. Open seven days a week. Complete dinners from $9.95.

Excerpt from New West Mag. 1/80 Restaurants, by Sandra Rosenzweig:
...Most of the entrees are cooked over an open-hearth grill, and they tend to be whatever is fresh and local.

The Whaling Station Inn, right above Cannery Row, showcases the county's abundant seafood, green vegetables and excellent wines, and it adds panache to quality. Even before they have ordered, each pair of diners is presented with a Castrovilla artichoke drizzled with vinaigrette and topped with mayonnaise.

On the creative, four-page wine list, devoted entirely to California wines, Monterey County wines take up two pages. Entrees run from $9.95 to $14.95.

Excerpt from Cuisine Mag. 1/80 by William Rice

The Whaling Station Inn, a full-scale restaurant on Wave Street, is just above John Steinbeck's old haunts. From his Italian heritage, owner John Pisto brought a fondness for olive oil, garlic, fresh vegetables and a conviction that copious portions are what everyone expects.

Perhaps the prize exhibit in the kitchen he finished two years ago this month is a sizable pit grill fueled by oak wood. It is used for steak, of course, but even more often for fish. Local fish, some of which Pisto catches himself, gets top billing with the famed Monterey Bay prawns, a special treat when available during fall and winter months.

The restaurant succeeds, he feels, because "we don't try to overreach ourselves. We're very unpretentious. We don't try to hide the foods. They are what they are."

Annual Dressage Championships come to P.B.

MORE THAN 60 entrants from Northern California will gather at the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center on Saturday and Sunday, June 27 and 28 for the annual Pebble Beach Dressage Championships. The public is invited free, although there is a $4 per car gate fee at the entrance to Del Monte Forest. Pictured is Ellen McWilliams of Carmel Valley on Raven.

More than sixty entrants from Northern California will gather at Pebble Beach Equestrian Center on Portola Road Saturday and Sunday June 27 and 28 for the 35th Annual Pebble Beach Dressage Championships.

The event was scheduled several months earlier this year than in the past, and separated from the traditional Summer Horse Show. This focus upon the Dressage Championships plus the general growing interest in educated riding has resulted in double the number of entries from previous years.

Peter Lert, past President California Dressage Society, will judge First Level tests, along with Ms. Elizabeth Serle of San Juan Bautista.

Ms. Searle will select the winning combinations from Tests II through Grand Prix.

The program Saturday starts at 8 a.m. with Levels I and III and continues through F.E.I. Prix St. Georges test on Saturday afternoon. Out-of-town riders scheduled to perform at that higher level are Tracy Lert on Queen's Hunt; Kathy Charles on Dax and Jill Munroe on Theophilus.

Sunday morning at 8 a.m. the Dressage Championships get under way with the F.E.I. Intermediate Test and then go on to Level II and a Kur or free-style ride in which the rider creates and executes from memory an original ride showing off the horse to its best advantage.

According to the American Horse Show Association rule book, in a free style ride "the artistic presentation should be emphasized and music is optional."

Upper level Tests IV will begin Sunday afternoon at 2:51 in the Forest Ring and will continue through the Grand Prix by Alexandra Howard, member United States Equestrian Team, at 5:30 p.m.

The public is invited free of charge to watch the Dressage Championships. Only the usual Del Monte Forest gate fee of $4 will be applicable. Food is available all day long on the grounds.

For information phone the Equestrian Center at 624-2756.

Classes and demonstrations at Cooks' Club

Sole meuniere and almondine, chicken curry salad, and all kinds of chocolate desserts will be the highlights at cooking demonstrations by the Cooks' Club Saturday, Sunday and Monday, June 27, 28 and 29.

The cooking of sole meuniere and sole almondine will be demonstrated Saturday, June 27 from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and from 1-3 p.m.

The chicken curry rice salad and tabouli salad will be demonstrated at the same times Sunday, June 28.

The chocolate dessert demonstration will be a class Monday, June 29. After the desserts are made, students may eat them.

The class is $13 and begins at 12:30 p.m. at the Peppercorn Restaurant, the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

Desserts to be made are Gateau Gentille Jeanne, chocolate almond torte layered with raspberries, sprinkled with strawberries and enclosed in chocolate mousse; pots de creme chocolate, and fraises au chocolat blanc.

The Saturday and Sunday demonstrations are free.

Reservations are required for all classes and become confirmed only when payment is received. Seats are assigned first to those with paid reservations.

For more information phone 625-0100.

Monterey County parks seek volunteers

The Monterey County Parks Department is looking for volunteers.

It seeks people to work at each of the seven regional parks in the county for 20 hours a week.

Needed are projectionists for campfire programs, leaders for nature walks, people to supervise hay rides, people for building and grounds maintenance, instructors in recreation activities and people for other jobs related to parks.

Volunteers will not be required to enforce park rules.

The program is patterned after similar ones conducted by the San Diego County Parks Department and the U.S. Forestry Service.

It will allow the Monterey County Parks Department to expand service and give the participant a rewarding outdoor experience.

The emphasis will be at Laguna Seca and San Antonio Lake, north and south shores. These parks offer a combination of camping and recreational activities.

Volunteers will be covered by accident insurance and will receive a uniform shirt and hat. They will be provided campsites at no charge; there will be no other compensation.

Anyone interested should write to the Monterey County Parks Department, Courthouse-Salinas, P.O. Box 367, Salinas, California, 93902 for an application, or phone 424-1971 for more information.

School of Music offers summer curriculum for children

Dancin', Singin', and Playin', a special summer session for children five to 11 years of age, will begin at the Monterey Peninsula School of Music Monday, June 29.

The program, which will continue for one month, will be held at the United Methodist Church of Monterey, 1 Soledad Drive. Avon Gillespie, a specialist in the Orff-Schulwerk method, will teach the program. For more information phone 659-2545.

Wine Connoisseur

Great food and wine discoveries in Italy

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

ADD TO THE list of great European chefs the name of Gualterio Marchesi of Milan. His own two-level restaurant in this bustling metropolis is not only the city's finest restaurant, but must be ranked with that of Fredy Girardet of Crissier in Switzerland, Paul Bocuse in Collonges au Mont d'Or, Roger Verge of the Moulin de Mougins, the brothers Troisgros, Alain Senderens of L'Archevêque in Paris, Jean-Marie Amat of Le St. James of Bordeaux, and Max Kehl of Chez Max in Zurich.

This listing does not pretend to be comprehensive, and is here only to frame properly the brilliance of the Milanese Gualterio Marchesi, in whose restaurant we concluded our three-week visit to the Italian wine country.

Should your travel plans include Milan, write ahead for a reservation in this handsomely appointed gourmet rendezvous. It will not be inexpensive, but the $75 to $85 plus tab, including wines which can stretch it even higher, will be an investment in memories to last a lifetime.

Marchesi is thoroughly and completely Milanese, though he had his initial training with the brothers Troisgros in France. Beyond these initial apprentice years, he is self-taught, working with foodstuffs as an artist works with pigments. All the dishes are counter-balanced with Marchesi's own selection of wines from small producers; chances are, you'll never see any of those wines again beyond the doors of the restaurant, including the Brut Marchesi which opened our feast.

A CUVÉE OF Riesling, Prosecco and Verdiso, crisp, clean, dry, sparkling was poured with a Crostino with glistening morsels of marinated smoked salmon, garnished with diced bits of cucumber, tomato, chervil, a tasting souvenir of gazpacho. This was followed by an arranged plate presenting Marchesi's own Fresh Goose Liver Pate, garnished with tiny forest-green baby string beans, and glistening small cubes of double-consomme gelatine. The pink foie gras was as soft and tender as butter, marrying with a 1980 Sylvaner from the Italian Tyrol.

It goes against our journalist philosophy to describe meals not readily available to the reader, but our justification here is to etch, in part, something of the gastronomic artistry of Marchesi. Some readers with their own culinary skills might even take inspiration directly to their own kitchens, as with the next course, a small individual timbale ring, dark green from a puree of watercress, texture and color in contrast to tiny morsels of boneless frogs' legs, looking, in their oil and vinaigrette marinade, like small white-pink coral beads.

The entree of sliced breast of duck, pink to ruby rare, with green peppercorns and tortelli filled with pumpkin, came on with 1976 Vinegazzu del Montello of Veneto, a big, rich wine of 60 percent Merlot balanced with Cabernet Franc, further evidence of the viticultural and vinicultural revolution currently taking place in Italy. These are non-DOC grape varieties; the winemaker is concerned only with the quality of his wine, rather than any constricting regulation. Marchesi's sommelier, Giuseppe Vaccarini, won Europe's trophy as the Number One winetaster of the Continent!

ON THE EVENING of this concluding banquet, we still had vivid memories of our own winetasting experiences of the previous day, in Piemonte, at the relatively small Cantine Duca D'Asti in Calmandrana, near Asti. Michele Chiarlo, 46, is owner-general manager and winemaker, a classmate of the renowned Dr. Renato Ratti of Barolo when they were both at the enological college in Alba. With him, we tasted two of the finest wines of our journey, one red, one white, both soon to be in America's better wine emporiums through the good importation of Kobrand Corporation of New York. Chiarlo expects his first shipments to arrive in New York for distribution in August.

The first wine, a rich, long and fragrant white wine, 1980 Gran Duca Cortese di Gava is exactly made for the American palate and purse. It will retail for just about $5 and is designed for service as an aperitif, or service right through a meal. "Cortese" is the name of the grape, and Gavi is the hilly region of origin between Piemonte and Liguria. Cold-fermented in stainless steel, with no touch or even hint of wood, the wine fairly blooms in the glass, expanding as it rests, suggesting almost the opulence of plumeria blossoms in its fragrance.

The red wine, Gran Duca 1978 Barbera d'Asti, gives a completely new dimension to wine conceptions of the Barbera grape. Even in Italy, Barbera is considered a secondary varietal to the more noble Nebbiolo of Barolo, but this Barbera is clearly an aristocrat with Chiarlo's vinification. The bouquet of this ruby wine mingles suggestions of berries, flowers and spice. Aged for only one year in Yugoslavian oak, having completed a malolactic fermentation, it is softly seductive, ready to drink, but will hold this peak for several years. It will retail for slightly under $5.

From here, our Bacchic pilgrimage takes us alone to Switzerland, from where we'll be sending our next report, concerning what the Swiss are calling "Le Defi Californien" or "The California Challenge." Europe's winemakers are very alive to the challenges of our Golden State, and the best winemakers everywhere alert not only to the palate of the American consumer, but to the technologies developed at our good College of Viticulture & Enology at UC-Davis, which we have heard extolled over and over. Italy has been having problems galore with politics and economics, but in the vineyards and cellars, a true renaissance is blooming. We'll have more wines to tell you about, but send this slightly tardy report winging on its way for our "on the scene" reportage.

"In vino veritas..." wrote Pliny the Elder in Caesar's day: "It has become a common realization that in wine, there is truth." Customers are ever the final and best critics; the surge in sales of Italian wines in America is reflective of what our voyage has found. Better wines are on the way, at affordable prices.

Festival of Firsts winner announced

By RICHARD TYLER

ON JUNE 25 Scenes and Revelations, the play that won the first Festival of Firsts Playwriting competition, will open at the Circle in the Square Theater in New York City.

This year, as the fourth annual Festival of Firsts contest comes to a close, we are pleased to announce that Mr. Charles W. Gregory has won the $2,000 playwriting prize. In previous efforts, Mr. Gregory won the national competition of the First Repertory Theater in San Antonio, Texas, and his second play was recognized with a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Mr. Gregory, an equity member and until 10 years ago a Broadway and television actor, turned to playwriting at the insistence of his wife. He came to the United States from Canada in 1944 and for five years worked at the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York City under the direction of Sanford Meizner. He then moved into television, where he made his living for many years. He and his wife, who is a systems analyst for Paramount Pictures, make their home in Monroe, New Hampshire, one hour north of Dartmouth in Hanover.

His play won over a field of 518 works from 40 states and Mexico, Japan, Canada and Israel. The local judges this year were Mrs. Gertrude Chappell, well-known Peninsula actress who recently appeared in the Monterey Peninsula College production of Lillian Hellman's The Children's Hour; Jo Childers, former head librarian at the Harrison Memorial Library; Mrs. Harriet Shanner, past officer of the Monterey Peninsula Community Theater; and Mrs. Betty Fowlston, who has been involved in theater on the Peninsula for many years and is currently on the board of the Forest Theater Guild. The final judges for this competition were Dame Judith Anderson, who has been part of the Festival of Firsts since its inception; Robert Emmett, a well-known play doctor who lives in New York City with his wife, Kim Hunter, but was born in Carmel; and R. Wright Campbell, a nationally recognized novelist, playwright, and screen and television writer who lives in the Carmel area.

WINNERS OF TWO previous competitions were considered ready for production and have received performances at theaters in other parts of the country after the initial production in Carmel. Elan Garonzik's Scenes and Revelations, which won the first competition, was produced by the Omaha Community Playhouse, the Pennsylvania Stage Company, the Goodman Theater in Chicago and opens this month in New York. Mr. Garonzik is a client of the Audrey Wood Agency, from whom he received a coveted award earning him additional plaudits. Sally Dixon Weiner's Show Me A Hero was produced in New York City after it won the Carmel award, and is being considered by regional theaters in many parts of the country.

THE NEED FOR competitions like this one is clear from the constant inquiry we receive and the number of plays that are submitted for consideration. While the organizations which give playwrights the opportunity to see their works in production or workshop atmospheres are growing in number, there is still a great need for increased activity. Theater is the art form that makes a primary statement about man's existence. It can comment more effectively on our foibles, our morals, our beliefs than most other forms, and from it derive many other lasting creations. It even gives us the opportunity to consider future behavior and life patterns. Theater has existed in some form throughout recorded time and it is to the enhancement of Carmel that such a program is undertaken each year by the city.

THE WINNER OF this year's competition, The Sin of River Sweet, will be produced in September at Sunset Center Theater. Peter De Bono, who directed the original production of Scenes and Revelations, will direct the new winner. Preliminary auditions will take place in the Leonard Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center on Saturday and Sunday, July 11 and 12, from 1 to 5 p.m. For further information please call the Sunset Center office, at 624-3996.

AN INTERESTING comment on producers and Broadway was made in a recent Saturday Review. "If the need to hedge a gamble means that theatrical daring can only take place in nonprofit regional theaters, then perhaps Broadway's salvation lies in their future potential (The Shubert Organization, which owns half the theaters on Broadway, contributes heavily to such enterprises). Granted, as a source of inspiration, regional theater isn't always infallible. But important plays (even serious ones) are nearly always imported to New York by theater-loving producers who assume that the whole world shares their love. And despite all odds, one can still hope that audiences, who are willingly paying to attend New York shows, may even see good, stimulating, risk-taking theater on Broadway."

This year one such production will have had its start in Carmel-by-the-Sea, California.

Backgammon

Knock on wood

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You, White, roll 5-2 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it? (Since Black accepted a double earlier in the game the doubling cube is on his side of the table.)

If you let Black get out of your board, the game is over. Therefore you must hit the blot with the two. Since you cannot move on after hitting, you must leave a blot on your 5-point.

If Black hits that blot, you are dead. Therefore you must assume that he won't hit you, and there is no real point in playing the other half of your move safely.

Move from your 11-point to your 6-point to give yourself the best possible chance of covering the blot if Black doesn't come in.

Knock on wood as you make this play.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

An ounce of prevention

What about peanut butter?

By RALPH RETHERFORD, M.D.

THE PEANUT BUTTER question keeps coming up, so I've decided to devote my whole column to it today. Concern about peanut butter is understandable, since, after all, peanuts rank with motherhood and apple pie on the list of All-American favorite items. (Whoever heard of eating roasted garbanzo beans at a baseball game?)

In evaluating peanut butter as a food, it is important to look first at its composition. About 75% of the calories in peanuts come from peanut oil, which is a monounsaturated fat. The remaining calories are split between protein and carbohydrate (roughly 15% protein and 10% carbohydrate). Commercial brands of peanut butter may have even higher percentages of fat, because many contain additional hardened or hydrogenated (saturated) fats. Of course, since peanuts are a plant product, they contain no cholesterol.

"Old-fashioned" peanut butters are made from 100% pure peanuts with or without added salt. Other peanut butters have added salt, sugar, stabilizers and other chemicals, as well as extra hardened fats which make them creamy.

The only other ingredient in peanuts and peanut butter of any concern to us is aflatoxin. Unfortunately, all peanuts and peanut butters tested contain measurable amounts of aflatoxin. This is one of the most potent cancer-causing substances known, and no one has found a way to eliminate it from peanut products. It is formed by a mold that develops on peanuts while they are being grown and processed. So for now, at least, we seem to be stuck with aflatoxin as long as we indulge our taste for peanuts and peanut butter.

LET'S RUN THROUGH the ingredients.

1) Peanut oil: In animal experiments, peanut oil causes marked hardening of the arteries, despite the fact that it has no effect on serum cholesterol. Also, like any oil, it is to be avoided because of the relationship between high-fat diets and breast cancer, colon cancer, heart disease, and gallstones.

2) Hardened fats: These are man-made saturated fats, which raise the blood cholesterol and speed hardening of the arteries. So, in general, hardened fats are to be avoided.

3) Salt and sugar: These should be avoided because of the relationship of salt to high blood pressure, and of sugar to dental caries (cavities) and obesity.

4) Protein: Peanuts are only about 15% protein. They are not the rich source of protein that they are touted to be, or an importance source of protein in our diets.

5) Aflatoxin: As I mentioned, this is a potent carcinogen and of course it is to be avoided, since carcinogens, even in small quantities, are unsafe for human consumption.

Bridge

Using the evil eye

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The average bridge player relies heavily on the evil eye. He stares balefully at an opponent, concentrating on the command: "Don't lead a diamond." It works once every 23 years.

During the recent North American Championships New York expert Roger Bates had no faith in the evil eye. He took the ace of diamonds and saw the futility of drawing trumps and giving up a club. The opponents would take their diamond trick, and he would be down one.

UNDERDOG

Instead, Bates drew just two rounds of trumps and ran the hearts. This would work if the opponent with heart length had the missing trump. The odds were against this, since the player with only two trumps had more room in his hand for heart length, but it's better to be a slight underdog than to have no chance at all.

East had to follow to the hearts, and West was helpless since he had no trumps. Bates discarded dummy's diamond losers and then ruffed his low diamond in dummy, assuring the slam.

DAILY QUESTION

You bid one club, partner responds one heart, you bid one notrump and he raises to two notrump. The opponents pass. You hold: ♠ A Q 10 ♥ Q 10 ♦ 10 8 4 ♣ K Q 10 9 6. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three notrump. Since partner probably has only 10 or 11 points you're short of the 26 points usually needed for game, but you should count something extra for your five-card suit and for the Q-10 of partner's suit.

ALL IN ALL, I am afraid I haven't found many positive things about peanut butter except for the yummie taste. If you can't live without it, I have several suggestions.

1) Buy old-fashioned peanut butter without added salt. This avoids the hardened fats, sugar, salt, and chemicals that are present in highly processed peanut butters.

2) Let the oil separate and rise to the top, and discard it. This reduces the fat content of the peanut butter.

3) Grind up cooked and baked garbanzo beans (see Pritikin Program For Diet and Exercise, hardback page 350, paperback page 360) and mix in a small amount of peanuts or peanut butter for flavor.

4) Save your peanut cravings for occasional indulgence, rather than using peanuts as a daily staple.

5) Don't eat peanuts or peanut butter if you have a weight problem, as their high fat content makes them very fattening. Happy munching!

Census data now on microfilm

The Monterey County Historical Advisory Commission, with the support and assistance of the Monterey County Parks Department, has purchased for the county library system copies of the 1850-1900 federal and state census microfilm pertaining to Monterey County.

The microfilm contains U.S. Bureau of the Census schedules of population, agriculture products of industry and social statistics for Monterey County, as well as a name index and alphabetical transcription of the special 1852 California State population census.

The microfilms will be of use to persons researching the economic and social history of Monterey County.

The population schedules list heads of families and the members of that household, including laborers and servants, with sex, race, age, occupation and birthplace. Some census years requested information on citizenship, land tenancy, literacy, health, former residence and birthplace of parents.

The Agricultural Census lists owners of farms, acreage in population, livestock, types of farm products and their value, and laborers employed. The Products of Industry Census lists business name, type of manufacturing, power source, number of employees, wages paid, materials used, products and their value.

The Schedule of Deaths lists persons by name, age, month and cause of death during the previous year. The Social Statistics schedule lists total County property values, schools, churches, newspapers, libraries and the occupants of institutions such as jails and asylums, as well as average wages for various types of male and female laborers.

The Federal Census was taken every 10 years. Schedules for California for 1890 were destroyed by fire. The Special California Census of 1852 was ordered by the State Legislature and was transcribed by the D.A.R. in 1934. A copy of the original manuscript version of the 1852 census will be available to library patrons later this summer. Microfilm for the 1910 census year is not available to the general public at present. Census records for 1920-1980 are closed by federal laws protecting privacy.

For more information or to request microfilms on inter-library loan phone Rosie Graft, California Collection, for use of microfilm at the Monterey County Research Office in Salinas (424-8611 or 1-800-682-4707 extension 395).

Last year over a half million Americans died because they could not get medical or emergency assistance rapidly.

HOW the FAMOUS TRAGER therapeutic massage can help you

Gives a deep and lasting release from physical and mental tensions through a gentle and rhythmic manipulation of muscle groups — Improves circulation and elimination — Increases energy flow and clarity of mind

— Improves posture & flexibility

— These benefits have been experienced by severely handicapped men, women & children as well as the physically fit

What is the TRAGER method?

Light in motion, no oil... instead of forcing the body to let go of pain, we gently "entice" it to release its pain...

Some hints for dog care

By JUDITH A. EISNER

MANY OF THE irritating little problems dog owners encounter are the result of domesticating the dog in the first place. Take, for example, calluses that form on the elbows, hocks and feet of pet dogs.

These calluses are thickenings of the skin that form as a protection against lying on hard surfaces.

No sane wild dog or other animal would take a nap on a brick or concrete patio or on a tile or hardwood floor. It would curl up in a comfortably cushioned nest of drifted leaves or springy grass.

In addition, our wild friend would spend a larger portion of his day hunting for his dinner, touring his territory and pursuing other natural activities.

Too often, the dogs we keep as house pets have very little to do with themselves. When we do not want to play with them or when they tire of playing with their own ball, they sleep. The domestic dog has adapted to the point where he sleeps all night long and a good many hours of the day as well.

Unless we make provisions for all this shut-eye, the dog will develop calluses wherever his weight rests most heavily on hard surfaces.

Generally, calluses are no more than unsightly. You can feel the thickened skin, which has lost its hair and appears white or scaly.

Extreme callusing, left untreated, can lead to the buildup of bony protuberances which ultimately may be crippling to the dog.

THE BEST PREVENTION for calluses is to insist that the dog nap on a soft surface. If your home is carpeted and the dog rests on the rug, callusing will be kept to a minimum. The same is true of the dog who is permitted access to upholstered furniture.

Otherwise, give your dog a thick, soft rug or a covered foam pad to lie on. When he is outdoors, try to get him to lie on the grass instead of on a hard surface.

You can rub petroleum jelly, mineral oil, lanolin or vitamin E cream into the calluses every day. This will soften them and lubricate the toughened, dry skin. Coupled with a soft bed, it may get rid of any minor calluses in a short time.

ANOTHER COMMON PROBLEM afflicting house pets is filled anal glands.

At each side of the dog's anus are two small sacs, commonly known as anal glands. These sacs fill with secretions which normally drain voluntarily and are passed with the stool.

Frequently, however, the sacs do not drain and accumulate sufficient secretions to pain the dog. His reactions are perhaps the most widely misinterpreted symptoms in dogdom.

To relieve the irritation and itching of his filled anal glands, the dog will scoot or slide his rear end along the ground. He may also lick and bite at his rectum.

"Worms!" says the average dog owner triumphantly and trots out to his nearest supermarket to buy some unprescribed poison to worm his pet.

Although this rear end "sledding" can be symptomatic of worms, it probably indicates anal gland problems. If left untreated — and worm medicine won't treat this problem — the anal glands can become impacted, infected or abscessed. They can also spread infection to the dog's mouth and other parts of the body due to his chronic licking of the painful area.

Emptying the anal sacs is a simple task, but one best performed by a veterinarian. For one thing, he knows exactly where to apply pressure to express the material without hurting the dog. For another, the anal secretions are unbelievably foul and they have an unlovely way of squirting across the room when you hit the "spot."

Once the vet has expressed the glands, he can easily show you how to do it in the future, or you can simply make arrangements to have this attended to regularly.

Some dogs never need this attention; others require frequent cleansing. For a simple thing, anal glands can be the culprit in a number of canine problems, including general lack of condition or apparent severe constipation.

AS LONG AS we mentioned it, we'd like to reiterate the danger of worming your dog yourself.

Dogs may harbor a number of different intestinal parasites at the same time, or have none at all. Every dog does not necessarily "have worms."

You may discover roundworms or tapeworm segments in the dog's stool if you check carefully. But the safest way to diagnose whether or not your dog has any worms is to have the vet make a microscopic examination of a stool sample.

Although you can buy worm remedies over the counter at many places, remember that any vermifuge (worm killer) is a poison. Very few people other than the veterinarian are qualified to diagnose and treat any illness, and that goes for worms.

Your vet weighs the general condition of the dog in determining dosages; he knows whether to fast the animal before treatment, whether an enema is needed after the medication, and when a repeat worming is necessary. Do you?

Watch pets for foxtails

Foxtail season is here once again, and the Monterey County SPCA would like to remind pet owners to check their animals for the presence of the barbed weed whenever their pet has been outdoors.

Foxtails are weeds that are similar in structure to their useful relatives, wheat, oats, and barley. The long hairs that fan out from each seed are covered with microscopic barbs.

During the summer, the seeds mature, dry up and easily break off their stalks. So when a dog or cat brushes against them, they tend to catch in his coat. As he moves, they work their way in and become the start of discomfort and damage.

One way to prevent foxtail problems, would be to check the animal on a daily basis, paying particular attention to the pet's ears, eyes, and toes. If in spite of all precautions, the animal winds up with an embedded foxtail, see a veterinarian immediately.

Girl Scout outing planned

Fran Ciesla, a naturalist from Carmel, will lead a group of Monterey Peninsula Girl Scouts on a series of expeditions July 1, 2, and 3 to Point Lobos, Monterey Beach and the tidal fringe between Monterey Beach and the Coast Guard Pier.

Cost is $5 for Girl Scouts and $8 for non-members. Information and registration forms may be obtained by phoning Irene Coulter at 372-5787, or Janet Page at 375-0158.

Father Farrell's wisdom

Hugging your way to a better life

Benediction given at the Rotary Club, La Playa Hotel, May 13, 1981

Oh almighty and eternal God we humbly ask thy blessing on this food and fill the emptiness of our hearts with love. Increase our desire to serve others above self.

I am happy to report both to the Lord and to the Carmel Rotary that the International Rotary District 663 of North Eastern Ohio is in excellent mental and spiritual health. I spoke to and prayed over their district conference at the Marriott Inn Beachund-Shaker Heights, Cleveland this last week May 7-9.

A doctor in charge of infectious diseases gave me the following article entitled the "Hug Bug." He noticed it is the only bug his Safety and Infection Central Committee endorses. I quote: "Feeling down? Under stress? Have a cold? The cure is just a few hugs away. Dr. Virginia Satir, a social scientist of Menlo Park, and a member of the American Orthopsychiatric Association, contends that a hug transfers energy and gives us an emotional boost. We need four hugs a day for survival, eight for maintenance and twelve for growth. Our skin needs care and a hug gives the message that we care; it is a form of sympathetic communication; a hug tells others we are open to giving and receiving. It tells another person things we are unable to say in words. We usually cannot give a hug without getting one in return."

A hug in French—"embrasser" the verb—gives us the English word embrace; the noun is l'etreinte. It is abbraccio in Italian, abrazo in Spanish. It is used daily by Latins but somehow I cannot picture Carmel Rotarians acting like a group of Frenchmen, Italians or Mexicans. However, there is the symbolic hug, clasp, grasp in embrace. It may be as effective in showing our concern as the act and in this society, it is no doubt a lot safer.

We all join men of goodwill throughout the world asking almighty God to grant speedy recovery to his holiness Pope John Paul II, shot twice in an assassination attempt today. Amen.

Christian summer school set

A four-week Christian summer school program for children two and a half to five years will be presented by the Carmel Valley Community Chapel July 6-31.

The program will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., Monday through Friday, and will include arts and crafts, music, outdoor play, bible study and academic subjects.

The cost is $70 full-time and $55 for half-time enrollment. For further information phone Linda Ingram at 659-2278 or 659-3631.

U.N. spokesman to appear

John Massen, Northern California Director of the United Nations Association, will speak at the Thunderbird Bookstore Restaurant in the Barnyard off Rio Road and Highway 1, Carmel, Friday, June 26 at 12 p.m.

Massen will discuss the United States as seen from the perspective of the United Nations. The event is to celebrate United Nations Charter Day.

The United Nations Association is a non-profit organization dedicated to cooperation among nations to solve global problems.

Bring a lunch or buy lunch at the restaurant. For more information phone 624-7042.

What's at the movies

The Cannonball Run: Inspired by a real-life transcontinental auto race, from Darien, Conn. to Redondo Beach. The contestants include Burt Reynolds as the captain of a Dodge van disguised as an ambulance, Dom DeLuise as his maniac mechanic, Farrah Fawcett as their "patient," Roger Moore who thinks he's James Bond, and Dean Martin and Sammy Davis Jr. disguised as priests. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre.

Clash of the Titans: An adventure about Greek gods. With Laurence Olivier, Maggie Smith and Claire Bloom. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Dragonslayer: A sorcerer's apprentice, played by Peter MacNicol, sets out to slay the mighty dragon Vermithrax. At the Hill Theatre.

For Your Eyes Only: The latest James Bond adventure with Roger Moore. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough.

The Four Seasons: A romantic comedy about intimate friendships. Starring Alan Alda and Carol Burnett. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

The Great Muppet Caper: The latest Muppet adventure with Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy. Rated G. At the Center Cinemas.

History of the World, Part 1: A Mel Brooks comedy about man's evolution from the Dawn of Man and the Stone Age through Nero's Rome, the Spanish Inquisition and the French Revolution. Starring Mel Brooks, Dom DeLuise, Madeline Kahn, Harvey Korman, Cloris Leachman and more. Rated R. At the Center Cinemas.

The Last Metro: Francois Truffaut's latest film about a French theater troupe during the German Occupation. Catherine Deneuve plays an actress and the wife of the troupe's leader, who is wanted by the Germans and has gone into hiding. Deneuve is torn between her loyalty to her husband and her love for a young actor (Gerard Depardieu). Starts Wednesday, July 1. At the Dream Theatre.

Nice Dream: Cheech and Chong's latest comedy. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Raiders of the Lost Ark: Written by George Lucas and directed by Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford plays Indiana Jones, an archaeologist and adventurer, who searches for a valuable holy artifact, the Ark of the Covenant. Set in the 1930's. At the State Three Cinemas.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: The sexual confusion of two normal teenagers is compounded by the hilarious antics of the mad Dr. Frank N. Furter, an alien transvestite from the planet Transsexual. The stereotype horror movie/science fiction characters, including a tap-dancing groupie and a demented pair of siblings who serve as the doctor's servants, romp through the movie singing rock and roll of all vintage. Rated R. Saturday's late show at the Dream Theatre.

Stripes: Bill Murray plays a loser who joins the "new" U.S. Army to meet girls. Rated R. At the Regency.

Superman II: In this new adventure, Superman battles three outlaws from Krypton, who have his same super powers. Christopher Reeve is Superman, Margot Kidder is Lois Lane and Gene Hackman is villain Lex Luthor. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Tommy: Roger Daltrey in the title role is a young man struck deaf, dumb and blind as a child when he witnesses the murder of his father by his mother's lover. The story of his being set free is from the rock opera by The Who. With Ann-Margret, Oliver Reed, Elton John, Jack Nicholson and Tina Turner and The Who. A Friday late show. At the Dream Theatre.

Tell Me a Riddle: Lee Grant directed the film version of Tillie Olsen's award-winning novella. An older couple discovers, after years of marriage and waning affection, rekindled feelings of love for each other. Starring Melvyn Douglas and Lila Kedrova. PG. At the Dream Theatre.

Bay School has summer program

The Carmel Unified School District has begun a summer program for children ages three to seven again this year.

The program is at Bay School, three miles south of Carmel on Highway 1. It runs Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Children may attend partial or full-week sessions for $1.50 an hour.

Children receive instruction in art, music, puppetry, science, math, animal care and creative movement, among other subjects.

Emphasis is placed on the world around them, through visits to beaches, tidepools and meadows.

The program is directed by accredited teachers, and the children are continually supervised.

Parents may register their children at the school or by phone at 624-4397.

Perry to sign posters here

Nationally-known poster artist Ken Perry will be at the Carmel Bay Company to sign his posters Sunday, June 28 at 1 p.m.

The public is invited to meet the artist, at the store at Ocean and Lincoln, Carmel.

On display will be his English Iris, a national best seller, as well as new floral posters.

Born in Denver and raised in northern Montana, Perry has displayed an interest in art since childhood.

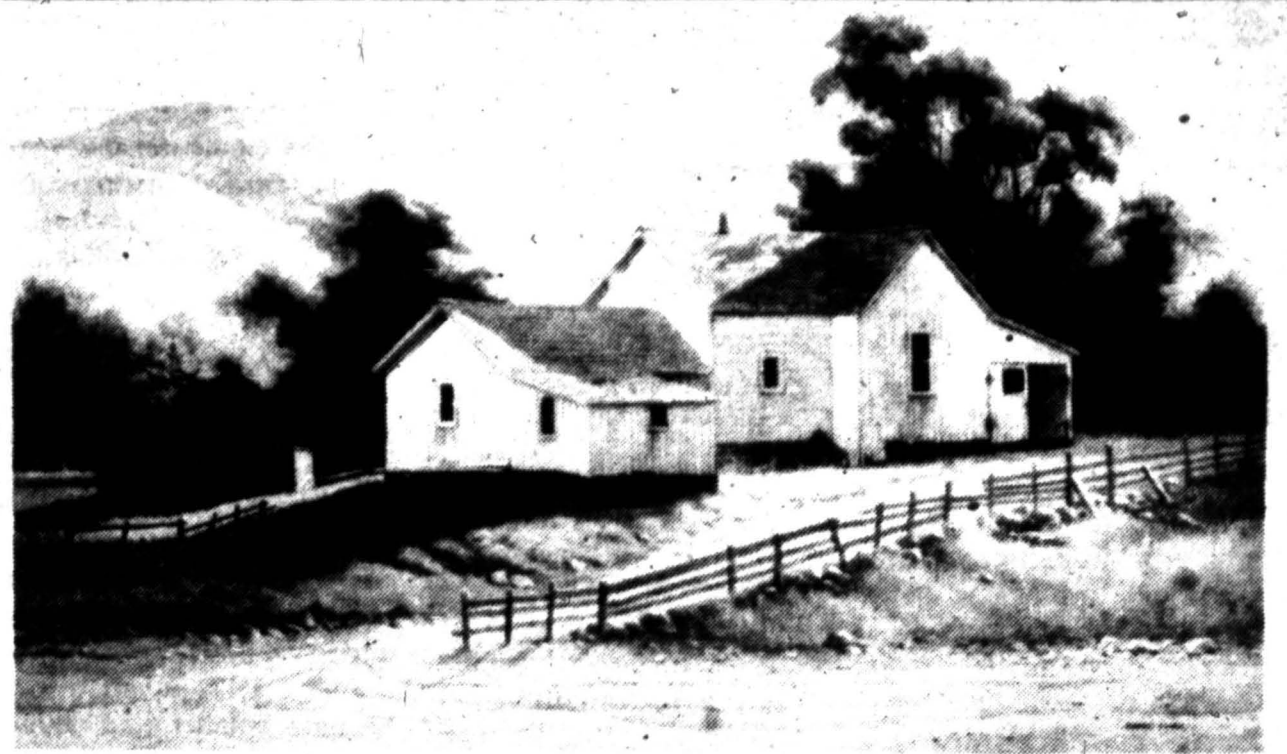

His interest, at first, was drawing. As he matured, he began to paint and broaden his interests. While studying art at Burnley Art School in Seattle, Ken took graphic courses. There his talent for silk-screening emerged. He soon became an excellent silkscreen printer. After graduating from art school, Perry took a job as a commercial artist. He did not find it fulfilling, however, and quickly moved on.

Arriving in San Francisco was the next phase in Ken's career. There he set up his own silkscreen studio. He produced small, signed and numbered, hand-printed editions. Ken's attention to detail helped him create clean, tight works. Soon Perry found a growing market for his stylized pieces. During this time he developed his identifiable color sense that is visible in everything he does. For his screen prints Ken mixes his own colors. This often means using special colors for his poster editions as well.

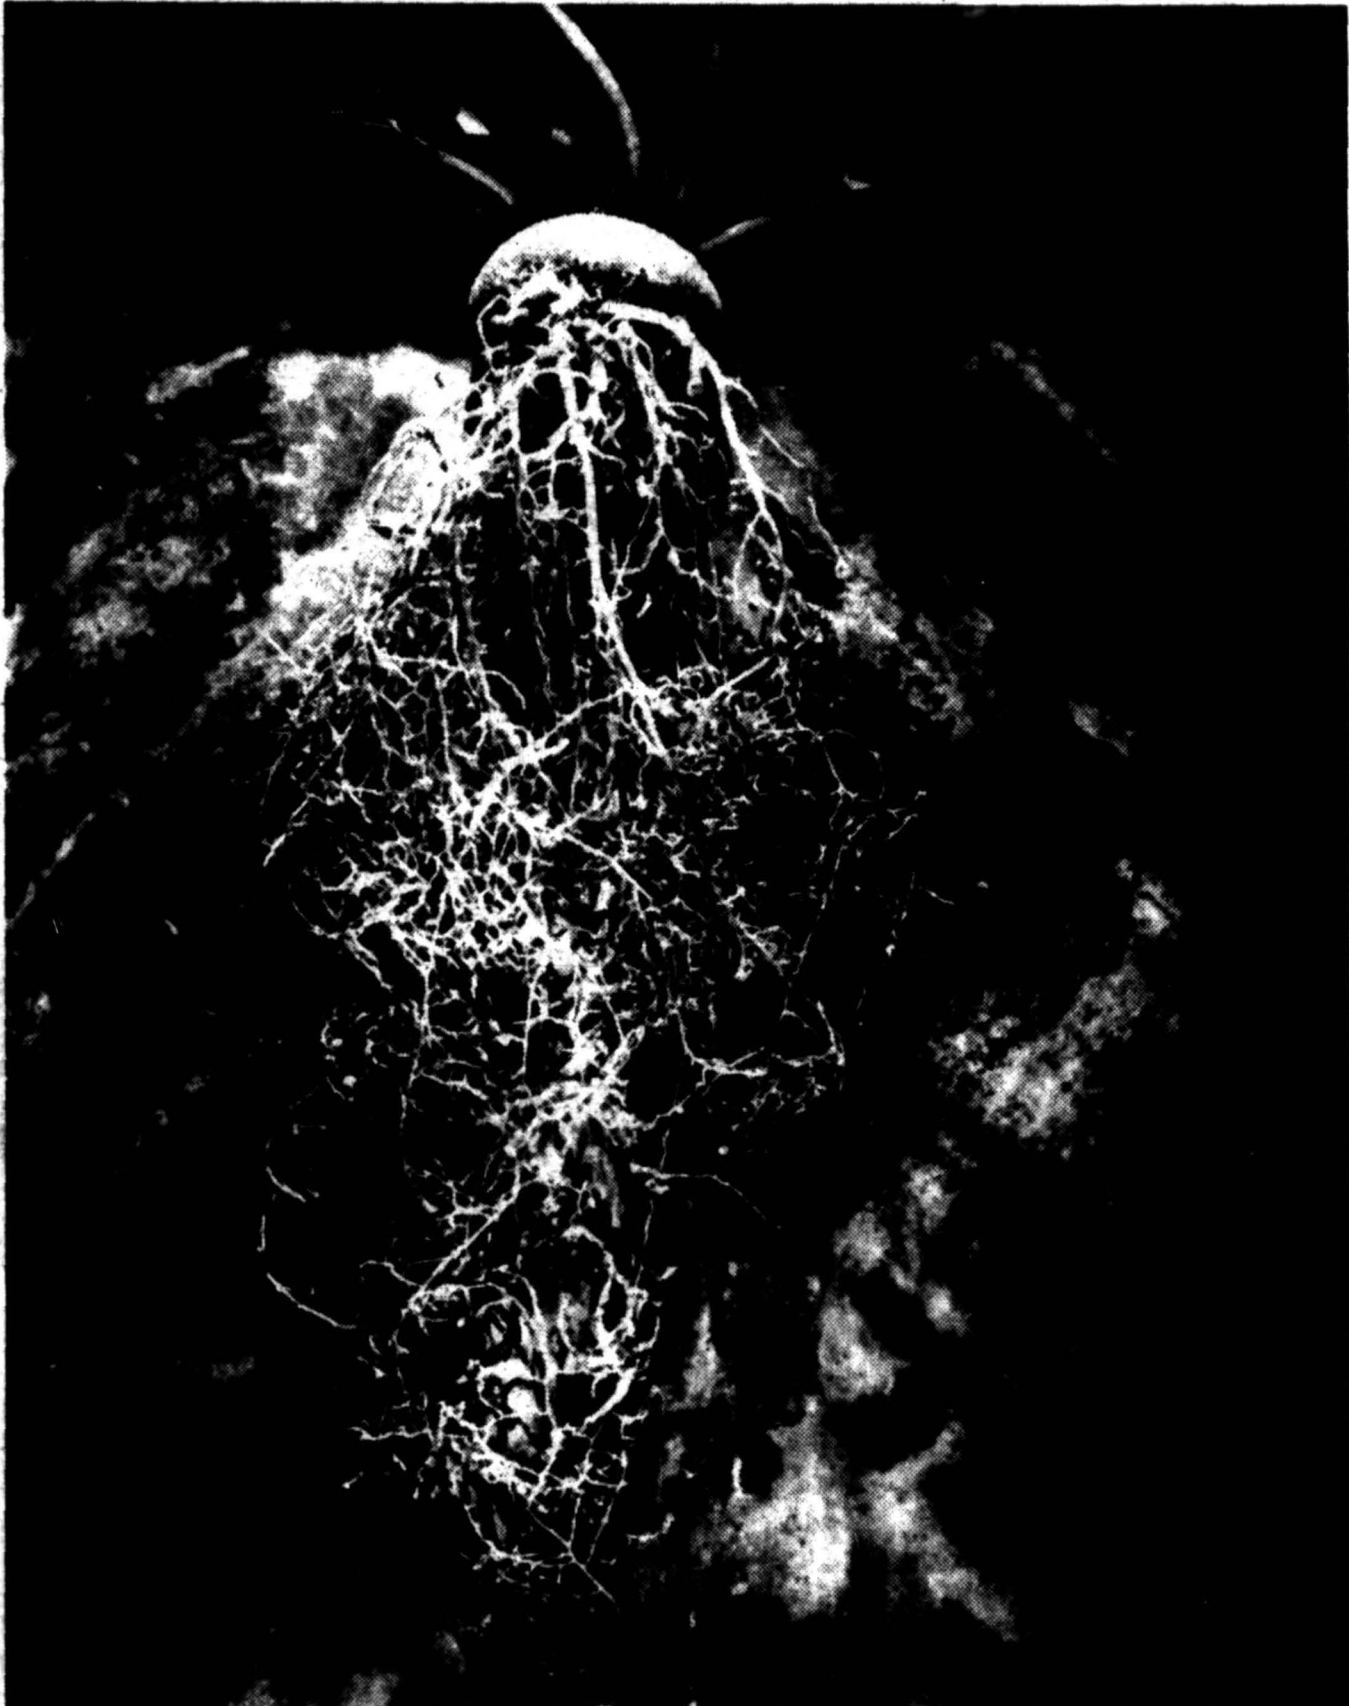

Ken Perry's work has found a permanent place in the burgeoning poster market. His success with posters has triggered new interest in his hand prints. Starting in 1980 interest in his work for one man shows has become evident.

For more information phone 624-3868.

FOOTHILL RANCH, by Robert Clark, is one of a collection of works by the artist on exhibit until July 10 at the Zantman Galleries, 6th and Mission, Carmel. The galleries have a limited edition of 200 prints, signed and numbered by the artist, priced from $75 to $175. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

CYCLAMEN, 1980, a photograph by Manchester, Mass. artist Olivia Parker is part of a collection of works by Parker now on display at the Friends of Photography Gallery at Sunset Center in Carmel. The exhibition includes split-toned black-and-white photographs and color prints made with Polaroid materials. Gallery hours are 1-5 p.m. seven days a week.

FROM CONSUMER REPORTS

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Car bargains still available

IT'S THAT TIME of year when new car dealers want to clear off their showroom floors to make room for the new models. With careful shopping, you may be able to get a bargain—if you're willing to buy one of the 1981 cars.

The auto test engineers at Consumer Reports rated 95 of them. The ones that CU recommends performed unusually well in recent tests and have at least a reasonably good predicted repair incidence.

If you're in the market for a new small car, the good news is that some of the best contemporary small cars are actually roomy—even for four adults. More and more small car manufacturers have switched to a transversely mounted engine and front-wheel drive, which leave more room inside for occupants and luggage. A few of them are more comfortable and quieter than some models in the medium-sized group.

The Audi 4000, the VW Jetta and Dasher diesel, the Toyota Corona, the Mazda 626, and the Honda Accord scored high overall in CU's tests, but they were also among the more luxurious and expensive small models tested. The best "economy" models tested were the VW Rabbit, Toyota Corolla and Corolla Tercel, the Mazda GLC, the Honda Civic and the Chevrolet Chevette.

For family transportation, though, you may find a medium-sized car more practical, even though they offer less fuel economy than a small car. Most of these models can carry five adults; and if comfort is no object, you can even squeeze six into a few of them.

The Mercedes-Benz 300D was the import that scored the highest in CU's tests. It costs $25,640. The Audi 5000 and Volvo 740 came next. But if you want something a lot less expensive, or if you want to "buy American," consider GM's A-body cars—the Buick Century, the Chevrolet Malibu, the Oldsmobile Cutlass and the Pontiac Le Mans. They performed well in the tests and had reasonable fuel economy for their size. In the 1982 model year new front wheel drive cars will be added to these model lines.

Large cars, in an effort to improve fuel economy, have become smaller and lighter, with more efficient automatic transmission and six-cylinder rather than V8 engines. Still, the days of the large car are numbered.

But if you have six people in your family or carpool with four or five adults, or frequently tow a trailer, a smaller car just won't do. Of the fewer and fewer large cars still available. CU recommends GM's sedans—the Buick Le Sabre, the Chevrolet Impala/Caprice, the Oldsmobile Delta 88, and the Pontiac Catalina/Bonneville—some of which will be discontinued in 1982.

For a special reprint of Consumer Union's test of tire pressure gauges and another subject send 50 cents plus a long, self-addressed envelope to CONSUMERS, P. O. Box 461, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10010. Be sure to ask for the reprint on tire pressure gauges.

DEAR CONSUMER REPORTS: We bought a 1980 Pontiac Sunbird. Before the warranty expired, it had a cracked alternator (the bolts weren't tightened in the factory), then the transmission went, and—to put icing on the cake—the motor went out. Of course, by then the warranty was also out. Is our experience unique, or have there been a lot of problems the Sunbird—and if so, does Pontiac have a secret warranty to correct them?

DEAR READER: As far as we know, Pontiac has no secret warranty on the Sunbird, but it has a poor frequency of repair record. The 1976-80 Sunbirds have given their owners worse-than-average repair problems, according to the information our subscribers have given us (which is based on 360,000 cars of all makes).

DEAR CONSUMER REPORTS: I have a 1978 Volkswagen Rabbit with 58,000 miles on it. It's using a quart of oil every 700 miles. Is this normal?

DEAR READER: Normal for Volkswagen, unfortunately. The engine valve seals on these cars seem to deteriorate, causing oil consumption to increase until it reaches dangerous proportions. VW dealers, apparently aware of the problem, have new valve seals (at a cost of $170 to $200) that will cure it. We think VW should admit that the original seals are defective and repair them free.

MIRACLE SAVES GIRLS IN CRASH

Three well-known Carmel girls miraculously escaped serious injuries Tuesday morning when the automobile in which they were riding turned a complete somersault at the corner of Monte Verde and Eighth.

The car was thrown about fifty feet, police estimated, and then turned with the wheels up. The two girls with Harriet Staniford were Mildred Petty and Violet Payne. All three escaped from the wreckage by breaking the windows of the car.

WYNN BULLOCK

Wynn Bullock, Peninsula photographer whose works are on exhibit at the M. H. de Young Museum in San Francisco until July 22, has been recognized as one of this country's top photographers these last few years, both at home and abroad.

He feels that in a good picture the on looker should not be aware of the technique employed, but only of the mood and the visual message carried: Composition, tone, subject matter and personal interpretation combine to create a meaningful picture—all elements are there and fused.

UNDERWATER PARK FOR CARMEL BAY?

That nearby body of water called Carmel Bay—at times a peaceful and glistening blue jewel, at others a dark and raging menace to those who come within its grasp—is certainly one of Carmel's most valuable natural resources.

The latest issue concerning Carmel Bay turns on the Point Lobos State Reserve Underwater Reserve Expansion study, a report that proposes expansion of the reserve "and underwater parks" from Pebble Beach's Cypress Point south to Yankee Point.

ANOTHER 13 ACRES TO BE DEVELOPED AT CARMEL RANCHO

Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, at the mouth of the Valley, is getting ready to grow again.

A preliminary layout for development of an additional 13.2 acres along the Carmel Rancho Blvd. will be presented to the Planning Commission next Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. Known as Carmel Rancho Phase II, the new commercial complex will be directly south of United California Bank and the Sprouse Reitz cluster.

COMMISSIONERS COMPLAIN ABOUT DIRTY SIDEWALKS

The city of Carmel has never cared much for the idea of sidewalks at all; and now the Planning Commission complains that the sidewalks it does have tend to be filthy.

Although most occupants of the city's business district already make efforts to keep their sidewalks clean, it is not an easy job and the commissioners feel that it often requires more than a mere sweeping or once-over hosing.

SHOPPING CENTER PLANS PROMOTION

Free gifts (1,976), coupon drawings and refreshments highlight the event, which will culminate on Saturday, with festivities starting at 10 a.m. on the West Mall and 11 a.m. on the East Mall.

Uncle Sam, assisted by William R. Moore, owner of the Carmel Rancho Pharmacy, and Lee Coelho, manager of the Carmel Rancho Monte Mart, will cut and serve two birthday cakes, one on each side of the complex. Helium-filled balloons will be given away on the malls, with other gifts being offered at stores throughout the Center, from 9 a.m. on.

MOMENT OF TRUTH

The situation is this. Husband is transferred to a new job a great distance away. The family decided to sell their home. It is not sold prior to the husband's departure, should the wife and children remain behind or accompany him to the new location and try to sell an empty house?

Speaking as a REALTOR — not as a marriage counselor — I must advise that the choice will be a matter of finance versus emotions. Why?

Experience shows that an empty house is tougher to sell and brings less money. A house, devoid of furniture loses its charm and appearance of livability. Scars and blemishes show up. Empty rooms look smaller without furniture.

On the average, an empty house will bring about 5 or 6 percent less. In some cases, discounts of up to 10 percent are not unusual. Also, selling time is longer for an empty house despite the paradox that the buyer can move in almost immediately.

WHAT IS YOUR ANSWER TO INFLATION?

ORDINANCE NO. 88

AN ORDINANCE PROVIDING FOR THE COLLECTION OF SEWER SERVICE CHARGES FOR SERVICES FOR FISCAL YEAR 1981-1982 ON THE TAX ROLL

The Board of Directors of the Carmel Sanitary District, Monterey County, California, does ordain as follows:

SECTION 1: The Carmel Sanitary District, Monterey County, California, does hereby elect, pursuant to Section 5473 of the Health and Safety Code of the State of California, to have sewer service charges for services for the fiscal year 1981-1982 as established pursuant to Ordinance No. 79 and Ordinance No. 80 duly passed and adopted by the Board of the Carmel Sanitary District and as provided for in the report described in Section 2 hereof, collected on the tax roll of the County of Monterey, State of California, in the same manner, by the same persons, and at the same time as, together with and not separately from, its general taxes.

SECTION 2: Thursday, the 16th day of July, 1981, at the hour of 1:30 p.m. at the regular meeting place of said Board, Council Chamber, City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, Carmel, California, are fixed as the time and place for hearing and of the filing of said report, once a week for two (2) successive weeks prior to the date set for said hearing, in the Carmel Pine Cone, a newspaper printed and published in Monterey County and having general circulation in the District area.

SECTION 3: Upon adoption, this Ordinance shall be entered in the records of the Board of the Carmel Sanitary District and shall be published once within fifteen (15) days following its adoption in the Carmel Pine Cone, a newspaper published in the County and having general circulation in the District area.

SECTION 4: This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect one week after publication.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that the foregoing is a full, true and correct copy of an Ordinance duly adopted and passed by the Board of Directors of the Carmel Sanitary District, Monterey County, California, at a regular meeting held on the 18th day of June, 1981, by the following vote:

FREE CLASSIFIEDS FOR OUR READERS

WANT CASH FLOW?

We have a newly listed Fourplex in a fine Pacific Grove area. Four nicely furnished one-bedroom, one-bath units surrounded by mature oaks and well-maintained landscaping. Assumable financing to those qualified. $215,000.

LARGE, TWO-BEDRM OCEAN-VIEW HOME, $339,500

Here's an immaculately maintained home on about half an acre of land INSIDE the Carmel city limits. It has views of Pt. Lobos, the ocean and Carmel Mission. It has a brick and wood exterior, heavy shake roof, a large, double garage and two baths. The beamed-ceiling living room is 16' x 24' and the formal dining room is 12' x 22'. There's a huge, nicely planted, protected patio. This has to be one of the best buys in Carmel today.

A GRACIOUS VIEW HOME IN CARMEL VALLEY

This Georgian-style, mountain-top home has over 4,300 square feet of the highest quality construction ... and a view from nearly every window. It has two master bedroom suites and a guest wing, all with baths; 19' x 28' living room; 16' x 19' FORMAL dining room and 12' x 14' FAMILY dining room; 11' x 18' entry hall with Travertine marble floors; hobby room; 20' x 40' pool with pool sweep; fully equipped kitchen and laundry; wet bar; central vacuum; loads of storage, inside and out; gardener's lavatory. For all-year comfort, there's a fully automatic Carrier air conditioning system with electrostatic purifier and humidifier and a Honeywell-controlled zone system. The landscaping is as exquisite as the house. There are two parcels of land with a total of just over 5 acres. As the house is on one parcel, the other parcel COULD be developed or sold if one wanted. The property could not be duplicated today for the listed price of $950,000. Shown by appointment.

ONE-BEDRM. IN MID-VALLEY GARDEN HOMES—$125,000

Don't let the low price fool you. This is a very nice unit in a beautiful garden setting. Large, heated pool. Good financing. Convenient to shops. This co-op home has views of the pool, the gardens and the hills.

NEW, TWO BEDRM. HOME TWO BLOCKS TO TOWN

South of Ocean, too. The house has a den, which can be a third bedroom, two baths, a large entry hall and a very large deck. It was designed by Architect Mackenzie Patterson, and it's a beautifully created and appointed home. La Honda redwood has been generously used, the doors are panelled and tastefully finished, the kitchen has ceramic tile floors and a Jenn-air range and oven. The dining area has skylights and a built-in buffet. Attached garage with Genie door opener, separate laundry room, tub AND shower in master bath. We're proud to offer this home at $375,000.

ROCKY CREEK RANCH— BREATH-TAKING VIEWS—OVER 600 ACRES, SOUTH OF CARMEL

On a clear day you can see forever (almost). The ocean view goes north past Santa Cruz! There are fine, closer ocean views of Bixby Creek Bridge and Division Knoll, and beautiful views of the mountains all around. A good portion of the property is either almost flat or gently sloping; some of it is quite steep. The vegetation is outstanding—groves of Redwoods, huge Oak trees, areas of Chaparral, Madrone, Manzanita and Grease Wood. Rocky Creek touches one corner of the property. There are perhaps dozens of large, practically level building sites on this magnificent acreage, one being an over 100-acre meadow. All this and much, much more is yours for $2,000,000. The owner will finance with terms open to negotiation.

HOUSEPLANT VACATION TIME

By Herma Smith Curtis

Your plants need a summer vacation as much as you do. Putting them outdoors to enjoy the benefits of dappled light, gentle rain, and freely circulating air will encourage blooming and new growth, and strengthen them for the long winter indoors.

Move your plants outdoors when the weather is dependably warm. Place the plants in a shady, protected area, like the deck. Around shrubs or a hedge, along a fence, or under a shady trellis are other good locations. Cactus and succulents can tolerate stronger sun than foliage plants; ferns and delicate plants need fairly deep shade.

Make the transition to the outdoors gradually; set plants indoors for a few hours a day until they're accustomed to their new environment. Then group them fairly close together so they can establish their own microclimate. That way they'll share humidity and protect each other from strong sun and wind.

Water the plants often because sun and drying winds will cause the soil to dry out quickly. Speed up watering by using a fine mist from a garden hose. A gentle rain is beneficial for plants, too, but if a storm is predicted, bring them indoors. For vigorous growth, feed plants monthly.

Five Bedrooms Near Carmel Point

Family homes of this size are pretty rare in this area, and this one is an unusual value. It's located on the northwest corner of 16th and Monte Verde, near the River School and a half-block from where Monte Verde ends at the Bird Sanctuary. The ocean is just a short walk away.

A high fence surrounds the whole lot, and inside, the grounds are thoughtfully landscaped for easy maintenance: a paved and private patio, an enclosed play yard at the rear, attractive and well established planting all about.

The living room is at your left as you enter, a 29 x 14 salon paneled in mahogany, with giant picture windows on two sides opening to broad views of the mountains and the mouth of the Valley. A wide fireplace of flat bricks rises from floor to ceiling on the east wall.

Just to your right is a dining room with corner windows, and across a counter opening is the efficient family kitchen. Full length louvered doors can be closed to screen off this area. Built-in oven, refrigerator, dishwasher and trash compactor are all included; there's an abundance of dark wood cabinets; and the corner sink under corner windows provides an inviting, sunny space. The kitchen rounds the corner and leads to a laundry room complete with washer and dryer, to the sizeable 2nd bath, and to 2 of the 5 bedrooms.

The other 3 bedrooms lie along a broad, artfully papered corridor that runs through the center of the house between the living room and sleeping areas. The master bedroom, with windows south and west, is at the end of this hallway. Next comes the No. 1 bath, then 2 bedrooms, one of which easily doubles as a den. All 5 bedrooms are large, ranging from 14 x 12 to 16 x 13; and convenient built-in shelves, cabinets and work spaces are featured in several.

This is a highly-functional house, beautifully decorated and well maintained. It was built in 1959 and has 2250 sq. ft. At $259,500 and in this premium location, it's a superior buy.

LANDSCAPED TO A TEE

JUST LISTED . . . The moment you walk up the circular driveway to the front door, you'll see this is a very special home. Located on a quiet cul-de-sac in a choice area of Del Monte Forest, it sits amid lovely old oak trees and colorful shrubs. Although there's garden front and rear, you can be assured the automatic sprinkling system will always keep everything green and flourishing. Inside are three bedrooms and two baths, plus a living room with fireplace, dining room and kitchen overlooking the attractive rear garden and the third fairway of the MPCC Dunes Course. A pleasure to show — and we'd like to have the pleasure of showing it to you! $285,000.

ON SCENIC DRIVE

AND WITH A FOREVER view! Our new listing . . . a contemporary-styled two-bedroom home offering not one but two sunny patios and glorious views of Carmel beach and the blue ocean. The lot extends from Scenic to San Antonio, where you'll find a garage. Besides two bedrooms, you'll find a living room with corner fireplace, kitchen with dining area, and family room. If you have your heart set on dream home by the sea, look no further! Call for an appointment. $667,000.

NEAR THE BEACH

JUST THREE SHORT blocks from Carmel Beach and south of Ocean Avenue, a freshly redecorated three-bedroom home with THREE fireplaces and much, much appeal inside and out. Attractive living room with beamed ceiling and fireplace, dining room with fireplace, sunny deck, modern kitchen and two bedrooms plus bath, all on the ground floor, while upstairs is the master suite with fireplace, bath and study alcove. Attached garage. Very well priced for this sought-after area. $329,000. Easily shown!

WANTED

WE HAVE A customer who'd like to trade his attractive home in Indian Wells (a choice area near Palm Springs) for something equivalent in Carmel. The Indian Wells home has two bedrooms, two baths, large kitchen, double garage, swimming pool and citrus trees. The owner's equity is between $250,000 and $300,000. If you'd be interested, call Karen Robinson at our office.

Hidden Home On The big Sur Coast

Above a deep inlet where surf cascades over rocky islets, also sheltered by hillsides abounding in wildflowers on a two-and-a-half-acre seafloor site, this home with a cedar shingle roof and redwood exterior, features interior use of native woods in all rooms, each opening to a sundeck.

Window walls capture miles of view in the living/dining area centered by a circular fireplace, also enhanced by a beamed ceiling and paneling of redwood, a dark-stained pine floor and built-ins including a desk and bookcases.

The open plan living/dining area includes, too, a compact kitchen with a breakfast bar, carefully crafted cabinets and counters, stainless steel sink and an electric stove. A built-in refrigerator increases the kitchen efficiency.

Two identical, redwood-paneled bedrooms with skylights in their beamed ceilings, dark pine floors, huge closets and window walls opening to decks are in a wing connected to the main living area by a glass-walled entrance gallery.

Even the tile-floored bathroom, with a sunken tub, opens to a deck, also exhibits the same skilled craftsmanship of native woods enhancing the entire interior. The price of this shore-front home, hidden by hillsides, also with extensive and intimate Big Sur Coast views, is $535,000.
